Re: Administrative Appeal/Request for Reconsideration of the Denial of Request for Correction Under Information Quality Guidelines

To the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of Justice:

On January 16, the Department of Justice (“DOJ”) and the Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”) (collectively, the “Departments”) issued a report entitled “Executive Order 13780: Protecting the Nation From Foreign Terrorist Entry Into the United States, Initial Section 11 Report” (“Report”). This report was rife with inaccuracies and methodological flaws, and wholly lacking in transparency and objectivity, all in direct violation of the Information Quality Act (“IQA”) and its implementing regulations. On February 8, 2018, Petitioners here filed an administrative petition (“Petition”), attached hereto as Exhibit 1, identifying at least nine distinct violations under the IQA and requesting that the Departments either rescind or correct the Report.

The Departments denied the Petition without responding to the majority of errors that Petitioners identified, in letters attached hereto as Exhibit 2. To the extent that the Departments addressed the identified errors and inadequacies at all, the responses are inadequate. The Departments apparently maintain that their obligations under the IQA are satisfied because the Report included accurate information that was accurately described. The Departments’ premise is wrong, because the Petition pointed out several instances of straightforward data inaccuracies that the Departments have failed to explain. And the Departments misunderstand the IQA’s requirements: placing data in the proper context and identifying the impact of the agencies’ analytic choices on the reported results are critical parts of the Departments’ IQA obligations, especially in light of the IQA’s heightened requirements for information that has an influence on policymaking.

As a result, Petitioners bring this administrative appeal and request for reconsideration under the Departments’ IQA regulations, and renew the request set forth in the Petition that the Departments either rescind or correct the Report.

I. Background

A. President Trump and His Administration Attempt Repeatedly to Link Immigrants to Crime

Since the start of his presidency, President Trump has sought to justify his Executive Orders banning Muslims from entering the United States and to rationalize other immigration priorities by connecting immigration to criminality. He has enlisted the Departments in that effort by ordering them to produce non-existent information showing an immigration-crime connection. On January 27, 2017—just one week after taking office—President Trump issued Executive Order 13769, Protecting the Nation from Foreign Terrorist Entry into the United States (“EO-1”). EO-1 claimed, without citation, that “[n]umerous foreign-born individuals have been convicted or implicated in terrorism-related crimes since September 11, 2001.” Protecting the Nation from Foreign Terrorist Entry into the United States, 82 Fed. Reg. 8977, 8977 (Feb. 1, 2017).

Apparently lacking evidence to cite, Section 10 of EO-1 directed the Secretary of DHS, in consultation with the Attorney General, to collect and publicly disseminate certain categories of information, including: (i) information regarding the number of foreign nationals in the United States involved in certain terrorism-related offenses or who were radicalized after entry into the United States; (ii) information regarding the number and types of acts of gender-based violence against women in the United States by foreign nationals; and (iii) other information relevant to public safety and security. See id. at 8980-81.

According to information provided in response to a Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”) petition by one of the Petitioners here, on February 10, 2017, the National Security Division (“NSD”) provided to the Office of the Attorney General a chart listing 668 convictions for international terrorism and terrorism-related crimes occurring between September 11, 2001 and December 31, 2016, attached hereto as Exhibit 3. That chart cautions that it includes 119 individuals who were prosecuted following a broad nationwide investigation after the September 11, 2001 attacks, “regardless of whether investigators developed or identified evidence that they had any connection to international terrorism.” See Ex. 3. And it explains that all of the crimes deal with “charged violations of federal statutes” that were related to terrorism “regardless of the offense of conviction,” and “include[e] investigations of terrorist acts planned or committed outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.” Id. NSD warned that these caveats, included in a preamble to the chart, should always accompany the chart or any quotation of the total number of convictions. Id. NSD suggested that the data would support statements like “[s]ince 9/11, convictions have been obtained against hundreds of defendants for terrorism or terrorism-related charges in Article III courts,” and “[w]e have a long history of using the criminal justice system to incapacitate individuals who pose a threat to the U.S. and its interests here and abroad. Since 9/11, hundreds of convictions have been obtained in our federal courts.” Id. NSD did not suggest that the data it maintains would support conclusions related to immigration policy.

According to additional information released by DOJ in response to that same FOIA request, attached hereto as Exhibit 4, DOJ revised the chart provided by NSD by deleting 115 of the foregoing 119 individuals prosecuted after the September 11 attacks, and then cross-referencing the remaining 553 names with its FBI investigation files to determine each defendant’s place and date of birth. But the FBI’s investigation files are error-ridden: the then-Chief of Staff to the FBI Director included a note in his email transmitting the document to the Office of the Deputy Attorney General flagging “the use of aliases in I[n]ternational] T[errorism] matters, factual errors in the initial data, and conflicting DOBs,” which he “highlight[ed] . . . to note the . . . list likely contains gaps or errors” See Ex. 4. The chart produced using these FBI files states that 392 or 393 of the listed individuals were born abroad (the FBI was unsure whether one individual was born in Jamaica or the United States), 136 or 137 were born in the United States, and 24 were of uncertain place of birth, per the FBI. See id. DOJ passed the chart, so revised, on to DHS on February 22, 2017, and onto the Office of the Attorney General on February 27, 2017.

The next day, on February 28, 2017, President Trump announced in his first speech before a joint session of Congress that “[a]ccording to data provided by the Department of Justice, the vast majority of individuals convicted of terrorism and terrorism-related offenses since 9/11 came here from outside of our country.” See Remarks by President Trump in Joint Address to Congress (Feb. 28, 2017).¹ He did not qualify the universe of terrorism-related offenses to which he was referring—whether those related to international terrorism, domestic terrorism, or both. President Trump promised to “take new steps to keep our nation safe and to keep out those who will do us harm.” Id. These remarks echoed his false campaign claims that “scores of recent migrants” were charged with terrorism and that “for every case known to the public, there are dozens and dozens more.”²

In a letter attached hereto as Exhibit 5, DOJ represented to one of the Petitioners that it searched the records of the Offices of the Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General, Legislative Affairs, and Public Affairs for any other documents containing data regarding (i) all individuals convicted of all terrorism-related offenses (domestic and international) between 2001 and the date of the initial search, and (ii) all individuals convicted of all domestic terrorism-related offenses between 2001 and the date of the initial search. DOJ reported that it had no responsive records. See Ex. 5.

Courts enjoined EO-1’s immigration provisions in part because they had no foundation in fact,³ and so President Trump tried again. He issued Executive Order 13780 on March 6, 2017 (“EO-2”). EO-2 revoked EO-1 and made minor changes to its immigration provisions, but still temporarily barred entry by nationals of certain overwhelmingly Muslim countries and all refugees. See Protecting the Nation from Foreign Terrorist Entry into the United States, 82 Fed. Reg. 13,209 (Mar. 9, 2017). Section 11 of EO-2 tasked the Secretary of DHS and the Attorney General with finding the same categories of information identified in Section 10 of EO-1, and releasing a report with this information every 180 days. See id. at 13,217; see also 82 Fed. Reg. at 8980-81.

According to a recent news report, the intelligence community, with the input of the FBI, provided a report to senior Administration officials in September 2017 concluding that refugees did not present a significant threat to the United States. See Dan de Luce and Julia Ainsley, ³ See Washington v. Trump, 847 F.3d 1151, 1168 (9th Cir. 2017) (per curiam) (noting that the government “pointed to no evidence that any alien from any of the countries named in [EO-1] has perpetrated a terrorist attack in the United States”).

Trump Admin Rejected Report Showing Refugees Did Not Pose Major Security Threat, NBC News (Sept. 5, 2018).⁴ Then-Assistant Attorney General Rachel Brand acknowledged receiving the report, but indicated that the Attorney General would not be guided by its findings because he “doesn’t agree with the conclusions.” Id. At least one intelligence community official interpreted this to mean that the Department was not “able to have an honest conversation about the risk.” Id. Commenting on this news report, a DHS spokesperson sought to explain the Administration’s rejection of the intelligence community’s conclusions not by disputing their accuracy, but instead by stating that DHS would refuse to rely on “historical data” for immigration policy, because “[i]f we only look at what terrorists have done in the past, we will never be able to prevent future attacks.” Id.

This potential bias is made worse by the fact that, according to another news report, DHS did not materially contribute to the report at all, and DHS analysts in fact warned the Trump administration that correlating international terrorism data with citizenship or country of origin misleading. See Team Trump Bypassed DHS Analysts to Produce Bogus Terror Report, the Daily Beast (Jan. 21, 2018).⁵ The Attorney General’s office “took charge” of assembling the statistics in the Report, and sent it to DHS only after it was “all but finalized.” Id.

B. DHS and DOJ Issue Report Making False and Misleading Claims to Justify President Trump’s Executive Orders

On January 16, 2018, the Departments jointly issued the Report at issue here. The Report’s headline claim is that 402 of 549 people convicted of international terrorism-related charges from September 11, 2001 through December 31, 2016 (roughly 73%), were “foreign-born.” Report at 2. Of those 402 “foreign-born” individuals, the Report asserts that 148 were naturalized U.S. citizens (i.e., nationals of the United States) and that 254 were foreign nationals. Id. The Report does not provide any underlying data, but it does acknowledge that it relied on “a list maintained by DOJ’s National Security Division” of those convicted of international terrorism-related charges. Id. The Report’s list of 549 total convictions corresponds with the list that NSD compiled a year earlier, excluding the 119 individuals investigated following the September 11, 2001 attacks. See Ex. 4; see also supra at 2. While the Report states that the list consists of defendants “convicted in cases involving charged violations of federal statutes that are directly related to international terrorism,” and “defendants convicted in cases involving charged violations of a variety of other statutes where the investigation involved an identified link to international terrorism,” it fails to disclose the number of defendants actually convicted of terrorism charges. Report at 2.

The Report further estimates that 23 to 27 “honor killings” and 1,500 “forced marriages” occurred every year in the United States between September 11, 2001 and December 31, 2016. Id. at 7-8. Yet the Report simultaneously acknowledges that the federal government does not generally track data about gender-based violence against women. Id. Citing an outside study that was itself based largely on media reports, the Report surmises that 91% of these honor killings occurred because the victim was perceived as “too Westernized.” Id.

The Report includes other statistics that have no apparent connection to terrorism. For example, it volunteers that between October 1, 2011 and September 30, 2017, 372,098 non-citizens were deported following convictions for an aggravated felony or two or more felonies. Id. at 9-10. The Report also notes that between 2007 and 2017, USCIS referred 45,858 foreign nationals who applied for immigration benefits to ICE for enforcement action based on information that they had committed crimes. Id.

Finally, the Report concludes with a promise to continue to provide similar information to “highlight the threats facing the United States.” Id. at 10. It asserts that DOJ is “committed to” investigating and prosecuting terrorists—and also to denaturalizing citizens who “derive their citizenship through naturalization fraud,” a problem not otherwise discussed in the Report, much less supported by any data. Id.

