mission's meeting Wednesday. e Thurston County League of nen Voters, represented by ral of its members including teswoman Irene Christy, told commission that at least parts he plan were not platable to its nbership.

Irs. Christy told the commisthat its numbers "object to filling in of tidelands for hotels, ps and other non-water depend-industries."

The League's volley was fired in rticular at a ten-acre fill nned at the southern tip of East y and a boatel-office building mplex planned thereon. The ague further said it objected to e Port's method of arriving at its an without asking "citizen advi-ry participation."

Port Manager Gene Sibold an-vered Mrs. Christy's blast by ying that taken too literally the ater dependent issue virtually uld blitz the entire project.

"The marina parking lot, cusoms office, office buildings and ven the rest rooms are not totally vater dependent structures," Si-old said, "but they are related to he rest of the anticipated activiies."

Commissioner Warren Simmons dded that the boatel aspect of the plan was interjected as a measure "to put something which will bring in revenue" to what the Port insists will be a self-supporting plan.

The Commission did agree to further discuss and hear League arguments on the project. Sibold also told the group that shoreline and hydraulic permits had been applied for in the name of the har-seem to have in hand is chosing a meaningful name for the marina to the Port of Olympia office, 915 N. Washington Street.
