Dear Judge Fox,

In viewing the News Observer Sunday morning, I ran across the article announcing your condition. Although you may not know me personally, my heart was touched by what I read. My name is Charles Alston. You were the District Attorney during the course of my trial, where I received a 25 year sentencing. I have since then given my heart to Christ and is living for Him a changed man. There is no hatred or animosity in my heart towards you or any man. I have forgiven you for the verdict I received and is serving that time in all humility of heart.

I know you are in need of a matching donor for bone marrow. I may or may not be a match, but would have been willing to make the sacrifice if needed.

This is just a thought: Have you considered searching among the brotherhood of North Carolina's Prison Facilities? There may be at least one who qualifies and is willing to offer you a helping hand. I'll leave you with this thought: Our heavenly Father knows all things and if asked, He will lead you to your man.

Thanks for listening to my humble gesture. I wish you much success in your search. My prayers be with you.

Charles Alston