The Report was issued months after the date contemplated by EO-2, even though the data for its central claim were apparently available before EO-2’s promulgation. Its publication instead coincided with a renewed push by the Administration to convince Congress and the American people that stricter immigration laws are needed, including:

- A week before the Report was issued, President Trump falsely claimed that twenty-two to twenty-four people immigrated to the United States on the basis of their relation to the suspect in the Manhattan truck attack. CNN Bipartisan Immigration Bill Roundtable Transcript (Jan. 9, 2018).⁶
- Five days before the Report was issued, President Trump reacted to the October 31, 2017 Manhattan terror attack with the following statement: “[T]he lottery system is a disaster, we have to get rid of the lottery system. The—as you know chain is—chain migration is a horrible situation. You’ve seen the ads, you’ve seen everything, you know all about chain.” Transcript of Donald Trump Interview with the Wall Street Journal, Wall Street Journal (Jan. 13, 2018).⁷
- In the White House, Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders stated that the Report “highlights the urgent need for Congress to adopt immigration reforms identified in the administration’s priorities.” Press Briefing by Press Secretary Sarah Sanders and Principal Deputy Assistant Attorney General Ed O’Callaghan (Jan. 17, 2018).⁸
- The White House press release also cites the “facts” set forth in the Report as reason to end so-called “chain migration,” and that the Report “shows, once again, that our current

C. Petitioners Request Correction of the Report

On February 8, 2018, Plaintiffs filed a Request for Correction under the IQA. The Petition explained Petitioners' interest in enforcing the IQA in this context, Pet. at 2-4, as well as the heightened scrutiny that applied because the Report is "influential" under the IQA. Id. at 4, 5-6. The Petition noted that "[w]hile the Report purports to be a sober, evidence-based analysis of the nationality of those charged with terrorism-related offenses, it instead presents data in a misleading way in order to advance a biased narrative that immigrants present a threat to our country." Id. at 6. The Petition then discussed nine specific flaws in the Report:

1. Exclusion of domestic terrorism. By limiting the Report's analysis to international terrorism-related offenses and excluding domestic terrorism, the Report focuses exclusively on "terrorism-related offenses that almost by definition are far more likely to be committed by foreign nationals and excludes those that are far more likely to be committed by U.S. citizens." Id. at 7. Yet "[d]omestic terrorism convictions account for the majority of terrorism convictions in the U.S. since Sept. 11, 2001, and those convicted of domestic terrorism charges are less likely to be foreign-born than their international terrorism counterparts." Id. By omitting domestic terrorism convictions—or, alternatively, the fact that domestic terrorism convictions predominate over international ones—the Report misleads readers into believing that foreign-born individuals are the primary perpetrators of terrorism. Id.
2. Distorted information relating to extraditions and capture. The Report's primary conclusion that 73% of the 549 individuals convicted of international terrorism-related charges were foreign-born is misleading: the Report acknowledges in passing that this number includes those extradited solely for the purpose of prosecution, but nowhere identifies how many such individuals are contained in the relevant dataset. Id. The Petition estimates that 100 members of the dataset were brought to the country just to prosecute them and so are irrelevant to the Report's central conclusions about immigration. Id.
3. Failure to provide important information about underlying data. The Report relies on a list of terrorism-related convictions maintained by NSD but ignores NSD's warning that certain "explanations/caveats in the preamble always need to accompany that total number [of convictions listed on the chart]—which is why the chart and the preamble should always be distributed and read together." See id. at 8. Neither the chart, nor the language in the preamble, was included in the Report. Id.

4. Manufactured distinctions between U.S. citizens. The Report’s distinction between those who are U.S. citizens by birth and those who are naturalized citizens departs from both EO-2 and long-standing counterterrorism practice. See id. at 8.
5. Cherry-picked and unrepresentative examples. The Report’s eight so-called “illustrative examples” of foreign-born individuals convicted of international terrorism related charges that the Departments cherry-picked are not obviously illustrative, and the Departments certainly fail to give any explanation of its methodology in selecting its examples that would suggest they are. Id. at 8. The Departments’ attempt to generalize from those flawed examples to opposition to family-based immigration position is therefore also flawed. Id.
6. Failure to provide critical underlying information and context about terrorist watchlist claim. The Report includes data regarding a purported 2,554 encounters with “individuals on the terrorist watchlist . . . traveling to the United States” in 2017 without defining “encounter” or identifying detail about how the watchlist is constructed—detail that is particularly important in light of the general acknowledgement that the watchlist is substantially overbroad. Id. at 9.
7. Gender-based violence. The Report blatantly overstates the number of immigrants convicted of crimes involving gender-based violence, suggesting that aliens were convicted for 69,929 sex crimes between 2003 and 2009 when, in fact, these data deal with arrests between 1955 and 2010. Id. Needless to say, arrests are not convictions, nor is six years anywhere near 55. Id. The Report also fails to mention that a single arrest can be for multiple offenses, which may leave the reader with the false impression that more aliens were convicted of sex crimes than was the case. And it fails to explain why it is reasonable to conclude that sex offenses are “in most instances” gender-based violence against women. In fact, “sex offense” includes prostitution and indecent exposure—offenses that may not involve gender-based violence against women. Id.
8. Honor killings and forced marriages. The Report fails to disclose that its estimate of honor killings comes from a study commissioned by a fervent anti-Muslim critic and that the author of the estimate himself admitted it was “not terribly scientific.” Id. at 10. Similarly, examination of the underlying data reveals that social services organizations “encountered as many as” 3,000 forced marriages in two years, not that these were the number that occurred every two years, as the Report misstates. Id.
9. Lack of transparency. Finally, the Petition critiqued the Report for failing to disclose the a) list maintained by NSD on which the Departments based the bulk of their analysis; b) the list of 1,716 aliens purportedly removed because of “national security concerns,” and c) the 2,554 DHS alleged encounters with individuals on the terrorist watchlist traveling to the United States. Id.

The Petition requests that these flaws show that the Report is “so saturated with bias and a lack of objectivity—both in conception and execution” that it should be withdrawn. Id. at 11. Alternatively, it requests eight specific corrections:

1. Include data and appropriate context regarding domestic terrorism-related convictions, including the methodology for determining that a charge has an “identifiable link” to a terror-related investigation and for determining that an offense is “directly related to international terrorism”;
2. Include data and appropriate context regarding the underlying data on which the Report relies, including the number of foreign-born individuals convicted of international terrorism-related offenses who were extradited to the United States for prosecution and the number of convictions for attacks that took place overseas;
3. Explain why drawing a distinction between naturalized citizens and citizens by birth is relevant, as well as why information about the citizenship of the parents of citizens by birth is relevant;
4. Include data to support the assertion that the eight individuals named in the Report are “illustrative,” particularly as to their method of admission to the United States (or, if such data are unavailable, provide context so that the public can judge whether the examples are truly “illustrative”);
5. Provide additional information about DHS’s 2,554 encounters with individuals on the terrorist watchlist, including how an “encounter” is defined;
6. Correct data and appropriate context regarding gender-based violence, honor killings, and forced marriages;
7. Provide access to the data underlying the Report; and
8. Consult with relevant experts, including career DHS officials and those in the private sector.

D. The Departments Respond Only After Petitioners Filed a Lawsuit

The Departments’ 60-day deadline to respond to the Petition passed on April 9 without action. On April 30, 2018, Petitioners filed a lawsuit to compel the Departments to respond as required under their regulations. See Protect Democracy Project, Inc. v. U.S. Dep’t of Justice, Case No. 18-cv-1087 (D. Mass. Apr. 30, 2018). On June 19, 2018—71 days after their deadline to respond had passed—the Departments provided an interim response stating that they needed additional time to resolve the Petition.

In a letter dated July 31, 2018—two days before the government’s response to Petitioners’ complaint was due in court—DOJ denied the Petition, concluding that the “Report outlines the scope and source of the data utilized and, where applicable, provides appropriate caveats, thereby meeting all applicable requirements” under the IQA. See DOJ Response at 2. DOJ dismissed critiques of the Report’s conviction data because the Petition did not identify any inaccuracies, and dismissed any charges of bias as merely “subjective.” Id. at 2-3. In response to concern over inaccurate gender-based data, DOJ acknowledged that it “lacks comprehensive data,” but promised that the Office of Justice Program was currently undertaking two studies to help disseminate accurate information about them. Id. at 3.

On August 1, 2018, DHS issued a similar response to the Petition (“DHS Response”), also concluding that neither retraction nor correction of information in the Report was required. Like DOJ, DHS did not dispute that the Report had a “substantial impact” on policymaking. See generally DHS Response. It sought to justify the lack of context in the Report by pointing out that “the Report specifically identified what information was available and noted that because of previous information collection practices some of the data presented did not capture the full spectrum of statistics envisioned by the EO.” Id. at 2. Like DOJ, DHS dismissed the issues identified in the Petition as matters of “interpretation,” not of “accuracy.” Id. DHS then claimed (without citation or other explanation) that questions of interpretation fall outside the scope of the Department’s IQA guidelines. Id.

II. Legal Standard

As DOJ correctly pointed out in its Response, the IQA Guidelines require that the Departments “ensure the quality, objectivity, utility, and integrity of information disseminated.” See Pub L. No. 106-554 § 515(a); see also Office of Management and Budget, Guidelines for Ensuring and Maximizing Quality, Objectivity, Utility and Integrity of Information Disseminated by Federal Agencies; Republication, 67 Fed. Reg. 8451, 8459 (Feb. 22, 2002) (“[Q]uality” encompasses “utility, objectivity, and integrity.”); DOJ Guidelines (acknowledging OMB’s definition); DHS Guidelines at 4 (same). As explained in the Petition, OMB has articulated clear standards for these terms¹⁷:

- a) “Objectivity” requires determining whether the information is presented “in an accurate, clear, complete, and unbiased manner,” within a proper context, and whether the substance of the information is “accurate, reliable, and unbiased,” including providing the underlying data when reporting statistics.¹⁸ Agencies should also consult with experts, as appropriate. See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8453.
- b) OMB Guidelines require transparency so that the public can understand the agencies’ methodology and analytic choices so that “the public will be able to assess how much an agency’s analytic result hinges on the specific analytic choices made by the agency.”¹⁹

They also require that the information be useful, “the uses of the information not only from the perspective of the agency but also from the perspective of the public.” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459.

- c) Finally, the OMB Guidelines require integrity. Integrity is defined as the “protection of the information from unauthorized access or revision, to ensure that the information is not compromised through corruption or falsification.” Id. at 8460.

