hey samba happy sunday. i hope you are well and getting some rest or golfing of course.
i plan on arriving on monday in palm beach and staying at either your house/druck/or Jimmys whatever is easiest. hopefully they are all close together regardless.. i will stay in palm beach on tues and wed for golf and then fly up to augusta on thur and golf then on friday.
hopefully someone can pick up my wife and kids on friday and fly them from boston pick me up at augusta and then continue on to san jose costa rica on friday. let me know if that works sambo. it is my pleasure to help it will be a lot of fun to play some golf and obviously would love to talk with adam i hope he kicks some ass at doral.
let me know how that sounds and i can always adjust to based on your schedule but i would love to get a few rounds of golf with you in as well. take care talk soon

Hey Tom! Hope you had a great time away.

I have been in touch with Alex about this. I completely dropped the ball bc I have been non-stop with the psi stuff. I forgot to forward the invoice for payment. There was no intentional stalling...I have just been at full tilt with the madness.

I spoke with Jim Wilson on Thursday. He was out of the office until tomorrow but he promised this is the first thing he will do.

Alex was very understanding and let me off the hook quickly but I apologized to him, and I apologize to you.

I have a note in my calendar to follow up with Jim in the morning.

Best, R

Hi Tom!

In response:

1. I am not sure we registered any IP that you did not already have – you own TB12. In fact, I had asked Steve [redacted] for a license for TB12 LLC to use TB12. I even sent them a sample license agreement. I'll see if I can find that correspondence and send it to you. I will, of course, continue to think through IP protection and strategy with you, Alex and Jeff, if you wish. I'm not sure what level you want my involvement to be going forward but I remain ready and willing to support in any way I can the development and growth of TB12, as little or as much as you wish.

2. I have forwarded a full list of all registered domain names to you and Alex in the past. I will see if I can find those emails and re-send them.

3. I don't know of any other partner agreements, but I will look back at my emails.

4. I think that Alex entered into a lot of the vendor agreements directly (i.e., cleaning crew). I am not sure what we have here. I don't remember having anything but I will check with Jim Wilson. I will check with HR because there may be an agreement with the payroll company. Also, there was a retainer with Ernst & Young to do your taxes last year. Will you be taking over taxes this year or do you want us to have E&Y do yours again? If so, you'll need to sign another retainer with them. Please let me know so I can get that done.

I should definitely meet with Jeff live. That would be most efficient. He and I have discussed doing that but I have honestly been tied up 24/7 on the psi matter. In the building before 6am most every day and not home until 8 – 9pm. I just need a bit longer – until after your interview next week – to be available. Once I free up, I will get the employment agreement for Jeff and the independent contractor agreement for Tony finalized, and also the stock option documents. All of these are in motion with our outside counsel but need more babysitting by me.

Tony's Q1 payment is being processed now. It is best for TB12 – especially if you want to maintain Tony's status as an independent contractor (as viewed under MA law) and not as an employee – for Tony to submit invoices. However, if you want to set up a recurring payment, you can do that once the IC agreement is done.

You are welcome to take back any part of the back-office functions. We have been expecting you to do so at some point – especially now that Jeff is there – but we have continued to do so until you tell us otherwise, as an accommodation until Jeff is situated and ready. We are happy to transition and all of this whenever Jeff is ready (we can do it in steps if that is better for him, too).

Best, R

Hi Robyn — as you know, TB12 is working on setting up new partnerships, growing staff, and getting our message out to more people. As you've discussed with [redacted] we've hired Jeff Surette and Tony Tjan to help implement our vision for TB12. As such, I am hoping that you can help them track down some information and work on a few administrative action steps.

Here are the areas where I hope you can help:

* Intellectual Property. [redacted]
* Partner Agreements. [redacted]
* Vendor Agreements.[redacted]

If it's easier, I can ask Jeff to set a time to meet with you. In addition to these informational requests, I need your help with a few things:

* Employment Agreements. [redacted]

* Reviewing Support Functions. [redacted]

Thank you for all your help!

Also – and I think this may have been discussed before – is the Kraft Group legally transferring the ownership of the below domains to TB12?

Finally – buying TB12.com <http://TB12.com> should be pursued and I like the school project idea or something akin. If there is a call at some point, don't use a Boston area phone – 617/781/508 – for obvious reasons

It's interesting — someone's owned the TB12.com <http://TB12.com> domain for 13 years, so it's possible that they're not a squatter and just like the "TB12" name, which is probably a better situation for us.

Last week Tony suggested that — if we did want to try to buy TB12.com <http://TB12.com> — we should do everything possible to conceal the real identity of the buyer. Apparently he's gotten good deals in the past by having interns convince squatters that they're doing school projects, etc. It's worth doing whatever we can, I suppose.

Anyway, here's the status of the most relevant domain names I could come up with. Let me know if there are others that you think I should check. Anything in red is owned by someone else, anything in green by us / RKK. Given that these cost $10/year to register, I'd recommend that we lock up all / most these available names.

There's been content on TB12.com <http://TB12.com> <http://TB12.com> since February 2014 and it was last updated in May 2014.

