2. The defendant EVAN GREEBEL was a resident of Scarsdale, New York, and an attorney licensed to practice law in New York. From approximately December 2012 to September 2014, GREEBEL was a partner in the New York office of Katten Muchin Rosenman LLP and served as lead outside counsel to Retrophin.

3. MSMB Capital was a Delaware limited partnership founded by the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI and Co-Conspirator 1, an individual whose identity is known to the Grand Jury, in or about September 2009. The securities offered to investors by MSMB Capital were limited partner interests, and investors in the fund became limited partners (the “Capital Limited Partners”). The sole general partner of MSMB Capital was MSMB Investors LLC, a Delaware limited liability company, which was controlled by SHKRELI. MSMB Capital Management LLC, a Delaware limited liability company controlled by SHKRELI, served as the investment adviser to MSMB Capital.

4. MSMB Healthcare was a Delaware limited partnership founded by the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI in or about February 2011. The securities offered to investors by MSMB Healthcare were limited partner interests, and investors in the fund became limited partners (the “Healthcare Limited Partners”). The sole general partner of MSMB Healthcare was MSMB Healthcare Investors LLC, a Delaware limited liability company, which was controlled by SHKRELI. MSMB Healthcare Management LLC, a Delaware limited liability company controlled by SHKRELI, served as the investment adviser to MSMB Healthcare.

5. Retrophin LLC (“Retrophin LLC”) was a Delaware limited liability company founded by the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI in or about March 2011. At its inception, Retrophin LLC focused on finding a cure for children who suffered from muscular dystrophy.

6. Retrophin was a Delaware corporation founded by the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI in or about 2011. In or about December 2012, Retrophin became a publicly traded company that traded under the ticker symbol RTRX on the Over-the-Counter (OTC) markets. In or about January 2014, Retrophin began trading on the NASDAQ Global Market under the ticker symbol RTRX. Retrophin was a biopharmaceutical company focused on the discovery, acquisition, development and commercialization of drugs for the treatment of debilitating and life-threatening diseases for which there are currently limited patient options.

II. The Fraudulent Schemes

7. In or about and between September 2009 and September 2014, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI, together with the defendant EVAN GREEBEL and others, orchestrated three interrelated fraudulent schemes:

a. a scheme to defraud investors and potential investors in MSMB Capital by inducing them to invest in MSMB Capital through material misrepresentations and omissions about, inter alia, the prior performance of the fund, its assets under management and the retaining of an independent auditor and administrator; and then by preventing redemptions by investors in MSMB Capital through material misrepresentations and omissions about, inter alia, the performance of the fund and the misappropriation by SHKRELI and others of fund assets;

b. a scheme to defraud investors and potential investors in MSMB Healthcare by inducing them to invest in MSMB Healthcare through material misrepresentations and omissions about, inter alia, the prior performance of the fund, its assets under management and existing liabilities; and then by preventing redemptions by the investors through material misrepresentations and omissions about, inter alia, the performance of the fund and the misappropriation by SHKRELI and others of fund assets; and

c. a scheme to defraud Retrophin by misappropriating Retrophin's assets through material misrepresentations and omissions in an effort to satisfy SHKRELI's personal and unrelated professional debts and obligations. Specifically, SHKRELI, assisted by GREEBEL and others, defrauded Retrophin by causing it to: (i) transfer Retrophin shares to MSMB Capital even though MSMB Capital never invested in Retrophin; (ii) enter into settlement agreements with defrauded MSMB Capital and MSMB Healthcare investors to settle liabilities owed by the MSMB Capital and MSMB Healthcare funds (the "MSMB Funds") and SHKRELI; and (iii) enter into sham consulting agreements with other defrauded MSMB Capital, MSMB Healthcare and Elea Capital investors as an alternative means to settle liabilities owed by the MSMB Funds and SHKRELI.