The Departments’ responses overlook that “influential” information—information that “will have or does have a clear and substantial impact on important public policies or important private sector decisions”—are held to an even higher standard. Id. This information requires “a high degree of transparency about data and methods,” including “sufficient transparency about data and methods that an independent reanalysis could be undertaken by a qualified member of the public.” Id. (emphasis added).²⁰ In this way, DOJ’s attempt to dismiss references to the Attorney General’s statements as outside the scope of the IQA misses the point; the Petition does not independently challenge the Attorney General’s statements under the IQA (or those of the DHS Secretary or the President that Petitioners cite here). Rather, the Petition uses them to show that the Report has already had “a clear and substantial impact on important public policies.” Id.

III. Argument

As the Petition explained, the Report violates the IQA by failing to include information that is accurate, clear, complete, reliable, and unbiased, both in substance and in presentation, as well as by failing to adhere to proper transparency standards. Pet. at 6 (citing 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459). The agencies’ response does not even address many of the Petition’s identified IQA violations, each of which alone necessitates reconsideration of the Departments’ denials:

- Conviction data presented without proper context - The conviction data was given without the caveats and explanations required by NSD, see Pet. at 8; supra at 2, and so the information was not “presented in the proper context” as required by the IQA—and certainly not with the “high degree of transparency” required for influential information—nor was it “clear” or “complete.” See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459; see also DHS Guidelines at 3²¹ and DOJ Guidelines, supra note 19.

error correction is clearly valuable. The more important benefit of transparency is that the public will be able to assess how much an agency’s analytic result hinges on the specific analytic choices made by the agency.”); DOJ Guidelines (“Transparency refers to a clear description of the methods, data sources, assumptions, outcomes, and related information that will allow a data user to understand how the information product was designed or produced. Guidelines to ensure transparency in statistical information covers the dissemination of information, including both presentation and the reporting of information sources and limitations.”); DHS Guidelines at 4.

²⁰ See also DOJ Guidelines (defining “influential information” as “that which is expected to have a genuinely clear and substantial impact at the national level, or on major public and private policy decisions as they relate to federal justice issues”); DHS Guidelines at 4 (similar).

- Terror watchlist data unclear and not transparent - The Report details the number of “encounters” that the Departments had with those on a “terrorist watchlist,” all the while failing to even suggest the standards that the agency uses to place individuals on the watchlist, or even define “encounters.” See Pet. at 9. This renders the information unclear, 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459, and makes it impossible for “the public [to] be able to assess how much an agency’s analytic result hinges on the specific analytic choices made by the agency.” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8456; see also DHS Guidelines at 3²² and DOJ Guidelines, supra note 19.
- Gender-based violence statistics inaccurate - Neither DOJ nor DHS dispute that the Report is wrong when it claims that a GAO report found that aliens were convicted of 69,929 sex crimes between 2003 and 2009. See Pet. at 9. The IQA does not permit agencies to openly, knowingly misrepresent government data. 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459 (requiring that information be “accurate”). See DHS Guidelines, supra note 18 and DOJ Guidelines, supra note 18.
- Gender-based violence statistics unclear - Neither DOJ nor DHS address their failure to explain that a single arrest can be for multiple offenses, or their assumptions that sex offenses are “in most instances” gender-based violence against women. See Pet. at 9. Such violate the IQA’s transparency requirements, and are far from clear in presentation, especially in light of the fact that “sex offense” includes prostitution and indecent exposure, which is not clearly gender-based violence against women. See DHS Guidelines at 3²³ and DOJ Guidelines, supra note 23.
- Honor-killing study biased and unreliable - The Report fails to disclose that its estimate of honor killings comes from a study commissioned by a fervent anti-Muslim critic. See Pet. at 9-10; 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459 (prohibiting bias and requiring that data be reliable). And while the DOJ Response concedes that the IQA requires the use of “reliable data sources,” DOJ Response at 2, the author of the estimate himself admitted it was based on media reports and was “not terribly scientific.” See Pet. at 10; see also DHS Guidelines at 10²⁴ and DOJ Guidelines, supra note 18. DOJ implicitly acknowledges the Report’s inaccuracy on this point when it admits that it is conducting two separate studies on “honor violence,” which would be unnecessary if the data on which it originally relied were reliable. See DOJ Response at 3.

²⁴ DHS Guidelines at 10 (“[T]he agency needs to identify the sources of the disseminated information (to the extent possible, consistent with confidentiality protections) and, in a scientific, financial, or statistical context, the supporting data and models, so that the public can assess for itself whether there may be some reason to question the objectivity of the sources”).

- Honor-killing study inaccurately presented - Similarly, examination of the underlying data reveals that social services organizations “encountered as many as” 3,000 forced marriages in two years, not that these were the number that occurred every two years, as the Report misstates. See Pet. at 10. Again, the IQA requires that the data be presented in an “accurate” manner. 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459; see also DHS Guidelines, supra note 18 and DOJ Guidelines, supra note 18.
- Underlying data not disclosed - Finally, the Petition critiqued the Report for failing to disclose the a) list maintained by NSD on which the Departments based the bulk of their analysis; b) the list of 1,716 aliens purportedly removed because of “national security concerns,” and c) the 2,554 DHS alleged encounters with individuals on the terrorist watchlist traveling to the United States. See Pet. at 10; see also DHS Guidelines, supra note 24 and DOJ Guidelines, supra note 19.

The Responses largely ignore these issues and suggest that the Petition merely asks for “context,” which need not be provided because the data included is itself accurate and some limitations of the data are disclosed. See DHS Response at 2; DOJ Response at 2. It is true that the Petition seeks, in part, additional context for the claims in the Report, but that is a basis for granting the Petition, not denying it. The IQA clearly requires that “information [be] presented within a proper context,” See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459. Data must be correct in substance, to be sure, but must also be “accurate, clear, complete, and unbiased” in presentation. 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459; see also DHS Guidelines at 3 (same). “Sometimes, in disseminating certain types of information, other information must also be disseminated in order to ensure an accurate, clear, complete, and unbiased presentation.” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459; see also DHS Guidelines at 3 (same). The public must “be able to assess how much an agency’s analytic result hinges on the specific analytic choices made by the agency,” and any information must be useful “not only from the perspective of the agency but also from the perspective of the public.” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459. See also DHS Guidelines at 10 (same). This is even more important when an agency disseminates data. 67 Fed. Reg. at 8460 (requiring that the data and methods used to generate influential statistical information being sufficiently transparent that a qualified member of the public could undertake an independent reanalysis). The Departments nowhere defend the context actually provided in the Report. In fact, the Departments’ curation of the data here is highly misleading.

For example, the DOJ Response contends that even if the conviction data (i) ignored domestic terrorism, (ii) included those extradited to the United States for prosecution, and (iii) distinguished between U.S. citizens by birth and naturalized citizens “the data used was accurately stated and clearly described.” DOJ Response at 2. The conviction data, however, was not accurately stated. The Deputy Director of the FBI admitted to factual errors in the investigation files on which DOJ relied, making both the Departments’ methodology “limited in [its] ability to accurately identify a date/place of birth,” and rendering the conviction data “likely [to] contain[] gaps or errors.” See supra at 2. In doing so, the Departments did not meet its obligation to, in DOJ’s words, “ensure objectivity by using reliable data sources and document[] methods and data sources.” DOJ Response at 2.²⁵ And even assuming that the conviction data is accurate, technical correctness is not necessarily enough to satisfy the Departments' obligations under the IQA, as explained infra.

The Report includes convictions “where the investigation involved an identified link to international terrorism.” Report at 2. This, however, is unclear. As Petitioner’s FOIA request revealed, the data in fact includes anyone charged with terrorism, “regardless of the offense of conviction.” See supra at 2. This means that the Report’s data may include convictions where all terrorism charges were ultimately dropped, or where the defendant was in fact acquitted of terrorism. This is not merely a theoretical problem. Examining the data obtained from the FOIA request, it turns out that only 360 defendants included in NSD’s list were convicted after facing at least one charge directly related to international terrorism. See supra at 2. The Report’s description gives no hint that around one-third of the 549 convictions on which the Report relies were not for terrorism charges at all. Id. This poses a transparency problem under the IQA: the Departments made a significant analytic choice with a clear impact on the Report’s analytic result, but gave the public absolutely no way to determine the magnitude of that impact. See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459.

A similar problem runs through the Department’s exclusion of domestic terrorism and inclusion of those defendants only in the country for prosecution. In a publication that the Report fails to disclose, the Government Accountability Office (“GAO”) found that 62 of 85 violent extremist attacks since September 11, 2001 resulting in a fatality were perpetrated by far-right extremists. See U.S. Gov’t Accountability Office, Countering Violent Extremism: Actions Needed to Define Strategy and Assess Progress of Federal Efforts, at 29-32 (Apr. 2017). And Petitioners have estimated that around 100 of the 360 defendants were only brought to the country for prosecution. See Pet. at 7. While the limitations’ descriptions may have been “clear on [their] face,” DHS Response at 2, their significance was not. As a result, the presentation of the data was neither “clear” nor “complete,” and it did not allow the public (or, as described below, government officials, including the President) to assess the impact of the Departments’ analytic choices. See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459.

DOJ explains the Departments’ decision to distinguish between U.S. citizens by birth and naturalized citizens by pointing to the provision in EO-2 allowing the Departments to include additional information related to public safety. See DOJ Response at 2. This explanation, however, does not track the Report, which included the information in the section supposedly discussing data related to “foreign nationals,” see Report at 2, and not the separate section addressing “additional information,” see id. at 8-10. In any event, neither the Report nor the Responses make any effort to explain why this distinction is related to public safety and security. To the contrary, “[t]his distinction is a departure from the long-standing practice of treating American citizens equally in the context of counterterrorism efforts.” Pet. at 8. The decision to depart from longstanding agency practice and professional consensus should have been made only after expert consultation, see 67 Fed. Reg. at 8453 (requiring expert consultation “as do not yet have complete, final information about these individuals available at the time of this report’s publication, the following are illustrative examples among the 402 convictions of foreign nationals or naturalized U.S. citizens.” Report at 2-3. Read in context, the “complete” and “final” qualifiers at most qualify the choice of the 402 “illustrative” examples, not the conviction data itself. See infra at 14. Even if the Departments’ intended the language to qualify more, it is certainly not “clear,” as required under the IQA.

appropriate”), and with careful explanation to allow the public to properly assess the impact of this significant analytic choice. See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459. Indeed, the Departments’ failure to root this distinction in any reasoned decision-making process, combined with the Departments’ utterly gratuitous comment that it is “committed” to denaturalizing U.S. citizens, see Report at 10, may even suggest bias. See id. (prohibiting bias).

Similar problems are present in the cherry-picked “illustrative examples,” which exclusively focus on individuals who arrived in the country either through the visa lottery program or family-based immigration. See Pet. at 8. While DOJ attempts to brush off any critique as merely Petitioners’ subjective conclusions, DOJ Response at 2, it fails to explain any objective measures by which the Departments chose their examples. Did the Departments carefully categorize how each person on their list arrived in the United States, and select a proportional number of examples from the most common categories? Did they randomly select several examples using some sort of computer program or draw names out of the proverbial hat? Or did they look solely for the most egregious examples within a few select categories based on pre-selected policy priorities set by the Administration? It is simply impossible to tell from the Report—though the fact that not one of the eight examples include someone involuntarily extradited to the United States suggests that the examples are not representative of the underlying data. See Pet. at 7. Whatever these examples are “illustrative” of, it certainly is not the objectivity and transparency required under the IQA. See DOJ Guidelines, supra note 18.