I think it makes sense to try to buy this domain. And if we're going to do that, it would be wise to make the attempt before we start launching products / communicating the message more widely.

Just replying to you and Alex - Jeff is working, as is Tony, but Robyn injected herself into the legal docs - their contracts and equity. I called for an update right after the Colts game and she was super stressed about dealing with the NFL regarding PSIs. She said would get to Tony and Jeff final docs, with the outside law firm, and keep it moving. Since the psi drama continued and the SB was upcoming I decided to lay low until tomorrow. I will reapply the pressure then.
Ultimately, we need to control these things but since she has been very generous with her time in the past, we should be gentle, b/c she loves TB12 (and TB,,,heehee)

1. Economics with TT/JS – all set. Comp and equity will be reviewed annually. They are employed/retained now and everyone should use them as you would any employee. AG – it is my understanding that JS will begin showing up daily at Gillette on Monday. We need to get them on payroll – maybe JS can work with Robyn on Monday (see below)

2. Benefits – as PM agreed with AG, TB12 will reimburse JS for his COBRA healthcare payments until TB12 institutes a normal employee benefits plan – JS will make overall benefits proposal to the Board as part of the “First 100 Days”

3. Profits Interest – TT has been pushing me to institute a minimum annual pro rata profits distribution – Meaning, for example, if the Company earns $1mm and TT owns 2%, he will receive an additional $20,000. I argued against instituting any policy now as it is early stage company and cash must be cherished. When and if the company hits “steady state”, the Board will consider if a minimum pro rata profits distribution (over and above the tax distribution) should be created. He said ok.

4. Company valuation when issuing stock – I raised this in an earlier email – this is an open item. There is a balance here. If we set the company value too high, JS/TT will not be motivated by equity. If we set it too low, there is more implied dilution of the existing shareholders. I suggest we discuss a number with $2.5mm as the low end and $10mm as the high. I remind everyone that when TB bought RKK's shares, the value was $2.5mm. MB has more experience w/ this than I do. Thoughts? This is a Board decision – meaning it needs to be a formal process b/c the IRS cares about the valuation being reasonably defendable.

5. Jeff's title – they suggested his title be Senior Vice President for now. Nice and innocuous. The COO title implies more of an internal role (As compared with biz dev – which obviously is external). SVP is a good 'tweener. I had already discussed this possibility with AG and he/we were indifferent. I agreed- but also said the title may change if we deem that in the best interest of TB12. They agreed.

6. Legal docs – SCS had drafted offer letters, equity grants docs, an equity incentive plan and had reviewed the existing LLC agreement to identify what needs to change based on the above evolutions. I spoke with Robyn Glaser yesterday and sent her all of our drafts. She will be speaking with Morgan Lewis, the law firm that drafted the original docs (which were very well done). Robyn, Morgan Lewis and I will be speaking early next week about what we need and me answering any questions they have. I imagine that within 10 days we will receive all docs, at which point TT/JS will ask their lawyer to review. They asked for $1500 legal expense reimbursement for this review – this is a normal ask – I accepted this. Robyn, as always, was 100% supportive.

7. They have done a ton of planning already – I attached a pdf of the docs I received last night – apologies for not laminating the pdf……..

PS – one nit that slightly irks me – TT keeps referring to himself as the Board Chair or the Lead Director – and last night said to me, "As you suggested". One, I think TB is the Chair and TT is the Board Mtg Organizer (BMO). So if he needs a title, BMO would be fine. Ha. Second – I never suggested or said anything like that.

Hey Tom! Hope you had a great time away.

I have been in touch with Alex about this. I completely dropped the ball bc I have been non-stop with the psi stuff. I forgot to forward the invoice for payment. There was no intentional stalling...I have just been at full tilt with the madness.

I spoke with Jim Wilson on Thursday. He was out of the office until tomorrow but he promised this is the first thing he will do.

Alex was very understanding and let me off the hook quickly but I apologized to him, and I apologize to you.

I have a note in my calendar to follow up with Jim in the morning.

Best, R

Hi Robyn — as you know, TB12 is working on setting up new partnerships, growing staff, and getting our message out to more people. As you've discussed with [redacted], we've hired Jeff Surette and Tony Tjan to help implement our vision for TB12. As such, I am hoping that you can help them track down some information and work on a few administrative action steps.

Here are the areas where I hope you can help:

It's owned by an outfit called "Technology by Twelve" and was actually registered by "Wilfred Smith" from San Jose, CA back in October of 2002. http://whois.domaintools.com/tb12.com

There's been content on TB12.com <http://TB12.com> since February 2014 and it was last updated in May 2014.

I think it makes sense to try to buy this domain. And if we're going to do that, it would be wise to make the attempt before we start launching products / communicating the message more widely.

Hi Tom!

In response:

1. I am not sure we registered any IP that you did not already have – you own TB12. In fact, I had asked Steve/[redacted] for a license for TB12 LLC to use TB12. I even sent them a sample license agreement. I'll see if I can find that correspondence and send it to you. I will, of course, continue to think through IP protection and strategy with you, Alex and Jeff, if you wish. I'm not sure what level you want my involvement to be going forward but I remain ready and willing to support in any way I can the development and growth of TB12, as little or as much as you wish.