A. The MSMB Capital Hedge Fund Scheme

8. In or about and between September 2009 and December 2010, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI, together with Co-Conspirator 1, in an effort to induce investments in MSMB Capital, represented to potential investors, inter alia, that: (i) MSMB Capital was a transparent investment vehicle for sophisticated investors with monthly liquidity; (ii) the investment adviser was entitled to receive a one percent management fee per year based on net assets of the partnership; (iii) the general partner was entitled to receive twenty percent of the limited partners' net profits for the year; and (iv) MSMB Capital had retained independent certified public accountants as auditors who would issue an audit report on the annual financial statements. Based on these representations and additional representations about SHKRELI's success as a portfolio manager and personal investment in the fund, from approximately September 2009 through November 2010, SHKRELI, together with Co-Conspirator 1, induced investments of approximately $700,000 from a total of four Capital Limited Partners. In fact, MSMB Capital did not retain an independent auditor, was not transparent and did not have the necessary monthly liquidity to satisfy large redemption requests. Additionally, SHKRELI failed to disclose to the Capital Limited Partners that he had lost all the money he managed in Elea Capital, his prior hedge fund, and that there was a $2.3 million default judgment against him from Lehman Brothers resulting from his trading activity.

9. In approximately December 2010 and January 2011, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI, together with others, continued to induce investments in MSMB Capital based on material misrepresentations and omissions. On or about December 2, 2010, Investor 1, a Capital Limited Partner whose identity is known to the Grand Jury and whom SHKRELI had been encouraging to invest in MSMB Capital since early 2010, asked SHKRELI in an email about, inter alia, the fund's assets under management and the names of its independent auditor and fund administrator. SHKRELI told Investor 1 that MSMB Capital had $35 million in assets under management and that the fund's independent auditor and administrator were Rothstein, Kass & Company, P.C. ("Rothstein Kass") and NAV Consulting Inc. ("NAV Consulting"), respectively. At the time of this representation, MSMB Capital did not have an independent auditor or administrator, and SHKRELI had lost through trading the approximately $700,000 that had been invested by the four Capital Limited Partners. In fact, as of November 30, 2010, the value of assets in MSMB Capital's bank and brokerage accounts totaled approximately $700.

10. In reliance on the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI's material misrepresentations and omissions, on or about December 8, 2010, Investor 1 sent $1,000,000 by wire transfer to MSMB Capital's brokerage account. Approximately one month later, on or about January 5, 2011, Investor 1 sent $250,000 by wire transfer to MSMB Capital's brokerage account. In approximately January 2011, three additional individuals invested approximately $1,000,000 in MSMB Capital based on SHKRELI's material misrepresentations and omissions. In sum, eight investors, whose identities are known to the Grand Jury, invested a total of approximately $3 million in MSMB Capital.

11. On or about February 1, 2011, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI took a large short sale position in Orexigen Therapeutics, Inc. ("OREX") in MSMB Capital's brokerage account at Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Incorporated ("Merrill Lynch"). Specifically, SHKRELI sold short over 32 million shares of OREX. Contrary to SHKRELI's representations to Merrill Lynch, MSMB Capital had failed to locate OREX shares to borrow in order to settle MSMB Capital's short sales. As a result, MSMB Capital failed to settle a short position of over 11 million shares of OREX, which Merrill Lynch ultimately closed at a loss of over $7 million. In addition to the losses in the Merrill Lynch account, MSMB Capital suffered over $1 million in other trading losses in approximately February 2011. Based on these trading losses, the value of assets in MSMB Capital's bank and brokerage accounts, not including the OREX losses at Merrill Lynch, declined from more than $1.12 million on or about January 31, 2011 to $58,500 at the end of February 2011. MSMB Capital did not engage in any trading after February 2011.

12. In furtherance of the scheme of fraud, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI concealed MSMB Capital's true performance from the Capital Limited Partners. For months following the complete loss of the investments in MSMB Capital and the end of trading activity, SHKRELI continued to send fabricated performance updates to the Capital Limited Partners that touted profits of as high as forty percent since inception. For example, on or about April 10, 2011, SHKRELI sent an email to Investor 2, a Capital Limited Partner whose identity is known to the Grand Jury, informing him that MSMB Capital had returned a profit of 8.93 percent since the beginning of the year and a profit of 42.57 percent since inception on November 1, 2009. SHKRELI also informed Investor 2, who had first invested in MSMB Capital on or about November 1, 2009, that his total investment of $400,000 was now approximately $509,514. Similarly, on or about January 25, 2012, almost one year after MSMB Capital had ceased trading and lost all its assets, SHKRELI informed Investor 1 that his total investment of $1,250,000 was now “approximately $1,318,872, net of fees.”

