Here's the letter - there isn't a release:

Dear «Title» «Last»:

The recent problems related to the Zoo Interchange powerfully illustrate the need to address the backlog in work on our roads and bridges in Wisconsin. That backlog is compounded by the $1.3 billion raided from the State Transportation Fund by Governor Jim Doyle in previous budgets.

With this in mind, I ask you and the other members of the Wisconsin congressional delegation to take action to re-program the $810 million designated for "high-speed" rail between Madison and Milwaukee to be immediately utilized on roads and bridges in our state.

Why build a new form of transportation when our current infrastructure is falling apart?

Historically, members of our congressional delegation have been successful in persuading their fellow members to re-program transportation funds to benefit Wisconsin:

In 1998, an act of Congress gave then-Governor Tommy Thompson control over $241 million (left from federal funds designated for transit back in 1991). He then used the money for work related to the Marquette Interchange.

In 2009, an act of Congress gave the City of Milwaukee 60% of the remaining $91.5 million. This will allow Mayor Tom Barrett to spend $54.9 million on a downtown Milwaukee street car system.

Each of these actions involved a shift in transportation policy and each required an act of Congress. This is what I am asking you to do now.

Your work can put the $810 million to use on needed road and bridge repairs all across the state. Thank you for your careful consideration.

Sincerely,

Scott Walker
Milwaukee County Executive

As you know the attorneys are set to vote again on the 1972 provisions some time next week. With that in mind, I sent the below email. We were only a couple votes short and my understanding is that the problem was in Corp Counsel, not child support. Perhaps if the word on the below gets out, the vote will turnaround.

This is something that Domina and I had talked about in the past. The problem with laying off just a few attorneys is that it would be done by seniority and we would loose some of our best legal minds (Molly and others related to BHD) and be able to touch the deadwood. I talked to him about privatizing certain functions and he felt it would be best if we were to proceed to privatize the whole office. To be clear, for now I just want the word of this to get out in hopes it might impact the vote next week. Proceeding with actually issuing an RFP would require more discussion with the CEX. Finally, Domina is very sensitive about talking about Milw County issues. We need to keep that in mind since my conversations with him are off the record and confidential and done on my off time via my personal phone.

Hey all – we just saw the news Bucyrus is most likely adding 500 jobs. Barrett is saying he helped bring these jobs here. We need to send something out from the CE office fast. – maybe include the below article from 2005 too?

I did a quickie draft but Scott you may know better how to characterize what you "did" to keep them here. Obviously, my numbers only come from this article ...

"Milwaukee County helped back $16 million in bonds for Bucyrus in 2005 to prevent the company from being forced to relocate, keeping Milwaukee County families working. Today's news that Bucyrus may add 500 jobs is a testament to their good work and many partnerships that kept Bucyrus here." Or something like that.

Houston beckoned for Bucyrus

Milwaukee work ethic outweighed cost advantages elsewhere
The Business Journal of Milwaukee - by Rich Rovito

The reliability and experience of its local work force played a major role in Bucyrus International Inc.'s decision to keep the company's operations in South Milwaukee and invest as much as $95 million in the sprawling industrial complex.

Management of the mining equipment manufacturer had strongly considered moving the company's production operations to Houston, which has an easily accessible port, plentiful nonunion labor and less expensive health care premiums, said Tim Sullivan, Bucyrus' president and chief executive officer.

If the company had moved production out of state, it would only have been a matter of time before the corporate headquarters would have followed, Sullivan said in an interview.

"It would have been the beginning of the end for Bucyrus in South Milwaukee," he said.

Bucyrus announced Aug. 25 that it will add about 200 jobs under a plan to expand its South Milwaukee operations to meet increasing demand for mining equipment. The expansion will occur in phases, beginning with a $22 million, 110,000-square-foot addition to a portion of the South Milwaukee complex north of East Rawson Avenue. Bucyrus plans to break ground on the expansion by the end of October.

