relationship between the Board, the Faculty, and the officers of the University, and of his observance of the courtesies becoming distinguished educators who visit our city. All these things has he done with unfailing conscientiousness and because of them and more, when he takes his place among us, not as presiding officer but as a fellow member, we wish him to realize that we do not forget.

At the above-mentioned meeting Mr. Leland Whitman Cutler, Stanford '06, was elected President of the Board for the ensuing year.

ATTENDANCE

The total registration of students for the year was 4,581, including the summer enrolment. This represents a small decrease of 61 from the registration of the academic year 1929–30. The total number of students in graduate standing was 1,543, an increase of 13 over the number registered last year. At the annual Commencement in June, 1,204 degrees were conferred, 397 of them being advanced degrees. The registration was distributed as follows:

delivered by President Aurelia Henry Reinhardt, of Mills College, and brief remarks were made by Mr. Richard W. Barrett, chairman of the Board of Athletic Control; President Leland W. Cutler, and Retiring President W. Mayo Newhall, of the Board of Trustees; and by the Acting President of the University. This building, constructed at a cost of $235,082.56, funds for which were provided by the Board of Athletic Control, is a distinct contribution to the architectural beauty of the campus.

CHANGES IN TITLES

Dr. Edgar Eugene Robinson, professor of American history, was designated as the Margaret Byrne Professor of American History, beginning June 1, 1931.

Dr. Charles Vincent Taylor, professor of biology, was designated as Herzstein Professor of Biology, beginning September 1, 1931.

RESEARCH IN THE SOCIAL SCIENCES

From the funds which were available for the year 1930–31 from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial and matching funds for research in the social sciences, the following grants were made to members of the faculty by the executive committee of the Council of Research in Social Sciences:

psychometric work in the Division of Neuropsychiatry of the Medical School, and during the University's summer session gave the course in mental hygiene for which Dr. Norman Fenton had been scheduled but which he was unable to give.

Dr. Catharine Miles, who as research associate has collaborated with Dr. Terman on a study of sex differences in nonintellectual mental traits, spent the year as acting research associate professor at Yale University. She devoted a considerable part of her time, however, to preparation of the report of the sex-difference study.

DIVISION OF JOURNALISM

The staff of the Division of Journalism for the year consisted of Everett W. Smith, professor; Buford O. Brown, associate professor; Thomas G. Irwin, instructor; and David Lamson, acting instructor (spring quarter).

David Lamson, sales manager of the University Press, generously gave the division the benefit of his studies and experience by presenting, without salary, a course in direct advertising for a selected group of students who had taken Professor Brown's course in advertising and desired this specialized course.

During the spring quarter Professor Brown was for a time editor of the San Fernando Sun while the publisher was on an extended vacation. Later he attended the sessions of Journalism Week of the University of Missouri, where he was on the program of speakers, and made a trip to the Atlantic Coast, visiting newspapers in a number of large cities and leading schools of journalism. Earlier in the year he spoke before the California Advertising Managers' Association. He contributed technical articles to The California Publisher, Inland Printer, and Editor and Publisher.

Professor Smith attended the meetings of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism and of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism, at Boston, during the Christmas holidays. As representative of Stanford, he was elected vice-president of the Association of Schools and Departments. He spent most of the winter quarter in New York City, where he was in touch with journalism teachers in the universities there and with a large number of newspaper workers, and on the way back to California stopped at other cities and schools of journalism.

Mr. Irwin concluded his teaching, at least for the present, at the end of the year and plans to devote several years to practical work before resuming.

The division records its obligations to Mr. O. H. Blackman, who during the year was made a lecturer on the University staff, not only for several talks he gave before Professor Brown's advertising class, but even more especially for the aid he extended to both the teaching staff and students of the division through conferences and informal discussions.