13. The defendant MARTIN SHKRELI, together with Co-Conspirator 1, also misappropriated funds from MSMB Capital by withdrawing funds from MSMB Capital that were far in excess of the one percent management fee and the twenty percent net profit incentive allocation permitted by the partnership agreement. Specifically, without the Capital Limited Partners’ knowledge or consent, SHKRELI withdrew and spent more than $200,000 from MSMB Capital during the life of the fund, which was far in excess of any permitted fees.

14. On or about September 5, 2012, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI, Co-Conspirator 1 and MSMB Capital entered into a settlement agreement with Merrill Lynch to resolve a Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, Inc. (“FINRA”) arbitration proceeding in connection with the OREX trading losses of approximately $7 million. Pursuant to the settlement with Merrill Lynch, SHKRELI, Co-Conspirator 1 and MSMB Capital agreed to pay Merrill Lynch a total of $1,350,000 on or before December 15, 2012. Notably, in the settlement agreement, SHKRELI and Co-Conspirator 1 admitted that MSMB Capital had $0 in assets.

15. On or about September 10, 2012, a mere five days after the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI and Co-Conspirator 1 admitted that MSMB Capital had no assets, SHKRELI sent an email (the “Liquidation Email”) to the Capital Limited Partners, including Investor 2, and stated, in part: “I have decided to wind down our hedge fund partnerships with a goal of completing the liquidation of the funds by November or December 1st, 2012. . . .

Original MSMB investors (2009) have just about doubled their money net of fees. . . . investors will have their limited partnership interests redeemed by the fund for cash. Alternatively, investors may ask for a redemption of Retrophin shares, or a combination of Retrophin shares and cash.” Contrary to SHKRELI’s representations: (i) the MSMB Capital investors who invested in 2009 had lost their investments, not “doubled their money net of fees”; and (ii) SHKRELI had not yet fulfilled a redemption request by Investor 1, who had made the request in or about November 2011.

B. The MSMB Healthcare Hedge Fund Scheme

16. Following the collapse of MSMB Capital after the failed OREX trade, from approximately February 2011 to November 2012, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI, together with others, solicited investments in MSMB Healthcare from potential investors based on material misrepresentations and omissions about, inter alia, SHKRELI’s past performance as a portfolio manager. Specifically, SHKRELI and his co-conspirators concealed from potential investors SHKRELI’s disastrous past performance as a portfolio manager for MSMB Capital and Elea Capital and the $7 million liability that SHKRELI owed Merrill Lynch for the February 2011 OREX trades. For example, on or about April 7, 2011, Investor 3, a Healthcare Limited Partner whose identity is known to the Grand Jury, invested $1,000,000 in MSMB Healthcare following telephone conversations and meetings with SHKRELI and Corrupt Employee 1, an individual employed by SHKRELI whose identity is known to the Grand Jury, during which Investor 3 was provided with only positive information about SHKRELI, was never informed of SHKRELI’s performance with MSMB Capital and Elea Capital and was never informed about SHKRELI's liability to Merrill Lynch. In sum, thirteen individuals invested a total of approximately $5 million in MSMB Healthcare.

17. In furtherance of the scheme to defraud, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI made material misrepresentations to potential investors about MSMB Healthcare's assets under management. For example, on or about April 18, 2012, in response to an inquiry by a potential investor, SHKRELI informed Corrupt Employee 1 to tell the potential investor that MSMB Healthcare had $55 million in assets under management. At no point, from inception to liquidation, did the total amount of investments in MSMB Healthcare exceed $6 million.

18. The defendant MARTIN SHKRELI also made material misrepresentations to the Healthcare Limited Partners in an effort to prevent them from seeking redemption of their investments in MSMB Healthcare. In fact, on or about September 10, 2012, SHKRELI also sent the Liquidation Email to the Healthcare Limited Partners, including Investor 3. Contrary to SHKRELI's representations: (i) the original MSMB Capital investors who invested in 2009 had lost their investments, not "doubled their money net of fees"; and (ii) MSMB Healthcare did not have the necessary funds to have its limited partners redeem their investments for cash.