About 100 new employees will be hired during the initial phase of expansion, Sullivan said. The new workers will be in addition to 100 employees the company is hiring for its Milwaukee plant at West Oklahoma and South Chase avenues.

Number crunching

Company management began seriously considering a move from South Milwaukee immediately after the company's stock went public in July 2004, Sullivan said. The final decision came down to whether to move to Houston or Pocatello, Idaho, where Bucyrus formerly ran a factory, or to remain in South Milwaukee.

For months, Bucyrus' financial experts crunched numbers comparing the cost of doing business in the three cities. Costs for South Milwaukee were considerably higher, especially when compared with Houston. There, welders earn about $15 an hour, compared with about $22 per hour at the South Milwaukee plant, Sullivan said. Houston was also rated as less expensive than Pocatello.

When adding health care and other costs into the mix, the cost differential per employee is about $10 more per hour in South Milwaukee as compared with Houston, he said.

Despite the huge cost disparity, Bucyrus management determined that production workers in Texas, where Bucyrus runs a repair facility, don't have the dedication to their jobs exhibited by the work force in South Milwaukee.

"The work ethic is not nearly as strong in Texas," Sullivan said.

In addition, the high skill level and experience of Bucyrus' South Milwaukee work force leads to minimal scrap and rework in the manufacturing process, Sullivan said.

The decision to keep production in South Milwaukee is a "testament to the work ethic and skills" of the factory-floor workers, said Doug Drake, director of the Wisconsin office of the United Steelworkers union.

Bucyrus has about 850 employees in South Milwaukee, about half of whom are hourly production workers represented by the United Steelworkers Local 1343.

Bucyrus' decision to expand locally also should serve as a "cautionary note" to companies considering moving production from Wisconsin to areas of the country that offer less expensive labor, Drake said.

"If you are simply chasing dollars and not looking at skills you may end up getting what you pay for," he said.

To make it feasible to maintain its South Milwaukee plants, Bucyrus sought assistance from the state, Milwaukee County and the city of South Milwaukee.

The Wisconsin Department of Commerce is providing $2.5 million in incentives. An additional $1 million in incentives will come from the state Department of Transportation.

Milwaukee County has offered to back bonds that the city of South Milwaukee would issue for the creation of a $16 million tax incremental financing district. With the backing of the county, South Milwaukee will be able to secure a lower interest rate on the bonds, thus reducing the amount the city would have to pay to create the tax incremental financing district.

"It spreads out the risk," said Milwaukee County Executive Scott Walker. "It's a shrewd risk to take because Bucyrus is growing."

Walker said the county also is working to secure $10 million in new market tax credits for the Bucyrus expansion project.

Sullivan said Bucyrus intends to finance the bulk of the expansion through working capital and funds available under its existing revolving credit facility, but the company will look for "continued support" from the state and county.

Analysts at Robert W. Baird & Co. Inc., Milwaukee, maintained an "outperform" rating on Bucyrus shares upon the announcement of the capital improvement project. The firm has set a $45 per share price target. Bucyrus shares closed at $41.91 on Aug. 30.

"We consider Bucyrus' announced capital investment program to be a favorable development," analyst Robert McCarthy wrote in a research note Aug. 25.

The expansion also will improve overall manufacturing productivity at the South Milwaukee plant, "effectively making up for constrained spending during the last decade," McCarthy wrote.

Bucyrus may add more than 500 jobs

By Rick Barrett of the Journal Sentinel

Bucyrus International (BUCY) sa d Friday it might add more than 500 jobs in Milwaukee as the result of acquiring an underground mining equipment company.

"It's a work in progress, but it looks pos tive that we will be increasing employment beyond what we projected," CEO Tim Sullivan said in an interview.

In February, Bucyrus acquired the mining division of Terex Corp., based in Westport, Conn.

The acquisition was expected to create between 300 and 500 jobs in Milwaukee, including several hundred manufacturing positions and Terex employees transferred from Connecticut.

The new jobs are expected over the next two to three years.

"I think it's safe to say those numbers will go up rather than down," Sullivan said.