Indeed, the fact that senior DOJ officials expressly refused to credit any data by the intelligence community that did not support the pre-existing “conclusions” of the Attorney General about refugees, see supra at 3-4, suggests that not only is the Report misleading, but that it was in fact a post hoc justification for the Administration’s pre-conceived policy preferences. See Pet. at 6. This is not just the “subjective conclusion” of Petitioners, cf. DOJ Response at 2; the former government officials who attended meetings on Administration immigration policy agreed and concluded that they were unable to express any contrary opinion, no matter where the facts actually led. See supra at 3-4. And DHS officials themselves warned against conflating terrorism and nationality in the manner of this Report. See supra at 4. A one-sided presentation of facts is a quintessential case of bias under the IQA. See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459 (requiring both data and its presentation to be “unbiased”). If the Report merely reflected the Attorney General’s (or the President’s) subjective belief about refugees or other immigration policy, the Departments were obligated to “make it clear that what is being offered is someone’s opinion rather than fact.” See id. at 8460. The Report fails to do so, and therefore violates the IQA.

Ultimately, the public cannot help but be misled by the Report. The Report may even have misled the Secretary of Homeland Security and the President of the United States, both of whom cited the 73% conviction number without any of the qualifications or caveats on which the Departments rely so heavily in their responses. See supra at 5. And they joined with the Attorney General in reading the Report to link immigration to terrorism—a conclusion that may be inconsistent with reality once the assumptions the Departments baked into their analysis are brought to light. If the technicalities on which the Departments depend failed to impress themselves on the Departments’ own Principals, as well as the President of the United States, then it simply defies credulity that the Departments have met their IQA obligations with respect to the general public.

IV. Conclusion

As the Petition explained, the Report violates the Departments' obligations under the IQA. The Departments' Responses fail to adequately address the issues raised in the Petition. As a result, and for the reasons stated above, Petitioners request the Departments reconsider their denial of the Petition, rescind, and/or make all of the suggested corrections requested in the Petition, see supra at 8-9.

Re: Request for Correction Under Information Quality Guidelines

Attorney General Sessions, Secretary Nielsen, Mr. Klimavicz, and Mr. Staropoli:

On January 16, your agencies—the Department of Justice (“DOJ”) and the Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”)—issued a report entitled “Executive Order 13780: Protecting the Nation From Foreign Terrorist Entry Into the United States, Initial Section 11 Report” (hereinafter the “Report” or the “Section 11 Report”).¹ As has been widely reported—and as described in more detail below—the Report is rife with inaccuracies, methodological flaws, and a lack of transparency and objectivity. As such, it falls well short of the data quality obligations imposed by Section 515 of the Treasury and General Government Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2001, Pub L. No. 106-554 § 515(a), 44 U.S.C. § 3516 note (hereinafter the “Data Quality Act” or “DQA”), as well as the implementing guidelines adopted by the Office of Management and Budget (“OMB”)² and your agencies³ (hereinafter the “Information Quality Guidelines” or the “Guidelines”).

Despite its many flaws—or, more accurately, because of them—the Report has been cited and amplified by the Administration as evidence of the need for more restrictive immigration policies. Indeed, the Report was the subject of a dedicated White House press briefing, where Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders stated that it “highlights the urgent need for Congress to adopt the immigration reforms identified in the administration’s priorities.”⁴ And President Trump has repeatedly tweeted about the Report, inaccurately characterizing its findings as showing that “nearly 3 in 4 individuals convicted of terrorism-related charges are foreign born.”⁵

² See Office of Management and Budget, Guidelines for Ensuring and Maximizing the Quality, Objectivity, Utility, and Integrity of Information Disseminated by Federal Agencies; Republication, 67 Fed. Reg. 8452 (Feb. 22, 2002) (“OMB Guidelines”).

Because the Report is being used as part of a misinformation campaign targeted at the American public to justify and support certain immigration policies, it is critical that corrective action be taken to ensure that the public is accurately informed. Therefore, we submit this request for correction under your agencies’ Information Quality Guidelines and ask that you issue a corrected version of the Report that adheres to the requirements of the Guidelines or, in the alternative, that you retract the Report in its entirety. Given the urgency and importance of this matter, we ask that you take these actions as soon as possible, and certainly expect that you will provide a response within 60 calendar days as required by the Guidelines.

The Requestors Have Strong Interests in the Correction of the Inaccurate Data

Protect Democracy is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization dedicated to preventing our democracy from declining into a more authoritarian form of government. To advance this mission, Protect Democracy engages in advocacy and public education to defend core democratic norms and institutions. Protect Democracy has identified the politicization of independent institutions, the spread of disinformation, and the delegitimization of minority communities as particularly acute threats to our democracy, and has actively worked to counter these threats.⁶ The Report is a striking example of these threats, as it presents highly politicized and misleading information dressed up as objective data and statistics, in order to portray immigrants as a danger to our country. As such, the retraction or correction of the Report would advance Protect Democracy’s mission.

The Brennan Center at NYU School of Law is a nonpartisan law and policy institute that seeks to improve our systems of democracy and justice. Through its Liberty & National Security Program, the Brennan Center advocates for effective national security policies that respect constitutional values and the rule of law. In recent months, these efforts have included publishing research evaluating President Donald Trump’s “extreme vetting” as counterterrorism policy,⁷ serving as counsel for plaintiffs challenging the travel ban stemming from Executive Order 13780, and providing other related analysis and commentary directly implicating the data at issue in the Section 11 Report.⁸ As such, retraction or correction of the Report would advance the Brennan Center’s mission.

Benjamin Wittes is a Senior Fellow at the Brookings Institution and the Editor in Chief of Lawfare, a publication concerned with integrity in national security decision-making. He writes frequently about issues related to national security and terrorism, and has written specifically about the Section 11 Report and President Trump’s claim that “according to data provided by the Department of Justice, the vast majority of individuals convicted of terrorism and terrorism-related offenses since 9/11 came here from outside of our country.”⁹ He also filed a Freedom of Information Act request with DOJ for documents related to the President’s claim—in particular, whether data exists to support the claim and whether DOJ actually provided the President with such data. That request is now the subject of ongoing litigation.¹⁰

Nora Ellingsen is a student at Harvard Law School and has worked on national security and terrorism issues. Previously, Nora worked for five years as a Staff Operations Specialist in the Counterterrorism Division of the FBI. In that role, she assisted FBI Special Agents and Assistant U.S. Attorneys in the investigation and prosecution of subjects of FBI international terrorism investigations within the United States and abroad. Since 2016, she has covered national security issues, including international terrorism prosecutions, on Lawfare, including a series of articles using available data to evaluate the President’s claim that “the vast majority of individuals convicted of terrorism and terrorism-related offenses since 9/11 came here from outside of our country.” As a journalist and academic focused on issues directly related to the Report, Nora has an interest in the accuracy of data about terrorism. Retraction or correction of the Report would advance this interest.

Michael F. Crowley is a Senior Fellow at the Brennan Center for Justice at NYU School of Law and a former Senior Policy Analyst with OMB, serving in that capacity from 2004 until 2013 under both Republican and Democratic administrations. With extensive oversight experience involving DOJ, as well as its crime statistics programs, Mr. Crowley has long-standing professional interests in the accurate, fair, and unbiased presentation of data, as well as concerns about the misuse of data to inform government policy. Government policies and strategies that are formulated on the basis of misinformation risk targeting the wrong “problems” and misusing taxpayer resources. The Report is striking because it misuses data in an attempt to mislead, and creates an unsuitable, improper basis for governmental policymaking in the context of immigration and terrorism. As such, it appears to justify immigration policies by assigning extreme risk to a population cohort on a basis that has little factual or analytical merit. Because the Report conflates terrorism and gender-based violence risk with this cohort, it hazards misdirecting federal anti-terrorism, crime, and immigration efforts in ways that are counterproductive, doing little to mitigate any actual terrorism or crime risk. Further, the Report does not meet the requirements of the DQA and is inconsistent with OMB Guidelines regarding the same.

The Departments' Information Quality Guidelines Requires that Disseminated Data Such as the Section 11 Report Meet Certain Quality Standards

The DQA required agencies to adopt policies and procedures “for ensuring and maximizing the quality, objectivity, utility, and integrity of information (including statistical information) disseminated by Federal agencies.” See Pub L. No. 106-554 § 515(a). As explained in the OMB Guidelines implementing this requirement, “the fact that the Internet enables agencies to communicate information quickly and easily to a wide audience not only offers great benefits to society, but also increases the potential harm that can result from the dissemination of information that does not meet basic information quality guidelines.” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8452. As used in the Guidelines, “quality” encompasses “utility, objectivity, and integrity.” Id. at 8459; see also DOJ Guidelines (acknowledging OMB’s definition); DHS Guidelines at 4 (same).

Several aspects of the DQA and its implementing Guidelines are particularly relevant here. First, “[t]he more important the information, the higher the quality standards to which it should be held.” Id. In particular, agencies should provide an added level of scrutiny to information defined as “influential”—that is where “the agency can reasonably determine that dissemination of the information will have or does have a clear and substantial impact on important public policies or important private sector decisions.” Id. at 8460; see also DOJ Guidelines (defining “influential information” as “that which is expected to have a genuinely clear and substantial impact at the national level, or on major public and private policy decisions as they relate to federal justice issues”); DHS Guidelines at 4 (similar).

Second, disseminated information must be objective. As explained in the OMB Guidelines:

“Objectivity” involves two distinct elements, presentation and substance.

a. “Objectivity” includes whether disseminated information is being presented in an accurate, clear, complete, and unbiased manner. This involves whether the information is presented within a proper context. Sometimes, in disseminating certain types of information to the public, other information must also be disseminated in order to ensure an accurate, clear, complete, and unbiased presentation. Also, the agency needs to identify the sources of the disseminated information (to the extent possible, consistent with confidentiality protections) and, in a scientific, financial, or statistical context, the supporting data and models, so that the public can assess for itself whether there may be some reason to question the objectivity of the sources. Where appropriate, data should have full, accurate, transparent documentation, and error sources affecting data quality should be identified and disclosed to users.

b. In addition, “objectivity” involves a focus on ensuring accurate, reliable, and unbiased information. In a scientific, financial, or statistical context, the original and supporting data shall be generated, and the analytic results shall be developed, using sound statistical and research methods.