19. The defendant MARTIN SHKRELI, together with others, also misappropriated funds from MSMB Healthcare by withdrawing funds from MSMB Healthcare that were far in excess of the one percent management fee permitted by the partnership agreement and the twenty percent net profit incentive allocation afforded to the general partner of the fund. Additionally, without the Healthcare Limited Partners' knowledge or consent, SHKRELI improperly used MSMB Healthcare assets to pay for obligations that were not the responsibility of MSMB Healthcare. For example, SHKRELI caused assets from MSMB

Healthcare to be used to pay money owed by MSMB Capital, SHKRELI and Co-Conspirator 1 to settle claims brought by Merrill Lynch in connection with the failed OREX trades.

20. To achieve this fraudulent objective, in or about November 2012, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI improperly reclassified a $900,000 equity investment by MSMB Healthcare in Retrophin LLC as an interest-bearing loan through the use of a backdated promissory note, thereby causing 22,500 Retrophin LLC shares that had been issued to MSMB Healthcare at the time of the equity investment to be deleted from Retrophin LLC's capitalization table. A capitalization table is a record of all the major shareholders of a company, along with their pro-rata ownership of all the securities issued by the company (equity shares, preferred shares and options), and the various prices paid by these stakeholders for these securities. On or about January 18, 2013, SHKRELI caused Retrophin, the publicly traded company, to transfer $150,000 into MSMB Healthcare's bank account as partial payment of the improperly reclassified loan, $125,000 of which he wire transferred to Merrill Lynch to get an extension for a settlement payment owed by MSMB Capital, SHKRELI and Co-Conspirator 1. Finally, on or about March 4, 2012, SHKRELI caused Retrophin to transfer $773,000 into MSMB Healthcare's bank account as the remaining repayment of the "loan," which amount he then wire transferred that same day to Merrill Lynch to satisfy the debt owed to Merrill Lynch by SHKRELI, Co-Conspirator 1 and MSMB Capital pursuant to the OREX trade settlement.

C. The Retrophin Misappropriation Scheme

21. The defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, together with others, engaged in a scheme to defraud Retrophin by misappropriating Retrophin's assets through material misrepresentations and omissions in an effort to satisfy SHKRELI's personal and unrelated professional debts and obligations. Specifically, SHKRELI, assisted by GREEBEL and others, defrauded Retrophin by causing it to: (i) transfer Retrophin shares to MSMB Capital even though MSMB Capital never invested in Retrophin; (ii) enter into settlement agreements with defrauded MSMB Capital and MSMB Healthcare investors to settle liabilities owed by the MSMB Funds and SHKRELI; and (iii) enter into sham consulting agreements with other defrauded MSMB Capital, MSMB Healthcare and Elea Capital investors as an alternative means to settle liabilities owed by the MSMB Funds and SHKRELI.

(i). The Fabricated MSMB Capital Interest

22. In or about March 2011, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI valued Retrophin LLC as a $20 million company based on 100,000 outstanding shares and SHKRELI's valuation that each share or unit was worth $200, even though Retrophin LLC had no products or assets. In 2011 and 2012, SHKRELI began using MSMB Healthcare funds to invest in Retrophin LLC and solicited investments in Retrophin LLC, including additional investments from Capital Limited Partners and Healthcare Limited Partners who had been misled by SHKRELI and others that their investments were performing exceptionally well. These investments were recorded on Retrophin LLC's capitalization table.

23. As of July 31, 2012, Retrophin LLC's capitalization table, which was reviewed by the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, among others, revealed that MSMB Healthcare had invested approximately $2,135,000 in Retrophin LLC. The records did not reflect any investments by MSMB Capital. Similarly, as of September 5, 2012, the capitalization table, which was reviewed by SHKRELI and GREEBEL, among others, revealed approximately $5 million in investments in Retrophin LLC, but no investments by MSMB Capital. On or about November 14, 2012, Accounting Firm 1, which was retained by Retrophin LLC to review its books and records, was provided an updated capitalization table that revealed approximately $4.75 million in investments in Retrophin LLC, but no investments by MSMB Capital.

