Katie replied to and satisfied my inquiries. I agree to serve as the agent for service of process for your new LLC for whatever time is necessary to document and record the project, but with the understanding that sufficiently prior to your releasing the project, you will substitute another person in my place to serve as the agent for service of process for whatever remainder of time that the LLC will continue in existence. Is that agreeable with you? Please let me know. Cordially, Phil Cronin

P.S. Here is the information that you will need for filing the Agent for Service of Process:

Phillip S. Cronin

Hi Phil. Good to talk with you this morning. This is the form used to organize a new LLC in the state of California: <http://www.sos.ca.gov/business/llc/forms/llc-1.pdf>

Something I forgot to mention is we can change the Agent for Service of Process at any time later down the line. So, when it gets nearer to the time that we release this project, we could easily switch you out for someone else, even an LLDF attorney or just me at that point because it wouldn't matter anymore.

Thanks!

-David

I apologize for not getting back to you sooner today, but the first time that I had to look at my piled up e-mails was almost midnight. Katie spoke briefly to me after Mass Sunday about serving as agent for service of process for your new corporation. I am interested, but would like to discuss the matter with you.

I would like to know some specifics about you, your new corporation, your goals, your legal status, etc. I realize that agent for service of process is self explanatory, but would like you to give me a fuller account of the duties, time requirements, expenses and liabilities - if any - of the position.

My telephone number is [REDACTED]. Tomorrow, my wife and I will be at home until about 11 am, will be out for about 3-4 hours (back about 2 - 3pm) and then out for dinner about 5pm until 8pm. I will try calling you sometime tomorrow mid morning. Look forward to talking with you. Cordially, Phil Cronin

Hi Phil,

I'm David Daleiden, the researcher heading up the pro-life investigative project Katie Short mentioned to you on Sunday. For the past 6 months I've been working on a long-term investigation and expose of a shocking and disturbing phenomenon in the abortion industry that I believe makes Kermit Gosnell look mild by comparison. It implicates Planned Parenthood in multiple state and federal felonies.

Like Katie said, I'm looking for someone who would be willing to act as the Agent for Service of Process for a new corporation we are starting up as part of a specific upcoming operation. Are you free to talk about this later today?

Thanks! Together in the fight,

-David Daleiden

Phil, I asked my husband about your questions, since he is more familiar with corporate law than I am.

First, s for the third of the four requirements you listed he said that is just needs to be a "good" address for you. No one will fault you for going on vacation or otherwise not being there 8 hours a day, five days a week.

This is particularly so as David & Co. don't expect there to be anything served, because their corporation is not actually going to be conducting any business. They are going to toy with conducting business, but stop well short of signing any contracts or the like.

Here's what Bill said as to your questions 1 - 3:

- > Filing and costs, none that I've ever seen.
- > Termination of office -- I vaguely recall that agents can resign unilaterally. I believe I have done so by simply writing to the Secretary of State.
- > Civil liability -- none that I am aware of, other than to fail to notify the principal of papers served on you. It is just a ministerial role.
