From November 8-12, 2018, I visited (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) and (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) at their home in (b) (6), (b) (7)(C). During that time (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) We ate dinner with (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) 3 times, and (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) During the second dinner the (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) The subject of (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) I asked what had happened to them and (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) was very calm and smiled a bit as he told me they had been through the wash. After dinner we stood in the kitchen talking, but (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) sat on the couch with the TV on loudly. (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) had always presented himself as extremely polite and hospitable, so this was noticeably strange behavior. (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) I stayed in there for awhile, reading and praying. (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) Dinner on the 3rd night was just prior to his leaving for deployment. At one point he pulled (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) aside for a conversation and when they came back it was clear he had been crying. His mood was very changeable. At the time I thought he was worried about the deployment. He gave the impression that it was a very dangerous mission.

ENCLOSURE (11)

Following our initial conversation on 18 Apr, I met with LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) once he had the opportunity to consult with both his civilian and military councils. I provided for him a list of questions that I had prepared with the assistance of the (b) (6), (b) (7)(C). Our agreement up front was that he would meet with me to provide me his prepared written statement. Both the (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) and I expected that there would not be an extensive discussion or verbal interview. However, LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) presented his written statement and directly communicated his desire to speak with me candidly and to explain or defend himself against the allegations levied by his spouse, (b) (6), (b) (7)(C). We discussed the allegations and the events surrounding them for almost two hours. The below notes are a bullet summary of our discussion. There were several moments during the course of the interview where I purposely stopped taking notes so I could better assess LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) demeanor, composure and sincerity in his statements.

- We started the interview by discussing the events of 23 Dec 2018

- (b) (6), (b) (7)(C)
- LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) pointed out that they all agreed it wasn't applicable
- (b) (6), (b) (7)(C)
- Note: LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) paused as if unsure of whether or not he should continue and he said that his civilian lawyer didn't want him to discuss any details of his defense for his (b) (6), (b) (7)(C). LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) reiterated his desire to be transparent and defend himself against the accusations, so we continued with the interview
- (b) (6), (b) (7)(C)
- At this point, we re-directed the conversation to the events that led up to 23 Dec 2018. LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) stated that he returned home on 21 Dec. He completed the ship off-load of his unit (SPMAGTF) on 22 Dec and then went to get groceries. He said that they had a series of activities planned for the holidays that included leave
- (b) (6), (b) (7)(C)
- (b) (6), (b) (7)(C)
- It was Sunday, so they then attended a Presbyterian Service in San Clemente. He mentioned that LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) and her spouse were also present at the service
- After the service, they decided to go get some doughnuts together. LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) expressed frustration that (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) decided to invite another Marine officer that they both knew to join them

- (b) (6), (b) (7)(C)
- They went back for a quick changeover and then proceeded to the unit sponsor event at yacht club in Newport. He noted that his XO, S3 and SgtMaj were all in attendance at the event. The event concluded around 2100 and they proceeded home (about 90 min drive). During the ride home, LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) said that (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) wanted to talk about the BN DRC. This was a conversation they had had during the deployment. LtCol (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) said that he asked her not to bring up the subject and that he didn't want to discuss it. He said that they drove home the rest of the way in silence, listening to the radio

He recounted how his company guide on for 1 3/3 was the only item lost in their most recent PCS move. This was particularly upsetting to him and he said (b) (6), (b) (7) showed little empathy for him

ENCLOSURE (13)

Gentlemen,

I have been forced to stop and reflect. We almost lost another Marine to suicide over the past few days. His struggle is not over, and our support on his long road ahead remains vital. I send this email to you all, because I think it is necessary to capture the things that went right this time. I do not claim to have the solution, but I share my observations because I believe it may help save more of our brothers who are in distress. I fear more are coming in the months and years ahead. I also confess that I still do not know all of the details or the reasons.

The one we lost:

- One year ago, as most of you know, we lost a great Marine to suicide.
- I didn't even know he was in trouble. I offer most of us didn't because all of us had PCS'd or EAS'd.
- His suicide came four years after our combat tour together (I do not know if our time together was the root of his suffering).
- Alcohol abuse led to a DUI, NJP, and inability to re-enlist. Suicide followed.