24. In or about November 2012, the defendant MARTIN SHKRELI responded to inquiries by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) about his management of MSMB Capital and MSMB Healthcare. On or about November 4, 2012, SHKRELI sent an email to the SEC, in which he stated, in part: “We have decided to end the MSMB limited partnerships . . . limited partners have been notified of the plans for the redemption of assets.” SHKRELI then grouped the MSMB Funds together and stated that Retrophin LLC was the “most successful and largest effort” of the MSMB group of funds, which included MSMB Capital. Additionally, SHKRELI claimed that MSMB Capital was still active, had $2,600,000 in assets under management and was in the process of being liquidated. Contrary to these representations, MSMB Capital had essentially no assets following the February 2011 OREX trades and was in debt to Merrill Lynch.

25. Faced with an SEC inquiry, the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, together with others, engaged in a scheme to fabricate an investment by MSMB Capital in Retrophin LLC and engineered a series of fraudulent transactions that were backdated to the summer of 2012 to create the appearance of an investment by MSMB Capital prior to the SEC inquiry. Specifically, in or about November and December 2012, SHKRELI and GREEBEL orchestrated a transfer of shares to SHKRELI from Co-Conspirator 1, as well as Corrupt Employee 1 and Corrupt Employee 2, individuals whose identities are known to the Grand Jury, and backdated them to the summer of 2012. SHKRELI then immediately transferred, also pursuant to a backdated agreement, 75,000 shares to MSMB Capital that he received from Co-Conspirator 1, Corrupt Employee 1 and Corrupt Employee 2. SHKRELI and

GREEBEL, together with others, convinced Co-Conspirator 1, Corrupt Employee 1 and Corrupt Employee 2 to transfer their Retrophin LLC shares to SHKRELI by enticing them with the opportunity to acquire, for a nominal amount, approximately five percent of the unrestricted or free trading shares of Retrophin, the publicly traded company that SHKRELI was in the process of creating through a reverse merger. The following series of emails provides a glimpse into the scheme perpetrated by SHKRELI and GREEBEL:

a. On or about November 20, 2012, GREEBEL provided RTRX Employee 1, an individual whose identity is known to the Grand Jury, with a template share transfer agreement that he had previously provided to SHKRELI.

b. On or about November 25, 2012, in response to an inquiry from SHKRELI about cancelling a transfer of Retrophin shares previously given by SHKRELI, GREEBEL responded, “hard to unwind stuff – easier if they transfer back.”

c. On or about November 29, 2012, at 3:20 p.m., RTRX Employee 1 sent an email to GREEBEL, and Accountant 1 and Accountant 2, whose identities are known to the Grand Jury, and attached an agreement that transferred 4,167 shares from Co-Conspirator 1 to SHKRELI. The agreement was signed by SHKRELI and Co-Conspirator 1 and dated November 29, 2012.

d. On or about November 29, 2012, between 3:29 p.m. and 3:46 p.m., SHKRELI, GREEBEL, Co-Conspirator 1 and RTRX Employee 1 exchanged emails where SHKRELI stated, “that agreement was signed in June.” Notably, GREEBEL removed the outside accountants for this email exchange.

e. A few minutes later, at 3:55 p.m., RTRX Employee 1 sent an email to SHKRELI and GREEBEL, copying Co-Conspirator 1, and attached the same transfer agreement, with one change: the November 29, 2012 dates below the signature lines for SHKRELI and Co-Conspirator 1 were covered by clearly visible redacting tape and replaced with a date of July 1, 2012.

f. One minute later, in response to the email sent by RTRX Employee 1, GREEBEL sent an email to RTRX Employee 1 and stated, “please call me.”

g. Amidst this email exchange, at 4:04 p.m., Accountant 1, who had received the original share transfer agreement from RTRX Employee 1, exclaimed, “WT....F.”