67 Fed. Reg. at 8459; see also DOJ Guidelines (“DOJ components will ensure disseminated information, as a matter of substance and presentation, is accurate, reliable, and unbiased. Objectivity is achieved by using reliable data sources, sound analytical techniques, and documenting methods and data sources.”); DHS Guidelines at 3-4. When information purports to describe certain risks, the Guidelines expressly incorporate by reference the quality principles in the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, 42 U.S.C. § 300g-1(b)(3)(A) & (B), requiring that agencies use “the best available, peer-reviewed science and supporting studies,” and data “collected by accepted methods or best available methods.” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8460; accord DOJ Guidelines; DHS Guidelines at 5. Agencies should also consult with experts, as appropriate. See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8453.

Finally, the Guidelines require transparency so that the public can understand the agencies’ methodology and analytic choices, and they require that the information be useful.¹¹ “In assessing the usefulness of information that the agency disseminates to the public, the agency needs to consider the uses of the information not only from the perspective of the agency but also from the perspective of the public.” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459.

The Report Fails to Comply with the Guidelines the Agencies Have Set for Themselves

The Report fails to satisfy the agencies’ information quality obligations in multiple respects. As an initial matter, the Report should be subject to a heightened degree of scrutiny because it is “influential” as defined by the Guidelines. See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8460; DOJ Guidelines; DHS Guidelines at 4. The Report was issued pursuant to Executive Order 13780 and is clearly intended to advance the Administration’s immigration agenda and to have “a clear and substantial impact,” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8460, on federal immigration policy. Indeed, the release of the Report appears to have been timed to coincide with active congressional negotiations over immigration policy, and the Executive Branch has amplified the Report's conclusions and repeatedly cited them as a justification for more restrictive immigration policies.¹² President Trump himself characterized the Report's findings as showing that “nearly 3 in 4 individuals convicted of terrorism-related charges are foreign born”—eliding the distinction between international and domestic terrorism—and invoked it as support for restrictive immigration policies.¹³

In general, the Report falls well short of the requirements of the DQA and the Guidelines that “disseminated information [be] presented in an accurate, clear, complete, and unbiased manner” and “within a proper context.” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459. While the Report purports to be a sober, evidence-based analysis of the nationality of those charged with terrorism-related offenses, it instead presents data in a misleading way in order to advance a biased narrative that immigrants present a threat to our country. According to Attorney General Sessions, the Report “reveals an indisputable sobering reality—our immigration system has undermined our national security and public safety.”¹⁴ DHS Secretary Nielsen described the Report as “a clear reminder of why we cannot continue to rely on immigration policy based on pre-9/11 thinking that leaves us woefully vulnerable to foreign-born terrorists, and why we must examine our visa laws and continue to intensify screening and vetting of individuals traveling to the United States to prevent terrorists, criminals, and other dangerous individuals from reaching our country.”¹⁵ And according to the White House, the Report “shows, once again, that our current immigration system jeopardizes our national security” and that it is “TIME TO END CHAIN MIGRATION AND THE VISA LOTTERY.”¹⁶

The Report manifests a lack of objectivity and even outright bias in several specific ways, all of which violate the DQA and the Guidelines. While this list is not exhaustive, the Report violates the legal requirements in the following respects:

¹³ <https://twitter.com/realDonaldTrump/status/953406423177859073>. Indeed, the Report seems to be constructed specifically to back up President Trump’s assertion—made during a February 28, 2017 address to Congress—that “[a]ccording to data provided by the Department of Justice, the vast majority of individuals convicted of terrorism-related offenses since 9/11 came here from outside of our country,” regardless of what the data actually shows. See Michelle Ye Hee Lee, President Trump’s Claim That Foreigners are Responsible for “the Vast Majority” of Terrorism Convictions Since 9/11, Wash. Post, Aug. 15, 2017, https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/fact-checker/wp/2017/08/15/president-trumps-claim-that-foreigners-comprise-the-vast-majority-of-terrorism-convictions-since-911/?utm_term=.f5afaa051d0a.

1. Exclusion of domestic terrorism. The Report is limited to “terrorist acts planned or committed outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United States over which Federal criminal jurisdiction exists and those within the United States involving international terrorists and terrorist groups,” and omits “individuals convicted of offenses relating to domestic terrorism.” Report at 2. In other words, the Report includes only those terrorism-related offenses that almost by definition are far more likely to be committed by foreign nationals and excludes those that are far more likely to be committed by U.S. citizens. While there is nothing inherently wrong with an analysis of international terrorism-related charges, by focusing exclusively on the contribution of foreign-born individuals to the problem of terrorism while omitting significant categories of domestic actors, the Report leaves the reader with the impression that foreign-born individuals are the primary perpetrators of acts of terrorism more generally. To the contrary, “[d]omestic terrorism convictions account for the majority of terrorism convictions in the U.S. since Sept. 11, 2001, and those convicted of domestic terrorism charges are less likely to be foreign-born than their international terrorism counterparts.”¹⁷
2. Distorted information relating to extraditions and capture. The Report’s primary conclusion is that, of the 549 individuals convicted of international terrorism-related charges in U.S. federal courts between September 11, 2001 and December 31, 2016, 73 percent were foreign-born. See Report at 2. This includes 254 non-citizens and 148 naturalized citizens. Id. However, the Report mentions only once—and only in passing—that these numbers include “defendants who were transported to the United States for prosecution,” id., but nowhere identifies how many such individuals are contained in the relevant dataset. This omission leaves the reader with the impression that the convicted individuals were predominantly immigrants to the country. In fact, it is highly likely that the data included approximately 100 individuals who were extradited into the United States or captured and brought to the United States for prosecution, and thus would not have been affected by U.S. immigration policy and/or interacted with the U.S. immigration system.¹⁸ The inclusion of these individuals without a clear explanation is inconsistent with the requirement that information be presented in an “accurate, clear, complete, and unbiased manner” and put “in a proper context.” 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459.

3. Failure to provide important information about underlying data. The Report relies on a list of terrorism-related convictions maintained by DOJ’s National Security Division (“NSD”). According to documents obtained in response to a FOIA request submitted by Mr. Wittes, NSD never shares this data without including a lengthy explanatory preamble. Indeed, in an email regarding the underlying NSD data, a senior NSD official emphasized that “[t]he scope and limitations of the information contained in the chart are fully described in its preamble, which should always accompany the chart.” See Exhibit A. Later in the same email, the official again explained that “the explanations/caveats in the preamble always need to accompany that total number [of convictions listed on the chart]—which is why the chart and the preamble should always be distributed and read together.” Id. Yet, the Report does not include much of the information contained in the preamble, thereby omitting important context about the underlying data.
4. Manufactured distinctions between U.S. citizens. As alluded to above, the Report draws a distinction between those who are U.S. citizens by birth and those who are naturalized citizens. See Report at 2. This distinction is a “departure from the long-standing practice of treating American citizens equally in the context of counterterrorism efforts—without any basis in fact, study or analysis” and is irrelevant in the context of national security law or immigration law.¹⁹ Yet, the Report does not even attempt to explain why it is relevant for its own purposes. Indeed, the Report goes so far as to suggest—again, without any explanation—that the citizenship status of parents of the U.S. citizens by birth who were convicted of terrorism-related offenses might be relevant data. See Report at 2 n.1. In this respect, the Report even departs from its authorizing Executive Order, which instructs the Departments to provide certain information on “foreign nationals,” without any mention of foreign-born U.S. citizens. See Exec. Order No. 13780, 82 Fed. Reg. 13209, 13217 (Mar. 6, 2017).
5. Cherry-picked and unrepresentative examples. The Report provides eight “illustrative examples” of the 402 foreign-born individuals convicted of international terrorism-related charges. Id. at 3. Of those eight individuals, two entered the United States as a result of the visa lottery program (one as the recipient of a visa and one as the child of a recipient) and five were admitted as family members of naturalized citizens or lawful permanent residents. According to the White House, this shows that “[a] significant number of terrorists have entered the United States solely on the basis of family ties and extended-family chain migration,” that “[t]errorists have also entered the United States through the visa lottery program,” and that “chain migration” and the visa lottery present a threat to our national security. See White House Fact Sheet. However, the Report provides no information about how many of the 394 other foreign-born individuals entered the United States as a result of “chain migration” or the visa lottery program, and thus, there is no way to know whether the examples are indeed “illustrative.”

¹⁹ Carrie Cordero and Paul Rosenzweig, Beware the Slippery Slope in the DOJ-DHS Report on Foreign-Born Terrorists, Lawfare, Jan. 19, 2018, <https://www.lawfareblog.com/beware-slippery-slope-doj-dhs-report-foreign-born-terrorists>.

6. Failure to provide critical underlying information and context about terrorist watchlist claim. The Report states that “[i]n fiscal year 2017, DHS had 2,554 encounters with individuals on the terrorist watchlist . . . traveling to the United States.” Report at 9. But the underlying data is not provided, and it is widely acknowledged that the watchlist is substantially overbroad.²⁰ Furthermore, the Report does not define what counts as an “encounter,” including whether the number includes someone who was an inconclusive or incorrect match with a name on the watchlist. See Report at 9.
7. Gender based violence. The Report’s section on violence against women repeatedly misrepresents or fails to put into proper context the sources on which it relies, in an apparent attempt to create the false impression that immigrants are more likely to commit acts of gender-based violence. See Report at 7-8. For example, the Report relies on a 2011 GAO report for the proposition that “aliens were convicted for [sic] 69,929 sex offenses” during the period from 2003-2009. Id. at 8. This claim is wrong in several obvious ways. First, the number 69,929 comes from a table in the GAO report that estimates the number of “Criminal Alien Arrest Offenses by Type of Offense.”²¹ An arrest is not a conviction, as the GAO report explicitly states.²² And “a single arrest can be for multiple offenses,” so 69,929 offenses does not mean that 69,929 people were arrested.²³ The claim that the 69,929 “convictions” occurred over the seven year period from 2003-2009 is also mistaken, as the GAO “analysis includes criminal aliens with arrests dating from August 1955 to April 2010.”²⁴ Finally, the Report assumes, without explaining its assumption, that “sex offenses . . . in most instances constitutes gender-based violence against women.” Report at 8. At the same time, the Report admits that this assumption is “not explicitly stated in the [GAO] report” and indeed, for state arrest offenses and convictions, the GAO report defines “sex offenses” to include “indecent exposure” and “prostitution,”²⁵ the latter of which is more often charged to women.²⁶
8. Honor killings and forced marriages. The Report’s discussion of honor killings and forced marriages is similarly flawed. The Report states that an “estimated . . . 23-27 honor killings occur every year in the United States.” Report at 8. That number comes from a study commissioned by a group headed by Ayaan Hirsi Ali, a fervent critic of Islam who has been characterized as trafficking in discourse stigmatizing Muslim communities and “argu[ing] that immigrants have no interest in being law-abiding citizens.”²⁷ Furthermore, according to the lead researcher who produced the “23-27” number cited in the administration’s report, the estimate was “not terribly scientific” given the lack of data available: it was arrived at by extrapolating based on the frequency of honor killings in selected European countries and combining that with American crime and demographic figures.²⁸ The Report’s estimate that “approximately 1,500 forced marriages occur every year in the United States,” Report at 8, also misstates the underlying data. That statistic comes from a 2014 study commissioned by the Bureau of Justice Statistics that relied on data from the Tahirih Justice Center.²⁹ But that data showed only that legal and social service providers “encountered as many as 3,000 cases of forced marriage during [a] two year window, not that the marriages occurred during that time.”³⁰ Furthermore, those cases could have occurred outside the United States, and “[b]oth the victims and perpetrators were diverse in religious, ethnic, and national background, including U.S. citizens and immigrants.”³¹ As a general matter, the Report portrays forced marriages as a problem attributable to immigration, when it is in fact a significant domestic issue.³²

9. Lack of transparency. The Report suffers from a general lack of transparency about the underlying data on which it relies. As previously mentioned, it provides no information that can be used to assess whether the individuals named in the Report are truly “illustrative.” More fundamentally, while the Report is largely based on “a list maintained by DOJ’s National Security Division” and subsequent DHS analysis of that list, Report at 2, neither the list nor the analysis has been made public.³³ The same can be said of the list of 1,716 aliens who were removed because of “national security concerns,” Report at 7, and, as discussed above, the 2,554 DHS “encounters with individuals on the terrorist watchlist . . . traveling to the United States,” Report at 9. In short, there is no way for the public to assess the reliability of the underlying data or the agencies’ analysis of that data, as required by the DQA and the Guidelines. See 67 Fed. Reg. at 8459.

