THE RESOURCES GUIDE FOR EXPORTING

ABOUT THE RESOURCES GUIDE FOR EXPORTING:

The Global Climate Coalition Resources Guide for Exporting, developed in cooperation with the Trade Promotion Coordinating Committee and the U.S. Department of Commerce, is a compilation of U.S. Government and international agency programs designed to assist U.S. companies seeking to export both goods and technology to foreign markets. This business guide has been particularly targeted to assist in the export of environmental and energy-efficient technology.

The Guide attempts to summarize the principal U.S. Government and international agency programs available for assisting U.S. exporters, and provides key points of contact for each of these programs.

Programs detailed in the Guide are compiled according to the type of assistance available. It covers the following categories of assistance: Need assessment, country and regional business information, feasibility studies R&D, and technology programs, financing and insurance, education and training, export controls, and troubleshooting.

The Guide's use will greatly facilitate and expedite the process of sorting through the myriad of programs available within the U.S. government to assist U.S. exporters.
