

Jesse Brodsky <jesse@lawyersofdistinction.com>

10/2/17 ☆

to conrad ▾

Mr. Saam,

It has been brought to our attention that you published an article titled "When the Top 10% Means Nothing". In this article, you include language which is defamatory toward Lawyers of Distinction, Inc.

Your article is actionable and we will be initiating lawsuits against the author individually, as well as Mockingbird Marketing if this post is not immediately removed from the internet. Your post is rife with false and totally misleading information regarding Lawyers of Distinction, Inc.

For instance, you refer to our offices as being in a strip shopping center, when in fact we have a corporate office in a traditional office building. This is merely a small example of your intent to knowingly publish false and defamatory information, which is meant to harm Lawyers of Distinction's reputation and economic well being, at the same time trying to create a pecuniary gain for your marketing company.

If this article is not removed from the internet on or before the close of business on October 10th, 2017, we shall file a lawsuit seeking appropriate actual, compensatory and punitive damages. You have now been warned and placed on notice. Every day of delay in removing this article will increase the damages we shall be seeking. Please govern yourself accordingly.

Very truly yours,

Jesse Brodsky, ESQ.

In House Counsel

Jesse Brodsky

In House Counsel

jesse@lawyersofdistinction.com

Lawyers of Distinction

<http://www.lawyersofdistinction.com>