h. At 4:32 p.m., approximately thirty minutes after GREEBEL asked RTRX Employee 1 to call him, RTRX Employee 1 sent an email to SHKRELI and GREEBEL, copying Co-Conspirator 1, and attached the transfer agreement between SHKRELI and Co-Conspirator 1. This version, however, had a new signature page without any visible redacting tape and a new date, June 1, 2012, was typed, rather than handwritten.

i. On or about December 3, 2012, RTRX Employee 1 sent Accountant 1 an email attaching Co-Conspirator 1’s backdated agreement, similar backdated share transfer agreements executed by Corrupt Employee 1 and Corrupt Employee 2, both dated July 1, 2012, and an agreement between SHKRELI and MSMB Capital, dated July 1, 2012, transferring 75,000 shares from SHKRELI to MSMB Capital. Notably, although each of these agreements reflects a date in the summer of 2012, none of the transfers in the agreements are reflected in the capitalization tables that were prepared in July, September and November 2012.

j. A few hours later, SHKRELI sent an email to GREEBEL and RTRX Employee 1 and attached the “final capitalization table,” which contained an entry for MSMB Capital for 75,000 shares.

(ii). The Fraudulent Settlement Agreements

26. In or about and between February 2013 and August 2013, the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, together with others, caused Retrophin to enter into settlement agreements with three Capital Limited Partners and four Healthcare Limited Partners to resolve claims and threats of claims made by the limited partners against SHKRELI and MSMB Capital or MSMB Healthcare. SHKRELI and GREEBEL, who were present at all relevant Retrophin Board of Directors (the "Board") meetings, did not seek authorization from the Board prior to entering into these fraudulent settlements.

27. The defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL engaged in this scheme to defraud Retrophin of its assets in an effort to conceal the material misrepresentations that SHKRELI made to the three Capital Limited Partners and four Healthcare Limited Partners about, inter alia, performance and liquidity. For example, on or about September 10, 2012, SHKRELI had falsely represented to the three Capital Limited Partners, whose identities are known to the Grand Jury, that their investments had returned profits ranging from 41.12 percent to 79.49 percent. Similarly, on or about September 9, 2012, SHKRELI had falsely represented to the four Healthcare Limited Partners that their investments had returned profits ranging from 15.58 percent to 34.48 percent. The next day, in the Liquidation Email, SHKRELI had informed the limited partners of MSMB Capital and MSMB Healthcare that he was winding down the funds and that they could have their interests redeemed by the fund for cash. Contrary to these representations, MSMB Capital had ceased operating in February 2011 and all investments by the Capital Limited Partners had been lost following the February 2011 OREX trades. Similarly, SHKRELI's performance updates to the Healthcare

Limited Partners were false because they were based on an internal, inflated valuation of Retrophin, and MSMB Healthcare did not have liquid assets to fulfill cash redemptions.

28. In sum, the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, together with others, caused Retrophin to pay more than $3.4 million in cash and RTRX stock to settle claims with the seven Capital Limited Partners and Healthcare Limited Partners even though Retrophin was not responsible for those claims.

29. In or about August 2013, Retrophin's external auditor questioned the settlement agreements that had been as of that time and determined that Retrophin was not responsible for the claims resolved in the settlement agreements. Consequently, Retrophin's public filings had to be restated and amended. On or about August 23, 2013, the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL discussed the impact of the auditor's determination in a lengthy email exchange. When SHKRELI suggested that the old agreements should be annulled, GREEBEL responded that the auditor "didn't like that idea." When SHKRELI then admitted that "there were serious faults with the [settlement] agreements including lack of board approval" and that redoing the settlement agreements may be a good idea, GREEBEL responded: "That will open up some very big issues. The current thinking is let rtrx pay, get a note from the fund[,] and if the fund cant [sic] fulfill the note[,] rtrx will write it off as a bad debt. It would be easier than the road you are referring to. Also, [the auditor] would get very spooked with what you are talking about (which could also spook your investors and counter parties)." In response, SHKRELI stated, "[o]n current thinking: that works for me."

30. A few days later, the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL caused MSMB Capital and MSMB Healthcare to execute indemnification agreements and promissory notes for the benefit of Retrophin even though they knew that the MSMB Funds had no assets. In furtherance of the scheme, SHKRELI and GREEBEL assured Retrophin and the auditors that the promissory notes would be repaid. Retrophin was never indemnified for these fraudulent settlement agreements.

