Brief

Tiffany Dehen v. John Doe, Twitter Inc., and University of San Diego

Tiffany Dehen alleges defamation per se and intentional infliction of emotional distress against John Doe and Twitter Inc. for a slanderous Twitter account made in Plaintiff's legal name and broadcast internationally on the social media website known as Twitter, Inc. and enjoins University of San Diego for contributory negligence.

Plaintiff requests the court to immediately and expeditiously freeze all evidence associated with all possible offenses perpetrated by the plaintiff, John Doe, Twitter, Inc., and University of San Diego. Plaintiff requests $100,000,000 in damages against all defendants jointly and severally liable.

John Doe made a false twitter account claiming to be plaintiff, in which Doe posted incriminating photos and language as an alleged parody, yet used and tagged Plaintiff's actual real name (Tiffany Dehen) and Twitter account (@tiffanysundevil). John Doe's actions satisfy all five elements of a statutory malicious defamation claim, as follows:

1. John Doe published a statement of fact on the social media platform known as Twitter, as shown in Exhibits 1 – 32.
2. The statements falsely attempt to represent plaintiff, as evidenced by the usage of plaintiff's first and last name as the official Twitter username. Plaintiff's real Twitter account is shown in Exhibit 33.
3. This usage of plaintiff's first and last name used in conjunction with views associated with Hitler's Nazi Germany are damaging to plaintiff's name, especially in this crucial juncture of her life where she is applying to California bar admittance and looking for a legal job in San Diego. It is a known fact law firms nowadays check social media sites and do background and Google searches before reaching out to a potential candidate.
4. John Doe represented plaintiff as an Adolf Hitler Nazi Germany supporter, which has a natural tendency to injure plaintiff, as well as cause special damage, considering the fact that plaintiff is actively seeking a job position in the legal field. See Exhibits 1-32.

5. John Doe's fault in publishing the statement amounted to substantially more than just negligence. John Doe's meticulous planning of potentially creating a fake Facebook account in which he sought to befriend Plaintiff on social media (Please see Exhibit 38) and gain access to additional information, coupled with the time involved in setting up a false Twitter account, as well as downloading, altering, and reposting plaintiff's images, shows more than just the defendant's fault in publishing the statement. John Doe's deliberate actions amounted to much more than just mere negligence, but more so proves malice, an element of criminal crimes.

Even if the burden is on the plaintiff to prove falsity in a defamation claim, the falsity is easily proven, as evidenced by the fact that John Doe's Twitter account is clearly not Tiffany Dehen's twitter account, as evidenced by the IP address (to be obtained during investigation).

Additionally, it should be noted that Tiffany Dehen's real twitter account consists of posts supporting the elected President of the United States, not Adolf Hitler, the socialist communist dictator from Germany. The fact that John Doe used Tiffany Dehen's real name and linked the fictitious Twitter account to Tiffany Dehen's real account by retweeting Tiffany Dehen's posts shows that John Doe acted with actual malice and negligence.

Further, even if Plaintiff qualifies as a limited purpose public figure as a person who voluntarily injects herself or is drawn into a particular public controversy as a matter of law, Plaintiff alleges the decision in Copp v. Paxton, 52 Cal. Rptr.2d 831, 44 (Cal. Ct. Appl. 1996), is unconstitutional and violates her constitutional rights in this situation and all situations similar to this. The alleged defamation is extremely relevant to the plaintiff's voluntary participation in the public controversy because the plaintiff is currently seeking a job in the legal market, which has instituted a well-known accepted practice for checking a potential job candidate's social media websites when reviewing the applicant, in this case, the plaintiff. Plaintiff is also working on building her own personal website and branding herself, all of which are impeded by this fictitious and slanderous Twitter account in Plaintiff's name.

Plaintiff just graduated law school with a J.D. and even if plaintiff is qualified as an expert for purposes of this case, Plaintiff acted as expeditiously as she could and filed suit against respondents within one day of being put on notice, which is well documented and easily accessible for the court to review in all enclosed exhibits.

Plaintiff requests the court to immediately and expeditiously freeze all evidence associated with all possible civil, as well as criminal, offenses perpetrated by the plaintiff, John Doe.

Plaintiff requests to enjoin Twitter, Inc. jointly and severally, the social media website which has allowed this disparaging speech to stay broadcast to the world, costing plaintiff potentially millions of dollars in future earnings. Twitter was put on notice on January 30, 2017, and as of Feb 1, 2017, the false twitter account was still posted, even after Tiffany Dehen put Twitter on notice. The process Twitter adheres to is absolutely ridiculous and should be looked at as well and Plaintiff claims the process Twitter has in place to review defamation is unconstitutional.

Plaintiff requests to enjoin University of San Diego because of the fact that as seen in Exhibits 34 and 35, it appears as though there is a high probability John Doe is an University of San Diego student or alumni since the photo used to make the swastika headband, as shown in Exhibits 3, 4, and 5, is Plaintiff's profile photograph on LinkedIn. University of San Diego should be liable as well due to a prior matter that was not resolved appropriately by University of San Diego which led to USD acting recklessly, or at the very least negligently, to allow this matter to arise.

Further, on the way to Federal Court in Downtown San Diego to file this complaint, Plaintiff was involved in a collision on the I-5 Freeway headed South, which resulted in neck and back pain for which Plaintiff is now seeking medical attention. Please see Exhibit 39.

Plaintiff seeks $100,000,000 in damages for the above stated claims of malicious defamation per se and intentional infliction of emotional distress.