Thursday, Bucyrus reported a $35 million quarterly prof t, down from $56.9 mill on a year ago. Sales were down 0.3% to $605.7 million.

Last year's first quarter included a large order from the Czech Republic, making a year-over-year comparison difficult. And the first quarter of 2010 included results from Terex .

"There was a lot of noise in the numbers," Sullivan said. The timing of one deal, such as the Czech Republic sale, can greatly affect quarterly results.

Coal mining equipment accounts for more than half of Bucyrus' revenue.

Overall, the coal market trends are still favorable, analyst Charles Brady with BMO Capital Markets said in a note to clients.

PROTECTING PUBLIC HEALTH IS NOT A 'KNEE-JERK' REACTION

Chairman Holloway not opposed to providing water to Waukesha under the proper circumstances

Milwaukee, WI – Milwaukee County Board Chairman Lee Holloway released the following statement regarding yesterday's County Board vote on Waukesha water:

"This morning's newspaper article misconstrues the position taken by the County Board yesterday. I am not opposed to making Lake Michigan water available to Waukesha, but I am opposed to sending return water through neighborhood creeks and streams in Milwaukee County, especially without input from the County Board. Returning water in this manner would create a terrible public health situation and put children at risk. Children play in this water. Animals drink from and pollute this water. It is an intolerable situation. If Waukesha receives fresh water through pipes, then water returned to Lake Michigan should also go through pipes.

"I disagree with the County Executive's comments. This is not a knee-jerk reaction. I am looking out for the public health of Milwaukee County residents. Apparently, the County Executive does not share these serious concerns. That is disrespectful to the citizens of Milwaukee County.

"I am not running for higher office, and I am not willing to risk the health and safety of the County's residents. We cannot, and must not, put the lives of our citizens in jeopardy, especially when Waukesha has other options for returning this water to Lake Michigan.

"As the debate over this issue wears on, Milwaukee County should be given a seat at the table. When deals are cut between the City of Milwaukee and the City of Waukesha, and Milwaukee County's waterways are impacted, I believe the County should have a direct vote on the matter."

Subject: Bucyrus jobs

Hey all – we just saw the news Bucyrus is most likely adding 500 jobs. Barrett is saying he helped bring these jobs here. We need to send something out from the CE office fast. – maybe include the below article from 2005 too?

I did a quickie draft but Scott you may know better how to characterize what you "did" to keep them here. Obviously, my numbers only come from this article ...

"Milwaukee County helped back $16 million in bonds for Bucyrus in 2005 to prevent the company from being forced to relocate, keeping Milwaukee County families working. Today's news that Bucyrus may add 500 jobs is a testament to their good work and many partnerships that kept Bucyrus here." Or something like that.

Houston beckoned for Bucyrus

Milwaukee work ethic outweighed cost advantages elsewhere
The Business Journal of Milwaukee - by Rich Rovito

The reliability and experience of its local work force played a major role in Bucyrus International Inc.'s decision to keep the company's operations in South Milwaukee and invest as much as $95 million in the sprawling industrial complex.

Management of the mining equipment manufacturer had strongly considered moving the company's production operations to Houston, which has an easily accessible port, plentiful nonunion labor and less expensive health care premiums, said Tim Sullivan, Bucyrus' president and chief executive officer.

If the company had moved production out of state, it would only have been a matter of time before the corporate headquarters would have followed, Sullivan said in an interview.

"It would have been the beginning of the end for Bucyrus in South Milwaukee," he said.

Bucyrus announced Aug. 25 that it will add about 200 jobs under a plan to expand its South Milwaukee operations to meet increasing demand for mining equipment. The expansion will occur in phases, beginning with a $22 million, 110,000-square-foot addition to a portion of the South Milwaukee complex north of East Rawson Avenue. Bucyrus plans to break ground on the expansion by the end of October.

About 100 new employees will be hired during the initial phase of expansion, Sullivan said. The new workers will be in addition to 100 employees the company is hiring for its Milwaukee plant at West Oklahoma and South Chase avenues.