Individually, each one of these flaws requires correction to ensure that the Report satisfies the requirements the agencies have set forth in the Guidelines. Taken together, the effect is magnified and they render the Report deeply misleading.

The Agencies Should Retract the Report or Make the Following Corrections to Adhere to the Information Quality Guidelines

We believe that the Report is so saturated with bias and a lack of objectivity—both in conception and execution—that the appropriate course is to retract it in its entirety, and we ask that you do so. However, should you decline to retract the Report, we would ask that you take the following steps to correct it and reissue a revised version:

1. Include data and appropriate context regarding domestic terrorism-related convictions;
2. Include data and appropriate context regarding the underlying data in which the Report relies, including the number of foreign-born individuals convicted of international terrorism-related offenses who were extradited to the United States for prosecution;
3. Explain why drawing a distinction between naturalized citizens and citizens by birth is relevant, as well as why information about the citizenship of the parents of citizens by birth is relevant;
4. Include data to support the assertion that the eight individuals named in the Report are “illustrative,” particularly as to their method of admission to the United States (or, if such data are unavailable, provide context so that the public can judge whether the examples are truly “illustrative”);
5. Provide additional information about DHS’s 2,554 encounters with individuals on the terrorist watchlist, including how an “encounter” is defined;
6. Correct data and appropriate context regarding gender-based violence, honor killings, and forced marriages;
7. Provide access to the data underlying the Report; and
8. Consult with relevant experts, including career DHS officials and those in the private sector.

Conclusion

The American people rely on the U.S. government to provide accurate, objective, and unbiased data. In our democracy, that allows the public to understand the policy choices facing our country and to hold our government accountable. Your agencies, which are responsible for law enforcement and homeland security, must maintain the trust of the American people in order to fulfill their missions. Furthermore, Congress has mandated the adoption of information quality guidelines and, pursuant to that obligation, each of your agencies has adopted such guidelines. The Report fails to adhere to these legal requirements and fails to provide accurate and objective information as required by the DQA and your agencies' Guidelines. We ask that you retract the Report or make the corrections set forth above. We look forward to hearing from you and thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

PUBLIC/UNSEALED INTERNATIONAL TERRORISM AND TERRORISM-RELATED
CONVICTIONS FROM 9/11/01 TO 12/31/16

The National Security Division's Chart of Public/Unsealed International Terrorism and Terrorism-Related Convictions tracks public/unsealed convictions resulting from international terrorism investigations conducted since September 11, 2001, including investigations of terrorist acts planned or committed outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United States over which Federal criminal jurisdiction exists and those within the United States involving international terrorists and terrorist groups. Convictions listed on the attached chart involve the use of a variety of Federal criminal statutes available to prevent, disrupt, and punish international terrorism and related criminal activity. The convictions are the product of the Department's aggressive, consistent, and coordinated national enforcement effort with respect to international terrorism that was undertaken after the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

Criminal cases arising from international terrorism investigations are divided into two categories, according to the level of coordination and monitoring required by the Counterterrorism Section of the National Security Division (or its predecessor section in the Criminal Division). This nationwide coordination and monitoring of international terrorism matters is designed to ensure coherent, consistent, and effective use and application of the statutes available for use in the prosecution of such matters.

Category I cases involve charged violations of federal statutes that are directly related to international terrorism (regardless of the offense of conviction). These statutes prohibit, for example, terrorist acts abroad against United States nationals, the use of weapons of mass destruction, conspiracy to murder persons overseas, providing material support to terrorists or foreign terrorist organizations, receiving military style training from foreign terrorist organizations, and bombings of public places or government facilities. A complete list of Category I offenses is found in Appendix A.

Category II cases involve charged violations of a variety of other statutes where the investigation involved an identified link to international terrorism. These Category II cases include offenses such as those involving fraud, immigration, firearms, drugs, false statements, perjury, and obstruction of justice, as well as general conspiracy charges under 18 U.S.C. § 371. Prosecuting terror-related targets using Category II offenses and others is often an effective method – and sometimes the only available method – of deterring and disrupting potential terrorist planning and support activities. This approach underscores the wide variety of tools available in the U.S. criminal justice system for disrupting terror activity. Examples of Category II offenses are listed in Appendix B, and examples of Category II cases are described in Appendix C to illustrate the kinds of connections to international terrorism that are not apparent from the nature of the offenses of conviction themselves.

The attached chart includes the defendant's name, district, charging date, charges brought, classification category, conviction date, and charges of conviction. If a convicted defendant has been sentenced, the relevant date and sentence imposed is included. The chart includes only public/unsealed convictions from September 11, 2001 to December 31, 2016. The chart does not include defendants whose convictions remain under seal, nor does it include defendants who were charged with terrorism or terrorism-related offenses but, as of December 31, 2016, had not been convicted either at trial or by guilty plea. The chart does not include convictions related solely to domestic terrorism. Note that the chart maintained by the National Security Division is distinct from statistics maintained by the Bureau of Prisons to track inmates with terrorist connections. The chart lists more than 360 defendants classified in Category I and more than 300 defendants classified in Category II.

The chart is organized by conviction date, with the most recent convictions first. The last group of defendants included on the chart were identified during the course of the nationwide investigation conducted after September 11, 2001, and were subsequently charged with a criminal offense. Individuals whose convictions arose from this initial terrorism investigation were included on the chart at that time regardless of whether investigators developed or identified evidence that they had any connection to international terrorism. Since then, additional defendants have been added to this chart only if, at the time of charging, they appeared to have a connection to international terrorism, even if they were not charged with a terrorism offense. The decision to add defendants to the chart is made on a case-by-case basis by career prosecutors in the National Security Division's Counterterrorism Section, whose primary responsibility is investigating and prosecuting international and domestic terrorism cases to prevent and disrupt acts of terrorism anywhere in the world that impact on significant United States interests and persons.

Appendix C

Examples of Category II Terrorism-Related Convictions

Fort Dix Plot (conspiracy to murder members of the U.S. military). In 2008, following a jury trial in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey, Ibrahim Shnewer, Dritan Duka, Shain Duka, Eljvir Duka and Serdar Tatar were convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. §1117, in connection with a plot to kill members of the U.S. military in an armed attack on the military base at Fort Dix, New Jersey. The defendants were also convicted of various weapons charges. The government's evidence revealed that one member of the group conducted surveillance at Fort Dix and Fort Monmouth in New Jersey, Dover Air Force Base in Delaware, and the U.S. Coast Guard in Philadelphia. The group obtained a detailed map of Fort Dix, where they hoped to use assault rifles to kill as many soldiers as possible. During the trial, the jury viewed secretly recorded videotapes of the defendants performing small-arms training at a shooting range in the Poconos Mountains in Pennsylvania and of the defendants watching training videos that included depictions of American soldiers being killed and of known Islamic radicals urging jihad against the United States.

Fawaz Damrah (citizenship fraud). In 2004, following a jury trial in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, Fawaz Damrah was convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1425 for concealing material facts in his citizenship application. The government's evidence showed that in his citizenship application, Damrah concealed from the U.S. government his membership in or affiliation with the Palestinian Islamic Jihad (PIJ), a.k.a. the Islamic Jihad Movement in Palestine; the Afghan Refugees Services, Inc., a.k.a. Al-Kifah Refugee Center; and the Islamic Committee for Palestine. Damrah further concealed the fact that he had, prior to his application for U.S. citizenship, "incited, assisted, or otherwise participated in the persecution" of Jews and others by advocating violent terrorist attacks against Jews and others. During the trial, the government's evidence included footage of a 1991 speech in which Damrah called Jews "the sons of monkeys and pigs," and a 1989 speech in which he declared that "terrorism and terrorism alone is the path to liberation."

Soliman Biheiri (false statements and passport fraud). In 2003 and 2004, following two jury trials in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, Soliman Biheiri was convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. §§ 1425 and 1546 for fraudulently procuring a passport, as well as 18 U.S.C. §§ 1001 and 1015 for making false statements to federal agents. Biheiri was the president of BMI, Inc., a New Jersey-based investment firm. The government's evidence showed that Biheiri had deliberately deceived federal agents during a June 2003 interview in which he denied having business or personal ties to Mousa Abu Marzook, a Specially Designated Global Terrorist and a leader of Hamas. In fact, the government's evidence showed that Biheiri had managed funds for Marzook both before and after Marzook was designated as a terrorist by the U.S. government in 1995. Specifically, the government presented files seized from Biheiri's computer showing that Marzook had invested $1 million in U.S. business ventures managed by Biheiri and his investment firm.

Mohammad Salman Farooq Qureshi (false statements). In 2005, following the entry of a guilty plea in the United States District Court for the Western District of Louisiana, Qureshi was convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1001 for making false statements to the FBI regarding the nature and extent of his involvement with al-Qaeda member Wadih El Hage, and the non-governmental organization Help Africa People. Qureshi was interviewed by the FBI in 1997, 1998, 2000, and 2004 in relation to terrorism crimes and during those interviews lied about his knowledge of El Hage, Help Africa People, and other al Qaeda members. The proffer filed in support of the plea agreement established Qureshi's connections to and contacts with El Hage, his contact with a subject under investigation in Oregon, and his activities and financial support of Help Africa People, a non-governmental organization believed to have been used by El Hage and others to provide cover identities and funds in connection with the 1998 attacks on the United States Embassies in Kenya and Tanzania. By Qureshi's admissions, at least $30,000 in Qureshi's funds were given to El Hage in Nairobi, Kenya. El Hage is serving a life sentence for his role in the East Africa Embassy bombings.

