	The unprofessional and confrontational methods used by the DoC security guard Lane, in opening Sturgeon's car door forcibly, with a surprise move, without identifying himself, appeared to tip the balance in the judge's mind to decide that Sturgeon's actions from the moment the door was opened were made in se defence.	if-
	At dusk on 17th October, 2017, Surgeon and two companions had been alerted to a clandestine 1880 potion loading operation in the Whitiangs (ED and went to observe and take photographs. The Court established that Surgeon was then dragged out of his car by a Department of Conservation guard and a scuffle ensued. The ecourtly guard hired by the Department of Conservation did not have a current Certificate of Approval from the Sexpiral Usecaring Authority and was untrained in 'crowd control'. CCTV fortage showed Sturgeon trying to close his car door to protect himself against his unknown attacker. The car door was wrenched open for a second time by Lane. Lane appeared to have a paranoid mind set believing that Sturgeon posed a threat and might have had a gun in his car. In his evidence, Lane made a number of statements that proved false under cross-examination.	Y .
	Photos show Surgeon with a bloody note and ripped clother. Police and the security guard referred to "protestors" while the activists referred to themselves as "witnesses" whose intention was to observe and record the aerial drop of 1080. The Department of Conservation had secretly stored 23,700kgs of 1080 poison balts in a warehouse in the Liquor King building from June 2017 through to October 17th when the balts were loaded in preparation for the drop over the Kaimamara Valley, which is the source of Whitianga's town watersupply.

Official information requests showed that Doc did not inform local authorities about this bulk storage, including the local fire chief. If there was a fire, toxic hydrogen fluoride gas would be released, and the town would have to be evacuated. Now who will hold the Department of Conservation to account for its many breaches of health and safety regulations and legal statutes?

Read the article here. OUDTE:
	*Question 1 (under OIA) Whom did you inform about the storage of the ecotoxic baits in the Liquor King building? (from June 8th to October 17th)
	Question 2 (under OIA) When you read the MSDS, why did you not prepare an emergency response plan knowing that in the worst case scenario of a warehouse fire, extremely toxic gas (hydrogen fluoride) would be produced, requiring evaluation of amone in its path?
	Question 3 (under OIA) When your cast the MSDS, you would have read that firemen attending a five of the balts would have to be trained in the use of breathing apparatus. Why did you not check with the five chief that they had that equipment and that his staff were trained in the use of breathing apparatus?
	It is not responsible to simply dismiss my questions as fear-mongering. Every organisation has to have health and safety and emergency plants for a worst-case scenario. School teachers when taking students on a walk or a school trip have to do a flisk-Assessment and plan for consingerior. Managing hazardous substances such as 23,700 kg of Class AI ecotosic basts carries with it a huge before the contract of th responsibility for health and safety. Especially it being stored in the middle of a lown. Under the health and Safety at Work (Hazardous Substances) Regulations 2017 from December 1st 2017, you are most certainly required have to have an emergency response plan. The HSNO Controls for Sodium fluoronacetate cereal-based pellets state the following:
	Ine instruction for social muturorizate cetea-loased pelies state the following: You need an emergency response plan. Refer to the Emergency Preparation section of Your Practical Guide.
	You need to refer to the safety data sheets for your substances to find out what personal protective equipment people using each substance need to wear. Also refer to the Keep Safe with Nazardous Substances section of Your Practical Guide Linder HSE, all substances require the use of protective clothing.
	Under the Official Information Act, I expect to receive a reply within 20 days, else I may complain to the Ombudsman. Yours sincerely,

To protect the value and quality of New Zealand's cattle and deer farming industries, OSPN's Tildnee programme is now working towards the compiler endication of bovine tuberculosis (Till) from New Zealand.

The key goals of the Tiffere programme are to endicate Till from investock by 2026, from possums by 2040 and from all hosts of the disease across the whole of New Zealand by 2055. This presents an exiting opportunity for OSPN to build on the success of the Tildnee programme so far, with major benefit for farmers and the wider communities and regions where we work.

Role of Till Management Areas

Pest management dress

Pest management dress is a programme to the Till Plan will be delivered through a framework of over 100 Tuberculosis Management Areas (TMAs) according to disease patterns, geographical features, control history, and future control needs. This will enable possum control and wildlife disease surveys to be planned and contral in an efficient management, and will provide a solicitous for communications and consultation with land occupiers, communities and groups interested in or affected by our operations. Each TMA will have an approximate planned target date for endication.

For more information please see our TMA overview facthetet.

A photo of dead lawin has again been causing controversy after the cause of the bird's death was mirrepresented — this time in a lawi protection brochure.

Last month a photo where seven year seafers by a Kerikeri man showing more than 50 dead kini was used by an anti-1000 group claiming the birds had been killed by the pesticide when they had in fact been killed, in roughly equal measure, by cars and dogs. 	WARNING!! Poison drop this week in Buller. With the first fine weather forecast for 3 months, we can expect OSPRI to spread 1080 along the most biodiverse place in Aotearoa - the coastal strip from Kahurangi point in the north to Hector township in south. The few kea that remain in the national park are at risk as they sometimes come down into this zone. Also, Heaphy Track walkers will be dropped upon and the creeks they drink from contaminated. Trout will be off limits to anglers for a week and eels for a longer period. What if a tramper picked up the baits off the Heaphy Track and took them to the cops. Would that be kosher?	ARCI

