JOURNALISM

EVERETT WALLACE SMITH, Professor
BUFORD OTIS BROWN, Associate Professor
KENNETH N. STEWART, Instructor

The Journalism curriculum is based on the conviction that the proper college training for journalism provides (1) a broad foundation of general information, (2) more specific knowledge of economics, political science, history, and other subjects with which the journalist largely deals, and (3) some technical ability in journalism and an intelligent comprehension of the obligations and responsibilities of the profession.

The requirements of the Lower Division insure that the student will come into contact with the chief branches of human knowledge and lay a basis for more advanced studies along the lines of his particular needs and interests. The requirements of the School of Social Sciences insure his specializing somewhat in the work of the departments of Economics, History, Philosophy, and Political Science, and in related subjects, at the same time leaving him opportunity for meeting the Journalism requirements and for electives.

Intending journalists are encouraged to engage in college journalism and thus obtain practical experience during their course. Students in the Division of Journalism who do such work systematically and under the supervision of the Division will be given credit for it toward graduation. Lower Division students who plan to enter the Division of Journalism may receive one unit of credit per quarter for regular work on The Stanford Daily under the supervision of the Division of Journalism.

In some of the Journalism courses the written work must be done on the typewriter. On this account and because ability to use the typewriter is necessary for practically all newspaper work, prospective Journalism students are advised to gain this ability as early as possible.

Graduation.—Students in the Division of Journalism will meet all the requirements of the School of Social Sciences, and will take a minimum of 30 units in Journalism, including News Writing (10 units), Copy Reading (5 units), American Journalism (3 units), and Ethics of Journalism (2 units). The work in Journalism will count toward the 80 units required by the School of Social Sciences, but will not replace any of the 38 units specifically required.

Degree of Master of Arts.—In addition to requirements fixed by the University, a candidate must satisfy the specific undergraduate requirements of the Division. It is contemplated that about 20 units of the graduate year will be in Journalism courses. At least 20 units must be taken in advanced or graduate courses in one or two minors selected from the Social Sciences group. The thesis and a seminar may ordinarily satisfy not more than 12 units of the Journalism requirements.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

100. News Writing I.—Study of the structure of the news story and of news values, with practice in writing. Sources of news and methods of news gathering. Newspaper organization and news-gathering organizations.
All writing in the course must be done on a typewriter.

120. Elementary Practice.—Practical work in news gathering and writing for The Stanford Daily or other newspapers, or on the business staff of a campus publication, with conferences. One unit of credit for three hours of work of a character satisfactory to the Division of Journalism. Open to Journalism major students and to others on request of their departments, with a maximum credit of two units a quarter; or to Lower Division students preparing to enter the Division of Journalism, with a maximum credit of one unit a quarter. Students who are not Journalism majors will be graded plus or minus, and will be limited to 3 units of credit for work in Course 120 or 121, or in both together, taken while they are Lower Division students, and to 6 units for such work taken while they are Upper Division students.

PHILOSOPHY

Henry Waldgrave Stuart, Harold Chapman Brown, Professors
Nicolaï O. Lossky (Russian University of Prague), Acting Professor (Summer Quarter)
Everett Wesley Hall (Ohio State University), Acting Associate Professor (Winter Quarter)
Celestine James Sullivan, Jr., Acting Instructor (Autumn and Spring Quarters)

Graduation.—The requirements for graduation in this department constitute an adequate preparation for advanced studies in Philosophy and leave opportunity for the other elements of a general or liberal education. Major students are required to present for the degree of Bachelor of Arts thirty-five units in Philosophy (in which Courses 1, 2, 100, 101, 102, and 200 must be included), the general courses in Psychology and in Medieval and Modern European History or English History (which must be taken during the first two years in the University), and at least five units in a laboratory course in a natural science. The second-year courses in French or German are recommended as a part of the Lower Division work of intending major students.