Sabri Benkahla (perjury, obstruction, false statements). In 2007, following a jury trial in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, Sabri Benkahla was convicted on two counts of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1623, for perjury, one count of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1503 for obstructing justice, and one count of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1001 for making false statements to the FBI. These false statements included denial of his involvement with an overseas jihad training camp in 1999, as well as his asserted lack of knowledge about individuals with whom he was in contact. The government's evidence revealed that the grand jury and FBI in 2004 sought to question Benkahla about his contacts with Ibrahim Buisir of Ireland, and Manaf Kasmuri of Malaysia, both of whom are Specially Designated Global Terrorists, as well as those with Ahmed Abu Ali, his friend and fellow student at the University of Medina, until both were arrested by Saudi authorities in June 2003. Further, the government's evidence revealed that the grand jury and FBI sought to question Benkahla about his contacts with an individual suspected of being Malik al-Tunisi, a facilitator for the al-Zarqawi terrorist network in Iraq.

Akram Musa Abdallah (false statements). In 2009, following the entry of a guilty plea in the United States District Court for the District of Arizona, Akram Musa Abdallah was convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1001 for making false statements to the FBI. In January 2007, Abdallah knowingly made a false material statement to special agents of the FBI during an interview in connection with the federal investigation and prosecution of the Holy Land Foundation for Relief & Development (HLF) and its officers. At the time of the interviews, Abdallah knew the HLF was a Specially Designated Global Terrorist organization. Abdallah also knew that when he was interviewed, the HLF and its officers were pending trial in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, for crimes including providing material support to a foreign terrorist organization. During the interviews, Abdallah told FBI agents he was not involved in fundraising activities for the HLF, when, in fact, between approximately 1994 and 1997, Abdallah was involved in numerous fundraising activities, including collecting donations, organizing, facilitating and coordinating fund raising events on behalf of the HLF in the Phoenix metropolitan area. In July 2004, the HLF and seven of its principals were indicted on a variety of charges stemming from its financial support of Hamas, and in November 2008, after a two-month trial, those defendants were convicted on all charges.

Dear Mr. Berwick, Ms. Patel, Mr. Wittes, Mr. Crowley, and Ms. Ellingsen:

The Department of Justice (Department) writes in further response to your February 8, 2018, request for correction under the Information Quality Act (IQA) and the Department's implementing guidelines. See U.S. Dep't Justice, Information Quality: Ensuring the Quality of the Information Disseminated by the Department (Nov. 1, 2016) (the "IQA Guidelines"), available online at <https://www.justice.gov/iqpr/information-quality>. Your request seeks retraction and correction of information in Executive Order 13780: Protecting the Nation from Foreign Terrorist Entry Into the United States Initial Section 11 Report (Initial Section 11 Report or Report). The Department provided an interim response on June 19, 2018. As noted in that response, the Department required additional time to resolve your request given the number and complexity of issues raised in your request.

The Department has considered your IQA request reviewed against the Initial Section 11 Report. The IQA Guidelines require that Department components ensure the quality, objectivity, utility, and integrity of information disseminated. Consistent with the directive to ensure objectivity by using reliable data sources and documentation of methods and data sources, the Initial Section 11 Report outlines the scope and source of the data utilized and, where applicable, provides appropriate caveats, thereby meeting all applicable requirements.

In your objections to the Initial Section 11 Report, you first raise a concern about over-inclusivity. Your letter asserts that the Report violated the IQA by drawing “a distinction between those who are U.S. citizens by birth and those who are naturalized citizens.” As you acknowledge on page 7, however, the Report provided figures for both foreign-born individuals and foreign nationals. It is no violation to provide additional data, particularly when Executive Order 13780 requires “[a]ny other information relevant to public safety and security as determined by the Secretary of Homeland Security or the Attorney General.” The letter does not challenge the reliability or accuracy of this information.

Second, your letter alleges that the Report ignores instances of domestic terrorism. The Report, however, clarifies that the Report “does not include individuals convicted of offenses relating to domestic terrorism, nor does it include information related to terrorism-related convictions in state courts.” As you may be aware, the federal criminal code contains no statute specifically prohibiting “domestic terrorism,” which is often prosecuted at the state level, and the Department therefore does not possess comprehensive data on such activity, assuming such data would have been responsive to the Executive Order. In light of the accurate descriptions of the data used in the Report, and the relevant caveats and noted limitations, the data contained in the Report is not misleading.

Third, your letter alleges that the inclusion of individuals extradited to the United States for prosecution is misleading. Again, the data used was clearly stated and accurately described. The Report stated that the “information includes . . . defendants who were transported to the United States for prosecution.” Id. The accurate description of the data included allows the reader to draw his or her own conclusions.

Fourth, your letter alleges that the Report’s examples of foreign nationals perpetuate a “biased narrative” and are misleading. That charge is a subjective conclusion based on your interpretation of the Report and is premised on the alleged existence of a preexisting

Ben Berwick
Faiza Patel
Benjamin Wittes
Michael F. Crowley

“narrative.” The Department disagrees with your subjective conclusion and its premise and, in any event, your conclusion presents no cognizable violation of the Department’s Guidelines.

Fifth, you have also noted a lack of data in the federal government regarding domestic violence and honor killings. The Report acknowledges that the “federal government lacks comprehensive data regarding incidents of such offenses,” as there is no federal statute specifically addressing honor killings and most domestic violence offenses are prosecuted at the state level. Id. at 8. In an effort to disseminate information about these crimes, which are of a complex and highly sensitive nature, the Office of Justice Programs (OJP) is conducting two independent reviews of relevant research pertaining to honor violence in the United States. The first is an internal review, led by social science analysts and research assistants at the National Institute of Justice who specialize in gender-based violence. This review will result in a report summarizing the current state of research with regards to scope, scale, methods, context, and the criminal justice response. The second review anticipates an externally commissioned report by a researcher who specializes in exploring and understanding honor crimes in the United States.

Finally, your letter takes issue with certain statements of the Attorney General in a press release announcing the Report. Such statements are, of course, not part of the Report that is the subject of your request. In any event, the IQA Guidelines do not apply to press releases announcing or supporting the release of information. U.S. Dep’t Justice, Information Quality: Ensuring the Quality of the Information Disseminated by the Department (Nov. 1, 2016), <https://www.justice.gov/iqpr/information-quality>. Any statements made by the Department as part of a press statement in advance of the release of this Report are outside the scope of the IQA. Id.

For the reasons above, the Department has determined that there is no inconsistency with the IQA Guidelines. The Department concludes that neither retraction nor correction of information in the Initial Section 11 Report is required under the IQA Guidelines.

Dear Mr. Berwick, Ms. Patel, Mr. Wittes, Mr. Crowley, and Ms. Ellingsen:

The Department of Homeland Security (“Department”) writes in further response to your February 8, 2018, request for correction under the Department’s Information Quality Act (“IQA”) guidelines. Your request seeks retraction and correction of information in the Executive Order 13780: Protecting the Nation from Foreign Terrorist Entry Into the United States Initial Section 11 Report (“Initial Section 11 Report” or “Report”). The Department provided an interim response to your request on June 19, 2018. As noted in that response, the Department required additional time to resolve your request given the number and complexity of issues raised in your request.

The Department has now completed its review of your IQA request and its contentions in connection with the Initial Section 11 Report and the Department's IQA guidelines. Based on information presently available, the Department has determined that there is no inconsistency with the information contained in the Initial Section 11 Report and the Department's IQA guidelines.

Section 11(i) of Executive Order (EO) 13780 required the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Attorney General, to provide information regarding the number of foreign nationals in the United States who have been: charged with terrorism-related offenses while in the United States; convicted of terrorism-related offenses while in the United States; or removed from the United States based on terrorism-related activity, affiliation with or provision of material support to a terrorism-related organization, or any other national-security-related reasons. Pursuant to Section 11(i), the Department and the Department of Justice (DOJ) worked collaboratively to provide the information for the Initial Section 11 Report.

In the request, you ask that additional data, context, and explanations be provided. For instance, you argue that the Report should include information on domestic terrorism. However, the Report specifically identified what information was available and noted that because of previous information collection practices some of the data presented did not capture the full spectrum of statistics envisioned by the EO. Report at 1. As the Report makes clear on its face, the scope of the data on terrorism convictions is confined to international terrorism-related offenses. Id. at 2. On this point as with other data, the information contained in the Report is annotated to explain the data being provided, and the Report contains caveats for the data limitations. For example, the report provides that "DHS and DOJ do not yet have complete, final information" concerning the 402 convictions of foreign nationals or naturalized U.S. citizens. Id. at 2-3. Where data was not available, the lack of data is either noted in the report or other sources of estimated data are referenced with citations to those sources. Id. at 8 & n.15.

Much of your request does not specifically challenge the accuracy of the data contained in the Report, but rather requests that the Report be amended to include "appropriate context." In addition, you advance arguments based not on the data in the Report itself, but on your differing interpretation of that data, which do not warrant correction under the Department's IQA guidelines. As noted in the Report, the Department will endeavor to provide additional information in future reports that are required to be issued under the EO. With respect to such future reports, the Department is working to refine the available data, provide more detail where practicable, and examine other datasets that might warrant release in the interest of transparency about the threat environment, especially the challenge of terrorist recruitment and radicalization.

Based on its review of your request, the Department concludes that neither retraction nor correction of information in the Initial Section 11 Report is warranted, and therefore denies your request. As noted above, the Department will be providing additional information, consistent with privacy protections and other limitations, in future reports issued pursuant to the requirements of Executive Order 13780. The Department will take the points raised in your IQA request into consideration in the preparation of future reports.

The Department's IQA guidelines provide petitioners with the right to an administrative appeal. Any appeal of the Department's decision on your request must be submitted within 45 business days of this response letter. Please direct any appeals to:

INTRODUCTION TO THE NATIONAL SECURITY DIVISION'S CHART OF
PUBLIC/UNSEALED INTERNATIONAL TERRORISM AND TERRORISM-RELATED
CONVICTIONS FROM 9/11/01 TO 12/31/16

The National Security Division's Chart of Public/Unsealed International Terrorism and Terrorism-Related Convictions tracks public/unsealed convictions resulting from international terrorism investigations conducted since September 11, 2001, including investigations of terrorist acts planned or committed outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United States over which Federal criminal jurisdiction exists and those within the United States involving international terrorists and terrorist groups. Convictions listed on the attached chart involve the use of a variety of Federal criminal statutes available to prevent, disrupt, and punish international terrorism and related criminal activity. The convictions are the product of the Department's aggressive, consistent, and coordinated national enforcement effort with respect to international terrorism that was undertaken after the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

Criminal cases arising from international terrorism investigations are divided into two categories, according to the level of coordination and monitoring required by the Counterterrorism Section of the National Security Division (or its predecessor section in the Criminal Division). This nationwide coordination and monitoring of international terrorism matters is designed to ensure coherent, consistent, and effective use and application of the statutes available for use in the prosecution of such matters.