The one we saved (for now):

- He has been facing distress five years after our combat tour.
- PCS has enabled separation from those who knew him best, and could rapidly detect distress.
- Alcohol abuse has lead to a series of unfortunate personal mistakes that I believe contribute the Marine's sentiment of hopelessness.
- Drunken texts were sent to a Marine brother who identified the distress and potential tragedy. Despite not being on active duty, that Marine traveled across North Carolina driving all night to get to his friend on CLNC. He further triggered a redundant response that alerted several exemplary Marine SNCO's, all serving in different units on CLNC, who dropped everything without hesitation to find the Marine in distress.
- The Marine in distress realized he was not alone when two of his peers came to his side and were reinforced by SNCO's from his 2010 chain of command. Those who were able to respond safeguarded the Marine in distress and facilitated the proper medical response.
- This is what went right in this case: a Marine who is now in the civilian sector identified the distress. Because he is still connected with his chain of command from the past via cell phones and social media, he was able to trigger a redundant response that resulted in the safeguarding of the Marine and access to medical care. The response was a redundant network of Marines who truly cared for each other across all ranks.*

Observations:

- Personal despair is manifesting itself several years after our combat deployment and after we have all dispersed due to PCS or EAS.
- Wounds are surfacing at a time when we are not postured to identify them (and realistically it is very difficult to do so... I can't stay in daily communication with the thousands of Marines I have served with in 15 years).
- It may be difficult for present unit leadership to recognize modified behavior, misconduct, or lack of discipline as manifestations of emotional distress (General (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) described this to us recently as having a "clear sight picture" and connecting all the dots). I cannot fault commanders for maintaining good order and discipline, but the lack of a broader history may detract from the ability to properly identify the wounds that are being manifested.

-My opinion is that Marines are using alcohol to (incorrectly) self-medicate. Alcohol abuse is sending our brothers into a spiral of self-destruction (DUI's, immoral behavior that destroy families, etc). The negative consequences result in further despair and hopelessness.

-Between these two cases and a few more in which I have approached Marines directly via Facebook about some of their alarming posts, I now realize that some may be unwilling to open up or share with me out of respect. One Marine assured me he had everything under control. I am forced to consider that potentially the last thing some Marines want to do is to fail or appear vulnerable in the eyes of their leadership (present or past). This pain masking and desire for infallibility is an obstacle for all of us as engaged leaders who genuinely care about our men, specially given post PCS circumstances.

Opportunities, Thoughts, and Potential Solutions:

-I hate to say it, but social media is a great way to stay connected with Marines over long-term periods. My Marines can't seem to hold onto my cell phone or email, but they sure know how to find me on Facebook (it's the only reason I'm still on there). I believe this is an opportunity. I'm also learning that Facebook is only used by "our generation". Younger generations are using new forms of social media (Instagram, Tumbler, I can't remember the other one-I confess I don't even know what these are). In any case, we need to be aware of how our young Marines are communicating and how we can influence them positively.

-Smart phones are great at keeping "phonebooks" with old numbers. It seems like most people are keeping the same number for long periods of time. This is an opportunity.

-In regards to social media, despite the "libo-incident" sub-culture of many social media military groups (F'N Boot, Terminal Lance, etc), these groups have a fierce loyalty to brotherhood and they provide a commendable, consistent message to veterans about suicide prevention. This too is an opportunity.

-I believe we must continue to strengthen our network. Despite our genuine interests in our Marines, we may not be given access to their inner demons. Our network across all ranks is the only solution. Those who are confided in, those who are in the inner circle for every individual, must be able to serve as sensors that activate the redundant response by all of us whether we are on active duty or not. The brotherhood that has been created by our time in the Corps together enables this.

-After [REDACTED] took his life, I witnessed a humbling response by our "not-so young anymore" Marines. It was bottom-up. Marines reconnected and realized we could not let another brother take his life. Again, many if not most, are now in the civilian sector. I believe a couple of our guys have been safeguarded during dark hours as a result of this network. This Facebook network is helping. The worst thing that could happen is for it to be broken by making it a Top-Down requirement. I share this because I believe this is a best practice that may help in other units if it doesn't already exist.