2. I have forwarded a full list of all registered domain names to you and Alex in the past. I will see if I can find those emails and re-send them.

3. I don't know of any other partner agreements, but I will look back at my emails.

4. I think that Alex entered into a lot of the vendor agreements directly (i.e., cleaning crew). I am not sure what we have here. I don't remember having anything but I will check with Jim Wilson. I will check with HR because there may be an agreement with the payroll company. Also, there was a retainer with Ernst & Young to do your taxes last year. Will you be taking over taxes this year or do you want us to have E&Y do yours again? If so, you'll need to sign another retainer with them. Please let me know so I can get that done.

I should definitely meet with Jeff live. That would be most efficient. He and I have discussed doing that but I have honestly been tied up 24/7 on the psi matter. In the building before 6am most every day and not home until 8 – 9pm. I just need a bit longer – until after your interview next week – to be available. Once I free up, I will get the employment agreement for Jeff and the independent contractor agreement for Tony finalized, and also the stock option documents. All of these are in motion with our outside counsel but need more babysitting by me.

Tony's Q1 payment is being processed now. It is best for TB12 – especially if you want to maintain Tony's status as an independent contractor (as viewed under MA law) and not as an employee – for Tony to submit invoices. However, if you want to set up a recurring payment, you can do that once the IC agreement is done.

You are welcome to take back any part of the back-office functions. We have been expecting you to do so at some point – especially now that Jeff is there – but we have continued to do so until you tell us otherwise, as an accommodation until Jeff is situated and ready. We are happy to transition and all of this whenever Jeff is ready (we can do it in steps if that is better for him, too).

Best, R

I've been thru this once before and it is painful. The squatter, by definition, is a douche bag and is very difficult to reason with. But we can try.
In lieu of that – do we own tbtwelve, tbrady12, etc and have we thought up every possible future permutation, like uatb12 and tb12ua and, tb12brain, tb125rings (ha ha-trying to be aspirational big guy) etc?
Since the urls from Network Solutions are so cheap, it is worth brainstorming on this – ya never know

It's interesting — someone's owned the TB12.com <http://TB12.com> domain for 13 years, so it's possible that they're not a squatter and just like the "TB12" name, which is probably a better situation for us.

Last week Tony suggested that — if we did want to try to buy TB12.com <http://TB12.com> — we should do everything possible to conceal the real identity of the buyer. Apparently he's gotten good deals in the past by having interns convince squatters that they're doing school projects, etc. It's worth doing whatever we can, I suppose.

Anyway, here's the status of the most relevant domain names I could come up with. Let me know if there are others that you think I should check. Anything in red is owned by someone else, anything in green by us / RKK. Given that these cost $10/year to register, I'd recommend that we lock up all / most these available names.

Nice work – lots of good ones available – Given the low cost, I would take 'em all. Reason is both offense and defense. Offense is b/c we may use it. Defense is prevent others (think Chinese) from setting up fake websites selling fake TB12 products.

Also – and I think this may have been discussed before – is the Kraft Group legally transferring the ownership of the below domains to TB12?

Finally – buying TB12.com should be pursued and I like the school project idea or something akin. If there is a call at some point, don't use a Boston area phone – 617/781/508 – for obvious reasons

Don't worry abt what to say March 9...,you can speak abt some of the high/lows last season , what your life is like /maybe too personal n gives away your edge to competitors/ this past season on a weekly basis, how you beat me one time in golf , etc etc..... You can take 10 minutes or 30 minutes ... Then have a Q and A... I screen all questions / ie no freaking PSI stuff/ and as I did with Druck I plant 4/5 questions .. There will be NO media!!!!

Hope Alex can come as I'd like him to say a few words ... And if your Dad comes how your 3 sisters were better athletes and better looking than you..

Will be 700 + people /// club members and their guests only///but for sure not a formal "speech"... In fact 25% my age and we can't remember anything you said 20 minutes later anyway.

I will reapply the pressure then.

In the winter the water level is lowered so when it freezes the tile does not get damaged. The pool cover on there now rests on top of the water to support its weight and it cannot hold the weight of the snow/ice in the winter. The winter cover is designed to support the weight and also allows water to drain through it so there is no need for pumping water off. It takes 2-3 weeks to get the cover, so yes we can wait another month.
I suggest a white cover to blend in with the snow or black.

ok…well we don't need to put that on until it starts snowing…maybe another month right?

The winter cover isn't retractable. It covers the whole pool and is tied down to the ground. Getting details. My friends with pools around here growing up had 2 covers as well.

Pool cover ($8,300) plus installation ($240) will be $8,540

Cover color samples are on the counter for you to see.

Also once the winter cover is on you can not use the jacuzzi.

I like the white cover also. Similar to the color we have now.

In the winter the water level is lowered so when it freezes the tile does not get damaged. The pool cover on there now rests on top of the water to support its weight and it cannot hold the weight of the snow/ice in the winter. The winter cover is designed to support the weight and also allows water to drain through it so there is no need for pumping water off. It takes 2-3 weeks to get the cover, so yes we can wait another month.
I suggest a white cover to blend in with the snow or black.