	Molesworth Post 1080 Poison Survey The 1080 operation in the Molesworth is a nine year project that sees the Molesworth divided into three sections with one section being poisoned each year. This cycle continues until each section has been poisoned three times, hence the total of nine years. The sow rate used for battle for our birds is 1kg/ha, where as in the Molesworth they are using 2kg/ha as the sow rate.
	The Mariborough NZDA has initiated a research project to determine the effect that the 1080 operation has on the resident Red Deer herd. We have sort a lot of scientific advice to ensure that our methodology will stand up if challenged. Due to the terrain the most effective method is to use a helicopter to fly randomly generated transacts over the poisoned area. There are two trained observers per side of the helicopter. They all independently record both live and dead deer that they see. Simulated deer carcasses are placed well in advance so we know the percentage of dead deer that the observers find. All areas are flown over twice in subsequent days. One fly over will be early morning the other late afternoon, times when deer are most active. Once the survey is completed we will return to animal carcasses to take tissues earliples. These will be tested in a lab to see if the death was a result of 1080 poisoning.
	Once we have real facts on the impact of the 1080 operation on the Red Deer we can then adopt strategies for how we address future 1080 drops. If we find there is not a significant percentage of the Red Deer herd that is killed then this is a great outcome. If we find that a large percentage of deer are being killed this will help us to demand more EDR is used, request a lower rate of application per square km, or that the drops be made at a different time of year when there is more feed for deer so they are less likely to feed on pellets. This all comes at a high expense, both in terms of man hours and dollars. A large number of volunteers are putting in hundreds of hours of work. The work of $\frac{12(16)}{12(16)}$ must be acknowledged. For him this has become almost a full time job. The dollar cost of helicopter hours and tissue sample testing is huge. The total cost is rapidly climbing and could be in the vicinity of $20,000 for this year alone. We thank the Nelson NZDA and NATEX for their significant financial contributions. To help us fund the operation we have set up a 'givealittle' page. 	Wednesday, 22 November, 2017 - 14:08 A pest control operation to protect at-risk native species in the Northern Ruahine Ranges has been completed.
	The operation was part of the Department of Conservation's (DOC's) Battle for our Birds programme, which aims to protect our most vulnerable native species. Director Operations Lower North Island Reg Kemper, is pleased with how the operation went.
	"It's early days, but anecdotal reports indicate some wins already, with dead possums, rats and mice reported by our staff and volunteers working in the treatment area," says Reg. "A lot of effort goes in to planning and delivering an operation like this. It's a credit to all those involved; they just got on with it and did the job safely and effectively."
	DOC worked with OSPRI (which manages New Zealand's TBfree programme) to lay cereal balts containing sodium fluoroacetate (known as 1080) over 32,829ha of the Northern Ruahine Ranges, between 13 and 15 November 2017.
	"Their work will protect our taonga species across a large area of difficult terrain," explains Reg.
	"Aerial 1080 is the most effective large-scale pest control tool we currently have. Monitoring shows it's successful in protecting our vulnerable species." The operation will reduce rat, possum and stoat numbers in the area, helping to protect Ruahine populations of highly valued species, such as whio/blue duck, kiwi, giant land snails, bats/pekapeka, red mistletoe, Dactylanthus, and Pittosporum turneri. Although the operation itself is complete, the work is not over. During the coming months, teams will be gathering data to assess the impact of the operation:-Rat and mouse numbers will be	() monitored in early DecemberWhio populations in two catchments will be surveyed using conservation dogs in late summerPowelliphanta snail populations will be monitored in February/March 2018.	-
	Access points into the operational area have warning signs in place. The presence of these signs indicates that pesticide residues may still be present in bait or animals.

Doc Website: "Orange-fronted parakeet is at risk from a predator plague caused by high levels of seed production ('beech mast') in 2014.

But hold on a minute - they didn't die in vain ! They were mourned! And their dead bodies were sent away for testing! By the way, excuse me if I am missing a point, but when you are dealing with an 'at risk' bird, what does "nine or so died en route" mean?! Nine or so! How scientific is THAT?

"BUT even with the mist nets, the helicopters, the expert scientists, the Maori blessing, the politicians and Ortiz-Catedral himself, the project had problems.

First it rained on Little Barrier, meaning fewer birds than expected flew into the nets. Despite careful handling while they were measured and tested, nine or so died in the aviaries or en route to Motulhe.

But the 31 that did make it are now safely in the regenerating bush, most of them with thir yadio transmitters on their rails. And, for them comoths, while their batteries last, they will carry on Ortiz-Catedral's research.

Why did so many die? Not sure, says Ortiz-Catedral. "Possibly it was stress." Some birds were hard to get out of the mist nets, meaning they struggled for up to five minutes. Possibly they were frightened by the belignerate. More likely sure Ortiz-Catedral were "bond of unbeathyre or the svinty to come with the rails-cation." Nor likely, says Ortiz-Catedral they were "too old, unhealthy, or too skinny to cope with translocation". North for pathology testing, Every one is mourned.

At least they did not die in vain. Each tiny, 80g corpse has been sent to Massey's diagnostic laboratories in Palmerston North for pathology testing. Every one is mourned.

As Ortiz-Catedral asys, "If we find what killed these animals we will be able to avoid that in the future. And if, over the next months, we have a lot of losses we'll send them for pathological analysis too."

Such a pity that All Black great, Richie McCaw has now joined forces with DoC, Dave Hansford, and Threatened Species Ambassador, Nicola Toki, to presumably carry out more of this nonsense.