ENCLOSURE (14)

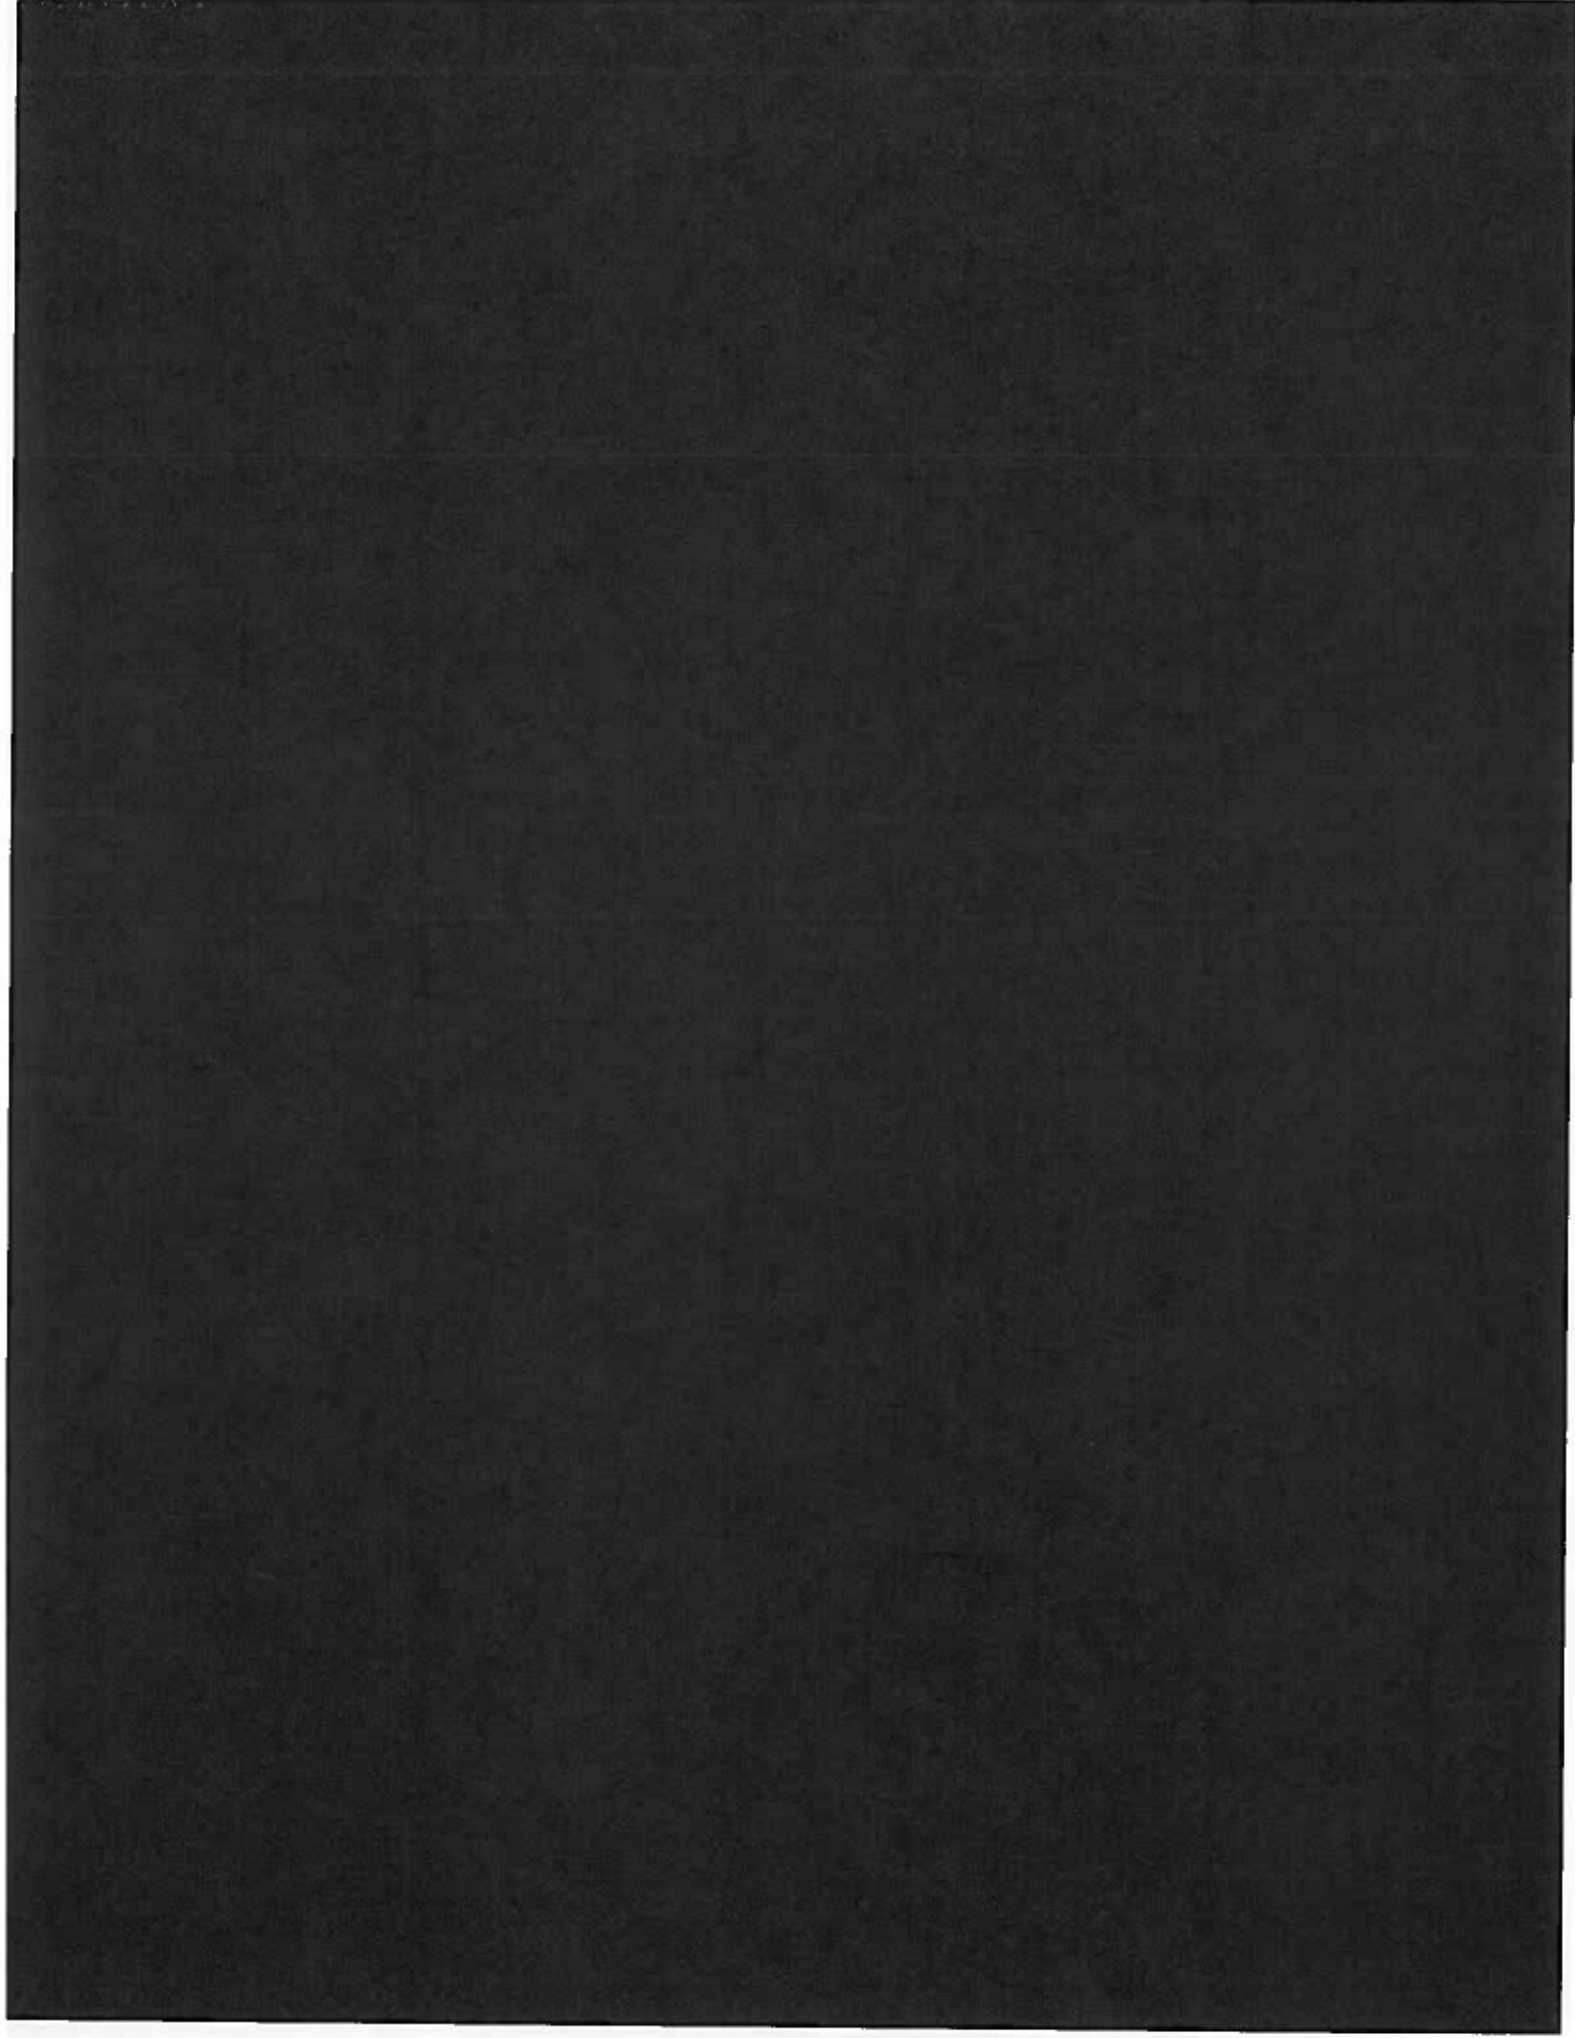

-Realizing that some may be unwilling to open up to more senior leaders, perhaps the most effective response we can provide is to alert his those who may be in the "inner circle" who will gladly check on their buddy.