Number crunching

Company management began seriously considering a move from South Milwaukee immediately after the company's stock went public in July 2004, Sullivan said. The final decision came down to whether to move to Houston or Pocatello, Idaho, where Bucyrus formerly ran a factory, or to remain in South Milwaukee.

For months, Bucyrus' financial experts crunched numbers comparing the cost of doing business in the three cities. Costs for South Milwaukee were considerably higher, especially when compared with Houston. There, welders earn about $15 an hour, compared with about $22 per hour at the South Milwaukee plant, Sullivan said. Houston was also rated as less expensive than Pocatello.

When adding health care and other costs into the mix, the cost differential per employee is about $10 more per hour in South Milwaukee as compared with Houston, he said.

Despite the huge cost disparity, Bucyrus management determined that production workers in Texas, where Bucyrus runs a repair facility, don't have the dedication to their jobs exhibited by the work force in South Milwaukee.

"The work ethic is not nearly as strong in Texas," Sullivan said.

In addition, the high skill level and experience of Bucyrus' South Milwaukee work force leads to minimal scrap and rework in the manufacturing process, Sullivan said.

The decision to keep production in South Milwaukee is a "testament to the work ethic and skills" of the factory-floor workers, said Doug Drake, director of the Wisconsin office of the United Steelworkers union.

Bucyrus has about 850 employees in South Milwaukee, about half of whom are hourly production workers represented by the United Steelworkers Local 1343.

Bucyrus' decision to expand locally also should serve as a "cautionary note" to companies considering moving production from Wisconsin to areas of the country that offer less expensive labor, Drake said.

"If you are simply chasing dollars and not looking at skills you may end up getting what you pay for," he said.

To make it feasible to maintain its South Milwaukee plants, Bucyrus sought assistance from the state, Milwaukee County and the city of South Milwaukee.

The Wisconsin Department of Commerce is providing $2.5 million in incentives. An additional $1 million in incentives will come from the state Department of Transportation.

Milwaukee County has offered to back bonds that the city of South Milwaukee would issue for the creation of a $16 million tax incremental financing district. With the backing of the county, South Milwaukee will be able to secure a lower interest rate on the bonds, thus reducing the amount the city would have to pay to create the tax incremental financing district.

"It spreads out the risk," said Milwaukee County Executive Scott Walker. "It's a shrewd risk to take because Bucyrus is growing."

Walker said the county also is working to secure $10 million in new market tax credits for the Bucyrus expansion project.

Sullivan said Bucyrus intends to finance the bulk of the expansion through working capital and funds available under its existing revolving credit facility, but the company will look for "continued support" from the state and county.

Analysts at Robert W. Baird & Co. Inc., Milwaukee, maintained an "outperform" rating on Bucyrus shares upon the announcement of the capital improvement project. The firm has set a $45 per share price target. Bucyrus shares closed at $41.91 on Aug. 30.

"We consider Bucyrus' announced capital investment program to be a favorable development," analyst Robert McCarthy wrote in a research note Aug. 25.

The expansion also will improve overall manufacturing productivity at the South Milwaukee plant, "effectively making up for constrained spending during the last decade," McCarthy wrote.

Bucyrus may add more than 500 jobs

By Rick Barrett of the Journal Sentinel

Posted: April 23, 2010 10:42 a.m. | (5) COMMENTS

Bucyrus International (BUCY) sa d Friday it might add more than 500 jobs in Milwaukee as the result of acquiring an underground mining equipment company.

"It's a work in progress, but it looks pos tive that we will be increasing employment beyond what we projected," CEO Tim Sullivan said in an interview.

In February, Bucyrus acquired the mining division of Terex Corp., based in Westport, Conn.

The acquisition was expected to create between 300 and 500 jobs in Milwaukee, including several hundred manufacturing positions and Terex employees transferred from Connecticut.

The new jobs are expected over the next two to three years.

"I think it's safe to say those numbers will go up rather than down," Sullivan said.