(iii). The Sham Consulting Agreements

31. After Retrophin's external auditors had determined that Retrophin was not responsible for the claims settled in the settlement agreements, the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, together with others, devised an alternative approach to settle with defrauded limited partners from SHKRELI's hedge funds: settlement agreements under the guise of consulting agreements. SHKRELI and GREEBEL's fraudulent scheme is evident in an email exchange on or about October 16, 2013. Initially, GREEBEL sent an email to SHKRELI informing him that Investor 1 wanted 100,000 RTRX shares as part of his settlement and did not want to enter into a consulting agreement. When SHKRELI indicated that the proposal was acceptable to him, GREEBEL stated, "Where will the 100k come from? If it's from the company it would need to be in a consulting agreement." SHKRELI questioned GREEBEL's approach and stated, "Why would it need to be a consulting agreement????! Have you heard of the term settlement?" In response, GREEBEL explained, "We can call it a settlement agreement, but given [the auditor's] recent behavior they may require it to be disclosed in the financials. I was trying to prevent that issue."

32. In or about and between September 2013 and March 2014, the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, together with others, caused Retrophin to enter into four sham consulting agreements with defrauded investors from Elea Capital, MSMB Capital and MSMB Healthcare to resolve claims and threats of claims by those investors against SHKRELI and the MSMB Funds. Three of the four sham consulting agreements, which included agreements with Investor 1 and Investor 3, provided that the defrauded investors would provide consulting services “on strategic and corporate governance matters to the management of the company” and contained releases as to, inter alia, SHKRELI, the MSMB Funds and Retrophin. The fourth sham consulting agreement, which was entered into with the defrauded Elea Capital investor, provided that the investor would provide consulting services “on cluster headache drug development and other matters to the Company” but did not include any releases. Retrophin did not receive any legitimate consulting services based on these sham agreements.

33. The defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, who were present at all relevant Board meetings, never presented three of the four sham consulting agreements to the Board for approval, and although the consulting agreement with Investor 3 was placed on the Board’s agenda, it was never approved. Additionally, SHKRELI and GREEBEL concealed from the Board that the purpose of that consulting agreement was to resolve Investor 3’s complaints about his MSMB Healthcare investment. As another example of the scheme to conceal the true nature of the sham consulting agreements, on or about April 19, 2013, GREEBEL sent an email to SHKRELI attaching a form consulting agreement to use to settle claims with Investor 3, and stated, in part: “I think you should get blanket approval from the board for you to retain consultants who may be paid in cash or stock up to an aggregate amount of $.”

34. As with the settlement agreements, the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, together with others, devised the sham consulting agreements to conceal the material misrepresentations that SHKRELI made to the Capital Limited Partners and Healthcare Limited Partners about, inter alia, performance and liquidity. For example, on or about January 25, 2012, in the last performance update provided to Investor 1, SHKRELI falsely represented to Investor 1 that his investment had returned a profit of 5.51 percent. Similarly, on or about September 9, 2012, SHKRELI falsely represented to Investor 3 and another Healthcare Limited Partner that their investments had returned profits of 34.48 percent and 9.75 percent, respectively. The next day, in the Liquidation Email, SHKRELI informed the limited partners of MSMB Capital and MSMB Healthcare that he was winding down the funds and that they could have their interests redeemed by the fund for cash. Contrary to these representations, MSMB Capital had been defunct since February 2011 and all investments by the Capital Limited Partners had been lost following the February 2011 OREX trades. Similarly, SHKRELI's performance updates to the Healthcare Limited Partners were false because they were based on an internal, inflated valuation of Retrophin, and MSMB Healthcare did not have liquid assets to fulfill cash redemptions.

35. In sum, the defendants MARTIN SHKRELI and EVAN GREEBEL, together with others, caused Retrophin to pay more than $7.6 million in cash and RTRX stock through sham consulting agreements to settle claims with Capital Limited Partners and Healthcare Limited Partners even though Retrophin was not responsible for those claims.
