No, I just left it open. But the most recent comment submitted was in November 2015.

Sure... here are the email newsletters and facebook posts I was sending about it:

5/7/2015: First email to the community talking about our citizen-led study: http://eepurl.com/bmgosn
* also posted on Facebook here: https://www.facebook.com/NorthwestAustin/posts/971775549523865
7/7/2015: Email with link to the map. http://eepurl.com/bsANHr
* also posted on Facebook here: https://www.facebook.com/NorthwestAustin/posts/1003364319698321

That meeting was also covered in Community Impact's July 2015 issue (page 12):

The longer version of that article isn't on their website anymore for some reason... but the waybackmachine still has it:

Can you tell me when you first put it online and then when you closed and finalized the comments then?

Hey Nolan... it was a process we developed after speaking to staff back in May 2015. Since everything was public and online, it didn't require being sent... it was part of the public conversation, along with the work we did to get Anderson Mill in the MobilityATX report.

Hi Nolan,

I got your voicemail… I was driving, apologies for the delay. Here is a link: http://www.nwaustin.org/note. If you have questions, comments, or need clarification/other info etc., Jimmy would be happy to chat with you further. Thanks!

Allison

Hey Allison,

We're trying to track down this Anderson Mill Road corridor study that Flannigan keeps talking about as part of his work at the Northwest Austin Coalition. Do you guys happen to have a copy handy?

Thanks,

Nolan