Thursday, Bucyrus reported a $35 million quarterly prof t, down from $56.9 mill on a year ago. Sales were down 0.3% to $605.7 million.

Last year's first quarter included a large order from the Czech Republic, making a year-over-year comparison difficult. And the first quarter of 2010 included results from Terex .

"There was a lot of noise in the numbers," Sullivan said. The timing of one deal, such as the Czech Republic sale, can greatly affect quarterly results.

Coal mining equipment accounts for more than half of Bucyrus' revenue.

Overall, the coal market trends are still favorable, analyst Charles Brady with BMO Capital Markets said in a note to clients.

Milwaukee County medical examiner resigns

By Ryan Haggerty of the Journal Sentinel

Posted: April 23, 2010 2:22 p.m. | (0) Comments

Milwaukee County Medical Examiner Christopher Happy resigned from his position Friday.
The resignation is effective immediately, Happy said in an interview. He said he is returning to Los Angeles to help care for an ill relative.
Happy, a Los Angeles native, said his resignation "has nothing to do with the office. It is for personal reasons."
Happy, 39, took over the office on Aug. 1, 2008. He was a pathologist with the Santa Clara County medical examiner-coroner's office in San Jose, Calif., before being hired by Milwaukee County.
Happy was paid $255,000 a year, about $35,000 a year more than his predecessor, Jeffrey Jentzen, who retired in Feb. 2008.
Happy's salary made him the county's highest-paid employee.
"I'm pretty proud of the way that I left (the medical examiner's office)," Happy said Friday. "I think I even left it a little bit better than when I came."

The County Executive has asked that we conduct a conference call daily at 8:00 a.m. to review events of the day or of a previous or future day, so we can better coordinate sound, timely responses, so we all know what the others are doing. We will begin these conference calls on Monday, April 26. These will not be long duration calls as we have much work on our plates, but good coordination will help is resolve issues before they blow out of proportion. I am looking forward to your input and support.

When possible, these calls will be conducted for staff in the County Executive's office, although that is not an absolute, as I know there will be conflicts. It may take a few minutes to get this goind for the first few days, as I have no idea how to conduct a conference call with so many parties. I'm hoping Tim will help. He's our expert.

The effects of these calls will be analyzed as to the effectiveness on an ongoing basis.

Make it Work Milwaukee/Mental Health Task Force Update

Calling all advocates! Hard to believe but another Milwaukee county budget is upon us. The County Exec is hosting 3 listening sessions - this is an important opportunity to make our voices heard and share our budget priorities including funding for mental health services, paratransit/transit services, disability services, 211, senior services, etc.

This is going to be a very tough budget and we need to have a strong showing at these sessions. Please try to attend and speak at a listening sessions - see details below and attached.

WALKER TO HOLD PUBLIC LISTENING SESSIONS ON 2011 BUDGET

MILWAUKEE – County Executive Scott Walker will hold three public listening sessions to give county residents the opportunity to comment on the 2011 Budget. Department heads will join

Walker to listen to public comment in advance of submitting departmental budget proposals for the coming year.

Walker will give an overview of the fiscal outlook for 2011 as he begins planning for the 2011 budget process. Public input is sought for the preliminary budget planning process.

Tim Schoewe reports that the Medical Examiner is not bound by the residency requirements under the County's Civil Service rules. (I have a copy). He also reports that the ME is suppose to be appointed under s.59.38, not s.59.17 (we used the wrong stat for Dr. Happy).

Dr. Happy was hired under your emergency appointment powers at $255,000. In Jan 2008, he received a 1% COLA, which increased his pay to $257,550.00. The high end of the ME pay range is $231,741.00. Peterson's current salary is $202,000.00, so his increase to the top of the range would be $29,741.00. If you TAHC him to Happy's salary, and ultimately seek his appointment, he would realize a salary increase of $55,500.00. Happy had to cover his own relocation costs, as I recall. Peterson will not be required to move.