Category I cases involve charged violations of federal statutes that are directly related to international terrorism (regardless of the offense of conviction). These statutes prohibit, for example, terrorist acts abroad against United States nationals, the use of weapons of mass destruction, conspiracy to murder persons overseas, providing material support to terrorists or foreign terrorist organizations, receiving military style training from foreign terrorist organizations, and bombings of public places or government facilities. A complete list of Category I offenses is found in Appendix A.

Category II cases involve charged violations of a variety of other statutes where the investigation involved an identified link to international terrorism. These Category II cases include offenses such as those involving fraud, immigration, firearms, drugs, false statements, perjury, and obstruction of justice, as well as general conspiracy charges under 18 U.S.C. § 371. Prosecuting terror-related targets using Category II offenses and others is often an effective method – and sometimes the only available method – of deterring and disrupting potential terrorist planning and support activities. This approach underscores the wide variety of tools available in the U.S. criminal justice system for disrupting terror activity. Examples of Category II offenses are listed in Appendix B, and examples of Category II cases are described in Appendix C to illustrate the kinds of connections to international terrorism that are not apparent from the nature of the offenses of conviction themselves.

The attached chart includes the defendant's name, district, charging date, charges brought, classification category, conviction date, and charges of conviction. If a convicted defendant has been sentenced, the relevant date and sentence imposed is included. The chart includes only public/unsealed convictions from September 11, 2001 to December 31, 2016. The chart does not include defendants whose convictions remain under seal, nor does it include defendants who were charged with terrorism or terrorism-related offenses but, as of December 31, 2016, had not been convicted either at trial or by guilty plea. The chart does not include convictions related solely to domestic terrorism. Note that the chart maintained by the National Security Division is distinct from statistics maintained by the Bureau of Prisons to track inmates with terrorist connections. The chart lists more than 360 defendants classified in Category I and more than 300 defendants classified in Category II.

The chart is organized by conviction date, with the most recent convictions first. The last group of defendants included on the chart were identified during the course of the nationwide investigation conducted after September 11, 2001, and were subsequently charged with a criminal offense. Individuals whose convictions arose from this initial terrorism investigation were included on the chart at that time regardless of whether investigators developed or identified evidence that they had any connection to international terrorism. Since then, additional defendants have been added to this chart only if, at the time of charging, they appeared to have a connection to international terrorism, even if they were not charged with a terrorism offense. The decision to add defendants to the chart is made on a case-by-case basis by career prosecutors in the National Security Division's Counterterrorism Section, whose primary responsibility is investigating and prosecuting international and domestic terrorism cases to prevent and disrupt acts of terrorism anywhere in the world that impact on significant United States interests and persons.

Appendix C

Examples of Category II Terrorism-Related Convictions

Fort Dix Plot (conspiracy to murder members of the U.S. military). In 2008, following a jury trial in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey, Ibrahim Shnewer, Dritan Duka, Shain Duka, Eljvir Duka and Serdar Tatar were convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. §1117, in connection with a plot to kill members of the U.S. military in an armed attack on the military base at Fort Dix, New Jersey. The defendants were also convicted of various weapons charges. The government's evidence revealed that one member of the group conducted surveillance at Fort Dix and Fort Monmouth in New Jersey, Dover Air Force Base in Delaware, and the U.S. Coast Guard in Philadelphia. The group obtained a detailed map of Fort Dix, where they hoped to use assault rifles to kill as many soldiers as possible. During the trial, the jury viewed secretly recorded videotapes of the defendants performing small-arms training at a shooting range in the Poconos Mountains in Pennsylvania and of the defendants watching training videos that included depictions of American soldiers being killed and of known Islamic radicals urging jihad against the United States.

Fawaz Damrah (citizenship fraud). In 2004, following a jury trial in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, Fawaz Damrah was convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1425 for concealing material facts in his citizenship application. The government's evidence showed that in his citizenship application, Damrah concealed from the U.S. government his membership in or affiliation with the Palestinian Islamic Jihad (PIJ), a.k.a. the Islamic Jihad Movement in Palestine; the Afghan Refugees Services, Inc., a.k.a. Al-Kifah Refugee Center; and the Islamic Committee for Palestine. Damrah further concealed the fact that he had, prior to his application for U.S. citizenship, "incited, assisted, or otherwise participated in the persecution" of Jews and others by advocating violent terrorist attacks against Jews and others. During the trial, the government's evidence included footage of a 1991 speech in which Damrah called Jews "the sons of monkeys and pigs," and a 1989 speech in which he declared that "terrorism and terrorism alone is the path to liberation."

Soliman Biheiri (false statements and passport fraud). In 2003 and 2004, following two jury trials in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, Soliman Biheiri was convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. §§ 1425 and 1546 for fraudulently procuring a passport, as well as 18 U.S.C. §§ 1001 and 1015 for making false statements to federal agents. Biheiri was the president of BMI, Inc., a New Jersey-based investment firm. The government's evidence showed that Biheiri had deliberately deceived federal agents during a June 2003 interview in which he denied having business or personal ties to Mousa Abu Marzook, a Specially Designated Global Terrorist and a leader of Hamas. In fact, the government's evidence showed that Biheiri had managed funds for Marzook both before and after Marzook was designated as a terrorist by the U.S. government in 1995. Specifically, the government presented files seized from Biheiri's computer showing that Marzook had invested $1 million in U.S. business ventures managed by Biheiri and his investment firm.

Mohammad Salman Farooq Qureshi (false statements). In 2005, following the entry of a guilty plea in the United States District Court for the Western District of Louisiana, Qureshi was convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1001 for making false statements to the FBI regarding the nature and extent of his involvement with al-Qaeda member Wadih El Hage, and the non-governmental organization Help Africa People. Qureshi was interviewed by the FBI in 1997, 1998, 2000, and 2004 in relation to terrorism crimes and during those interviews lied about his knowledge of El Hage, Help Africa People, and other al Qaeda members. The proffer filed in support of the plea agreement established Qureshi's connections to and contacts with El Hage, his contact with a subject under investigation in Oregon, and his activities and financial support of Help Africa People, a non-governmental organization believed to have been used by El Hage and others to provide cover identities and funds in connection with the 1998 attacks on the United States Embassies in Kenya and Tanzania. By Qureshi's admissions, at least $30,000 in Qureshi's funds were given to El Hage in Nairobi, Kenya. El Hage is serving a life sentence for his role in the East Africa Embassy bombings.

Sabri Benkahla (perjury, obstruction, false statements). In 2007, following a jury trial in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, Sabri Benkahla was convicted on two counts of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1623, for perjury, one count of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1503 for obstructing justice, and one count of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1001 for making false statements to the FBI. These false statements included denial of his involvement with an overseas jihad training camp in 1999, as well as his asserted lack of knowledge about individuals with whom he was in contact. The government's evidence revealed that the grand jury and FBI in 2004 sought to question Benkahla about his contacts with Ibrahim Buisir of Ireland, and Manaf Kasmuri of Malaysia, both of whom are Specially Designated Global Terrorists, as well as those with Ahmed Abu Ali, his friend and fellow student at the University of Medina, until both were arrested by Saudi authorities in June 2003. Further, the government's evidence revealed that the grand jury and FBI sought to question Benkahla about his contacts with an individual suspected of being Malik al-Tunisi, a facilitator for the al-Zarqawi terrorist network in Iraq.

Akram Musa Abdallah (false statements). In 2009, following the entry of a guilty plea in the United States District Court for the District of Arizona, Akram Musa Abdallah was convicted of violating 18 U.S.C. § 1001 for making false statements to the FBI. In January 2007, Abdallah knowingly made a false material statement to special agents of the FBI during an interview in connection with the federal investigation and prosecution of the Holy Land Foundation for Relief & Development (HLF) and its officers. At the time of the interviews, Abdallah knew the HLF was a Specially Designated Global Terrorist organization. Abdallah also knew that when he was interviewed, the HLF and its officers were pending trial in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, for crimes including providing material support to a foreign terrorist organization. During the interviews, Abdallah told FBI agents he was not involved in fundraising activities for the HLF, when, in fact, between approximately 1994 and 1997, Abdallah was involved in numerous fundraising activities, including collecting donations, organizing, facilitating and coordinating fund raising events on behalf of the HLF in the Phoenix metropolitan area. In July 2004, the HLF and seven of its principals were indicted on a variety of charges stemming from its financial support of Hamas, and in November 2008, after a two-month trial, those defendants were convicted on all charges.

Jim and Tash-

Please see attached. We are pushing this over to DHS via our LNO tonight. I've asked him for the name(s) of the individuals to whom it is sent. See the note from CTD on data. It looks like we are only missing approx 30 POBs. As we discussed, this was a manual pull by our analysts. Please let me know if you have any concerns or follow-ups.

Thanks,
Jim

"Given the use of aliases in IT matters, factual errors in the initial data, and conflicting DOBs, database checks are limited in their ability to accurately identify a date/place of birth. We highlight these concerns to note the attached list likely contains gaps or errors, although we endeavored to provide the most accurate data as rapidly as possible. This spreadsheet contains the unclassified version of the data that removes the FBI case file."

Dear Mr. Wittes:

This is a final response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests dated and received in this Office on April 14, 2017. On June 12, 2018, you reached an agreement with OIP to resolve certain issues in dispute in this litigation, whereby OIP would conduct a search for records containing data of (i) all individuals convicted of all terrorism-related offenses (domestic and international) between 2001 and the date of the initial search, or (ii) all individuals convicted of all domestic terrorism-related offenses between 2001 and the date of the initial search. In exchange, you agreed not to challenge the adequacy of any of OIP's search for records responsive to your requests or the appropriateness of any of OIP's withholdings pursuant to the FOIA's statutory exemptions. This response is made on behalf of the Offices of the Attorney General (OAG), Deputy Attorney General (ODAG), Legislative Affairs (OLA), and Public Affairs (PAO).

Please be advised that searches have been conducted on behalf of OAG, ODAG, OLA, and PAO, consistent with the above-referenced settlement agreement, and no responsive records were located. This satisfies our agreement.

For your information, Congress excluded three discrete categories of law enforcement and national security records from the requirements of the FOIA. See 5 U.S.C. § 552(c) (2012 & Supp. V. 2017). This response is limited to those records that are subject to the requirements of the FOIA. This is a standard notification that is given to all our requesters and should not be taken as an indication that excluded records do, or do not, exist.

If you have any questions regarding this response, please contact Chetan Patil of the Department's Civil Division, Federal Programs Branch, at 202-305-4968.

Sincerely,