Unfortunately – he has to do the events that morning for the campaign. They are a business forum with Kenosha business leaders then talking to the hunters at the Conservation Congress.

I would suggest going with the citation or proclamation route.

Sherrie is accurate that the CEX doesn't know his schedule. He is booked solid all morning on the 7th and is not available to attend. Would a letter or citation be appropriate for Sherrie to read on behalf of SKW? Please let me know what I can tell Sherrie. Thanks.

Dorothy:

When I saw the Exec for the Palermo's Easter Basket event I asked him if he would do us the favor of participating in the Letter Carriers Olympics on Friday May 7 at 9am at Hunger Task Force. He agreed but I know he isn't in charge of his schedule.

This is a media event that calls attention to the Letter Carriers Food Drive. The drive is a Statewide event, organized by Hunger Task Force and our own Branch 2. The entire event will take less than an hour.

Can you see if he is still willing and available?

Sherrie

I'm assuming we want to focus on the tax angle? Something like this?

"I've worked to find ways to do more with less to create a budget surplus while Tom Barrett chooses to increase taxes every year – this year by over 4% - so that he can claim good management. You would think consistent budget surpluses in Milwaukee would mean consistent tax cuts, but this is obviously that's not how Tom Barrett thinks. I cringe to think of the tax increases Barrett will need to propose to fill Jim Doyle's $2 billion budget hole."

Police and sheriff involved. If they can not determine the nature of the substance they may have to initiate EOC (Emergency Operation Center) in conjunction with Homeland Security. Bus is also quarantined because operator drove it to Wisconsin Ave. before noticing numbness. Transit center still quarantined. (Officer mentioned it might be cocaine).
Nothing is being said to the media on this per HSA procedure. If Jackie gets any inquiries she will say she does not have information to relay at this point and will get back to them.

I think that we need to have someone strong to knock this down – call it what it is – a political witch hunt.

Maybe a supervisor? Keith mentioned Rice? We will have to work fast – someone to say a statement along the lines of "Its unacceptable to be playing political games with the lives of the people in this facility"

Agreed – just talked to Scott – He wanted a state rep.

Just got off the phone with Alberta Darling. She will help, as long as she's comfortable sending what we give her. We need to get to her asap.

Who is putting this together? She needs the letter, as well as a draft statement.

My only concern with doing that now is that we will end up bringing attention to the issue when right now no one is paying attention. Having it put together so we can react with it if the story is picked up would be good.

I think that her statement should be short and to the point (something like this):

"This press conference is a political stunt that ignores the facts. Inspectors found that the Milwaukee County Mental Health Complex is in compliance with federal and state regulations. The county continues to be eligible for federal funds. It is outrageous that some are trying to use patients as political pawns."

Assuming we are in agreement, we need to find a personal email for someone on her staff to get this language (or read it to them over the phone). It should NOT be emailed to her official account.

Jill, this is all we need to know. Let's get Alberta's statement to all Milwaukee media – and in advance of the presser.

One other angle – is that our release doesn't address the safety issue. You might want to reinforce that they are safe in some form if you can.

Hey all –

I hear the Dems are throwing a presser politicizing BHD today – here is a statement from State Senator Alberta Darling. I've also attached the letter that shows BHD is in full compliance. Tx – Jill

"This press conference is a political stunt that ignores the facts. Inspectors found that the Milwaukee County Mental Health Complex is in compliance with federal and state regulations. The county continues to be eligible for federal funds. It is outrageous that some are trying to use the lives of patients as political pawns." - Sen. Alberta Darling

We should make sure Corporation Counsel is prepared to say something like this:

Milwaukee County is in compliance with federal and state regulations for the operations of the mental health complex. The county takes seriously the treatment of patients and the safety of patients, visitors and stafff at the complex.

Subject: MEDIA - CH4 on BHD news conf.

Scott Steele from Ch4 is covering the BHD "hospital crisis (as they are calling it) news conference of state reps and supervisors on the issue of no action/lack of reporting on sexual assaults there. He said it is "potentially politically motivated" and wants your comment.