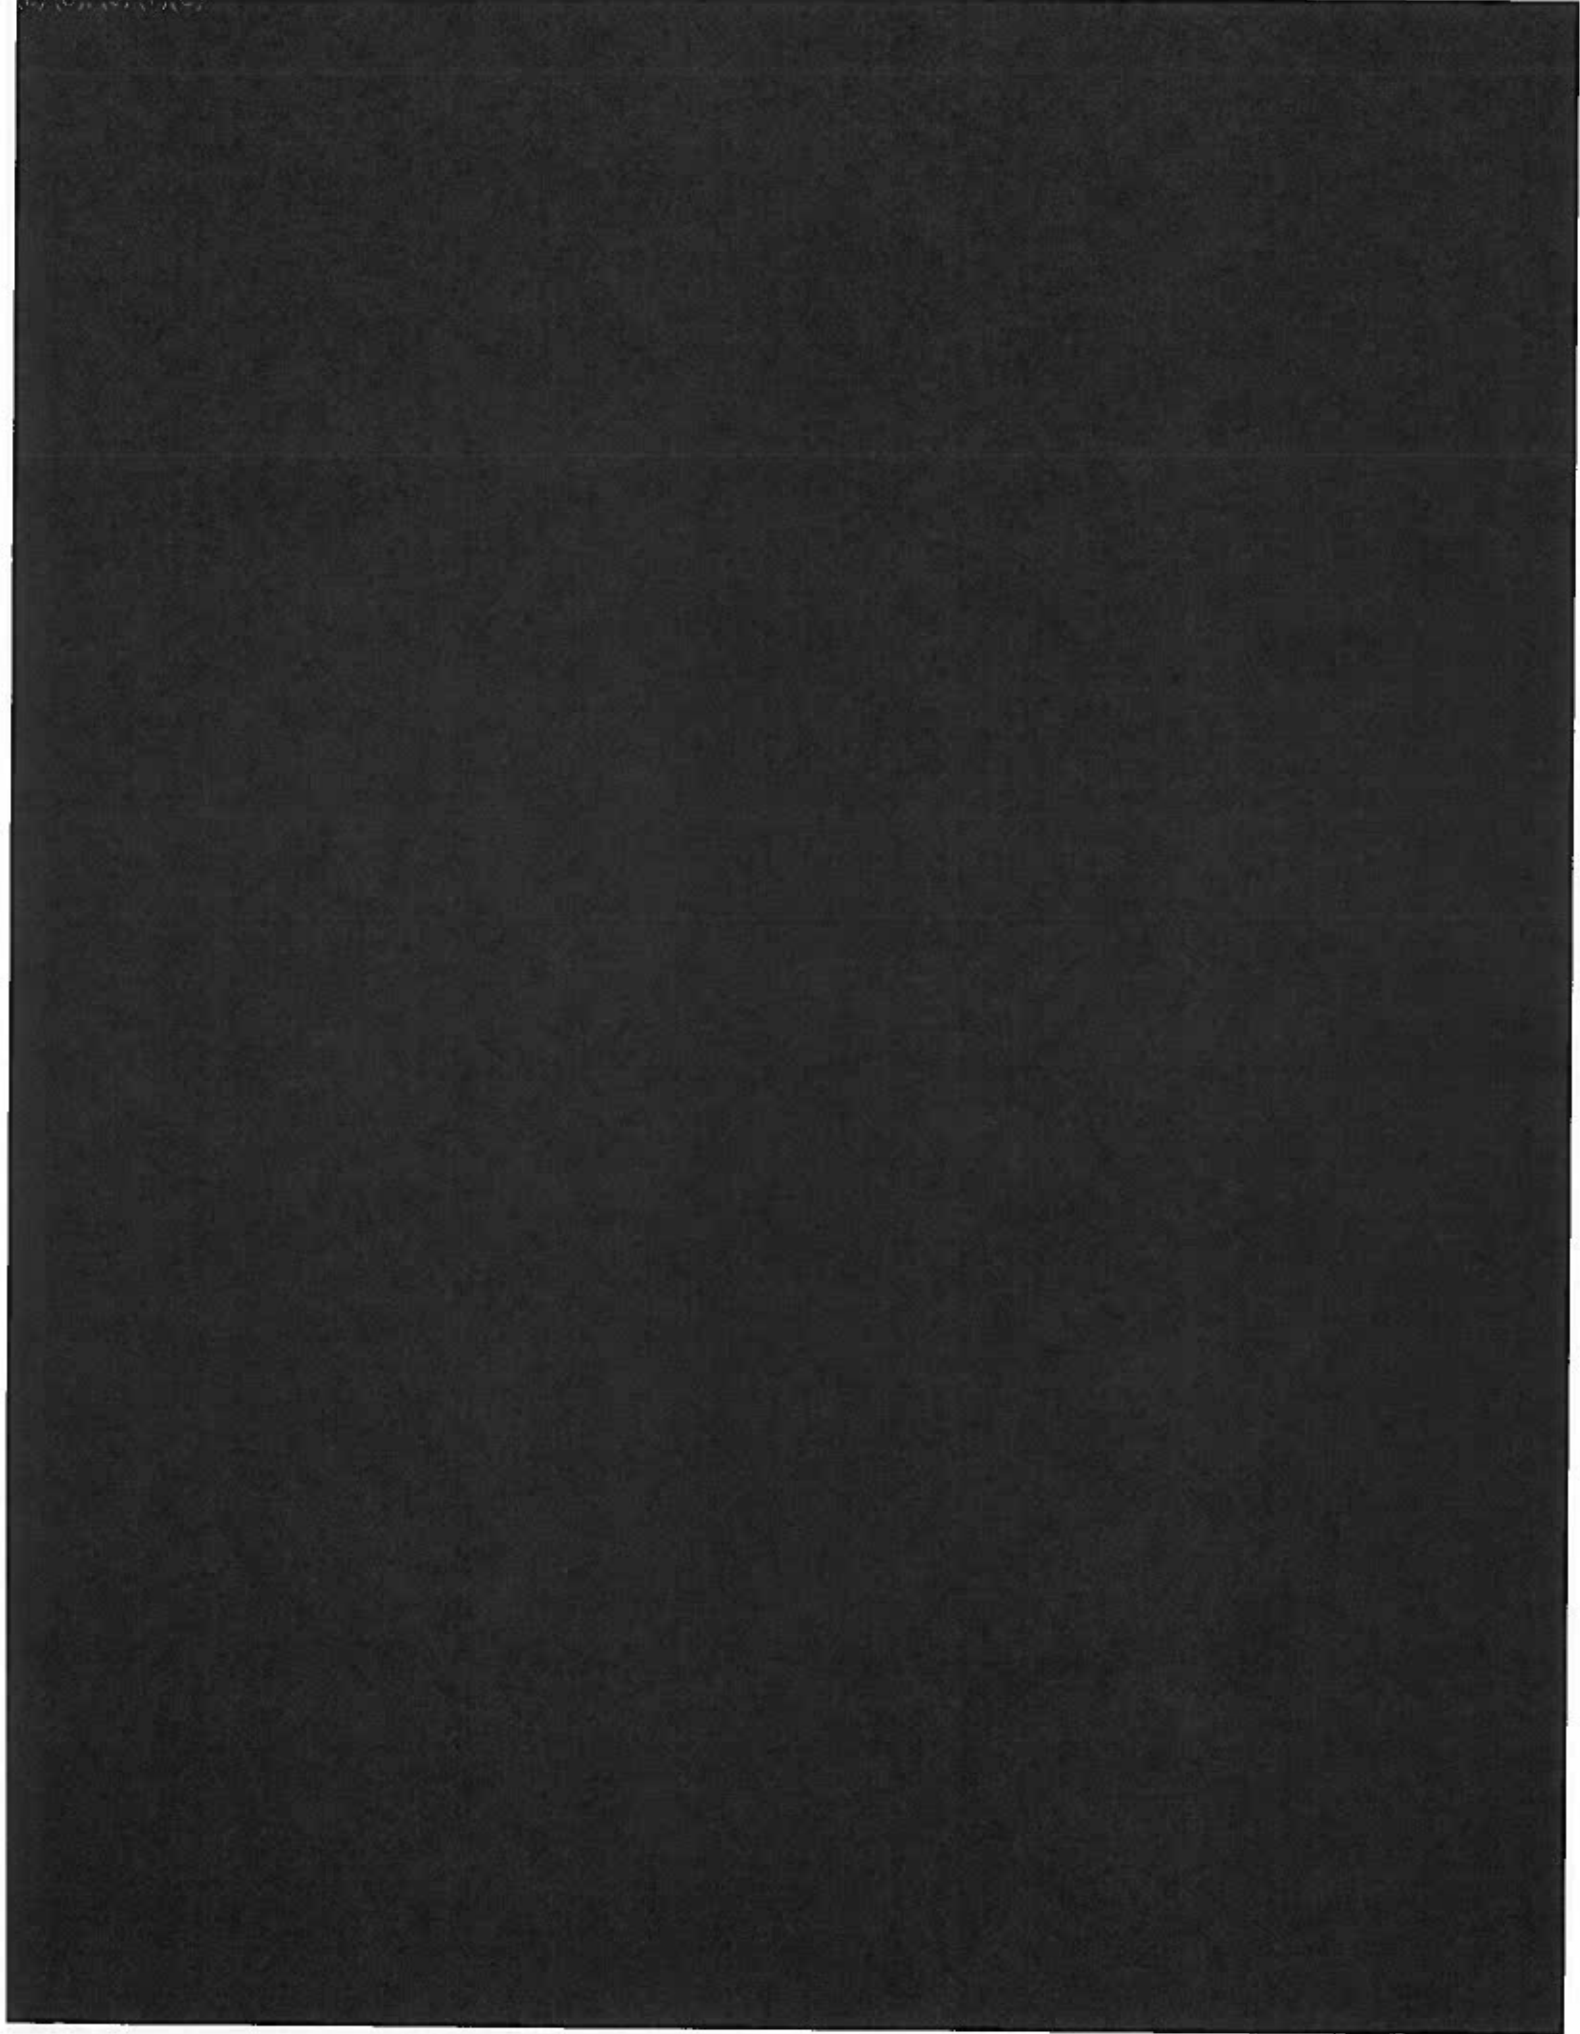

-We need to teach our Marines to drink and be men. I believe the club system use to do that. I remember a day when I was forced to go to the club, have a beer or two, and taught to remain a professional and conduct myself like a man at all times. We have lost this mentorship and education because we are trying to prevent drunkenness and misconduct. The clubs should be the place we can take advantage of this opportunity. It will be a process, and not an event.

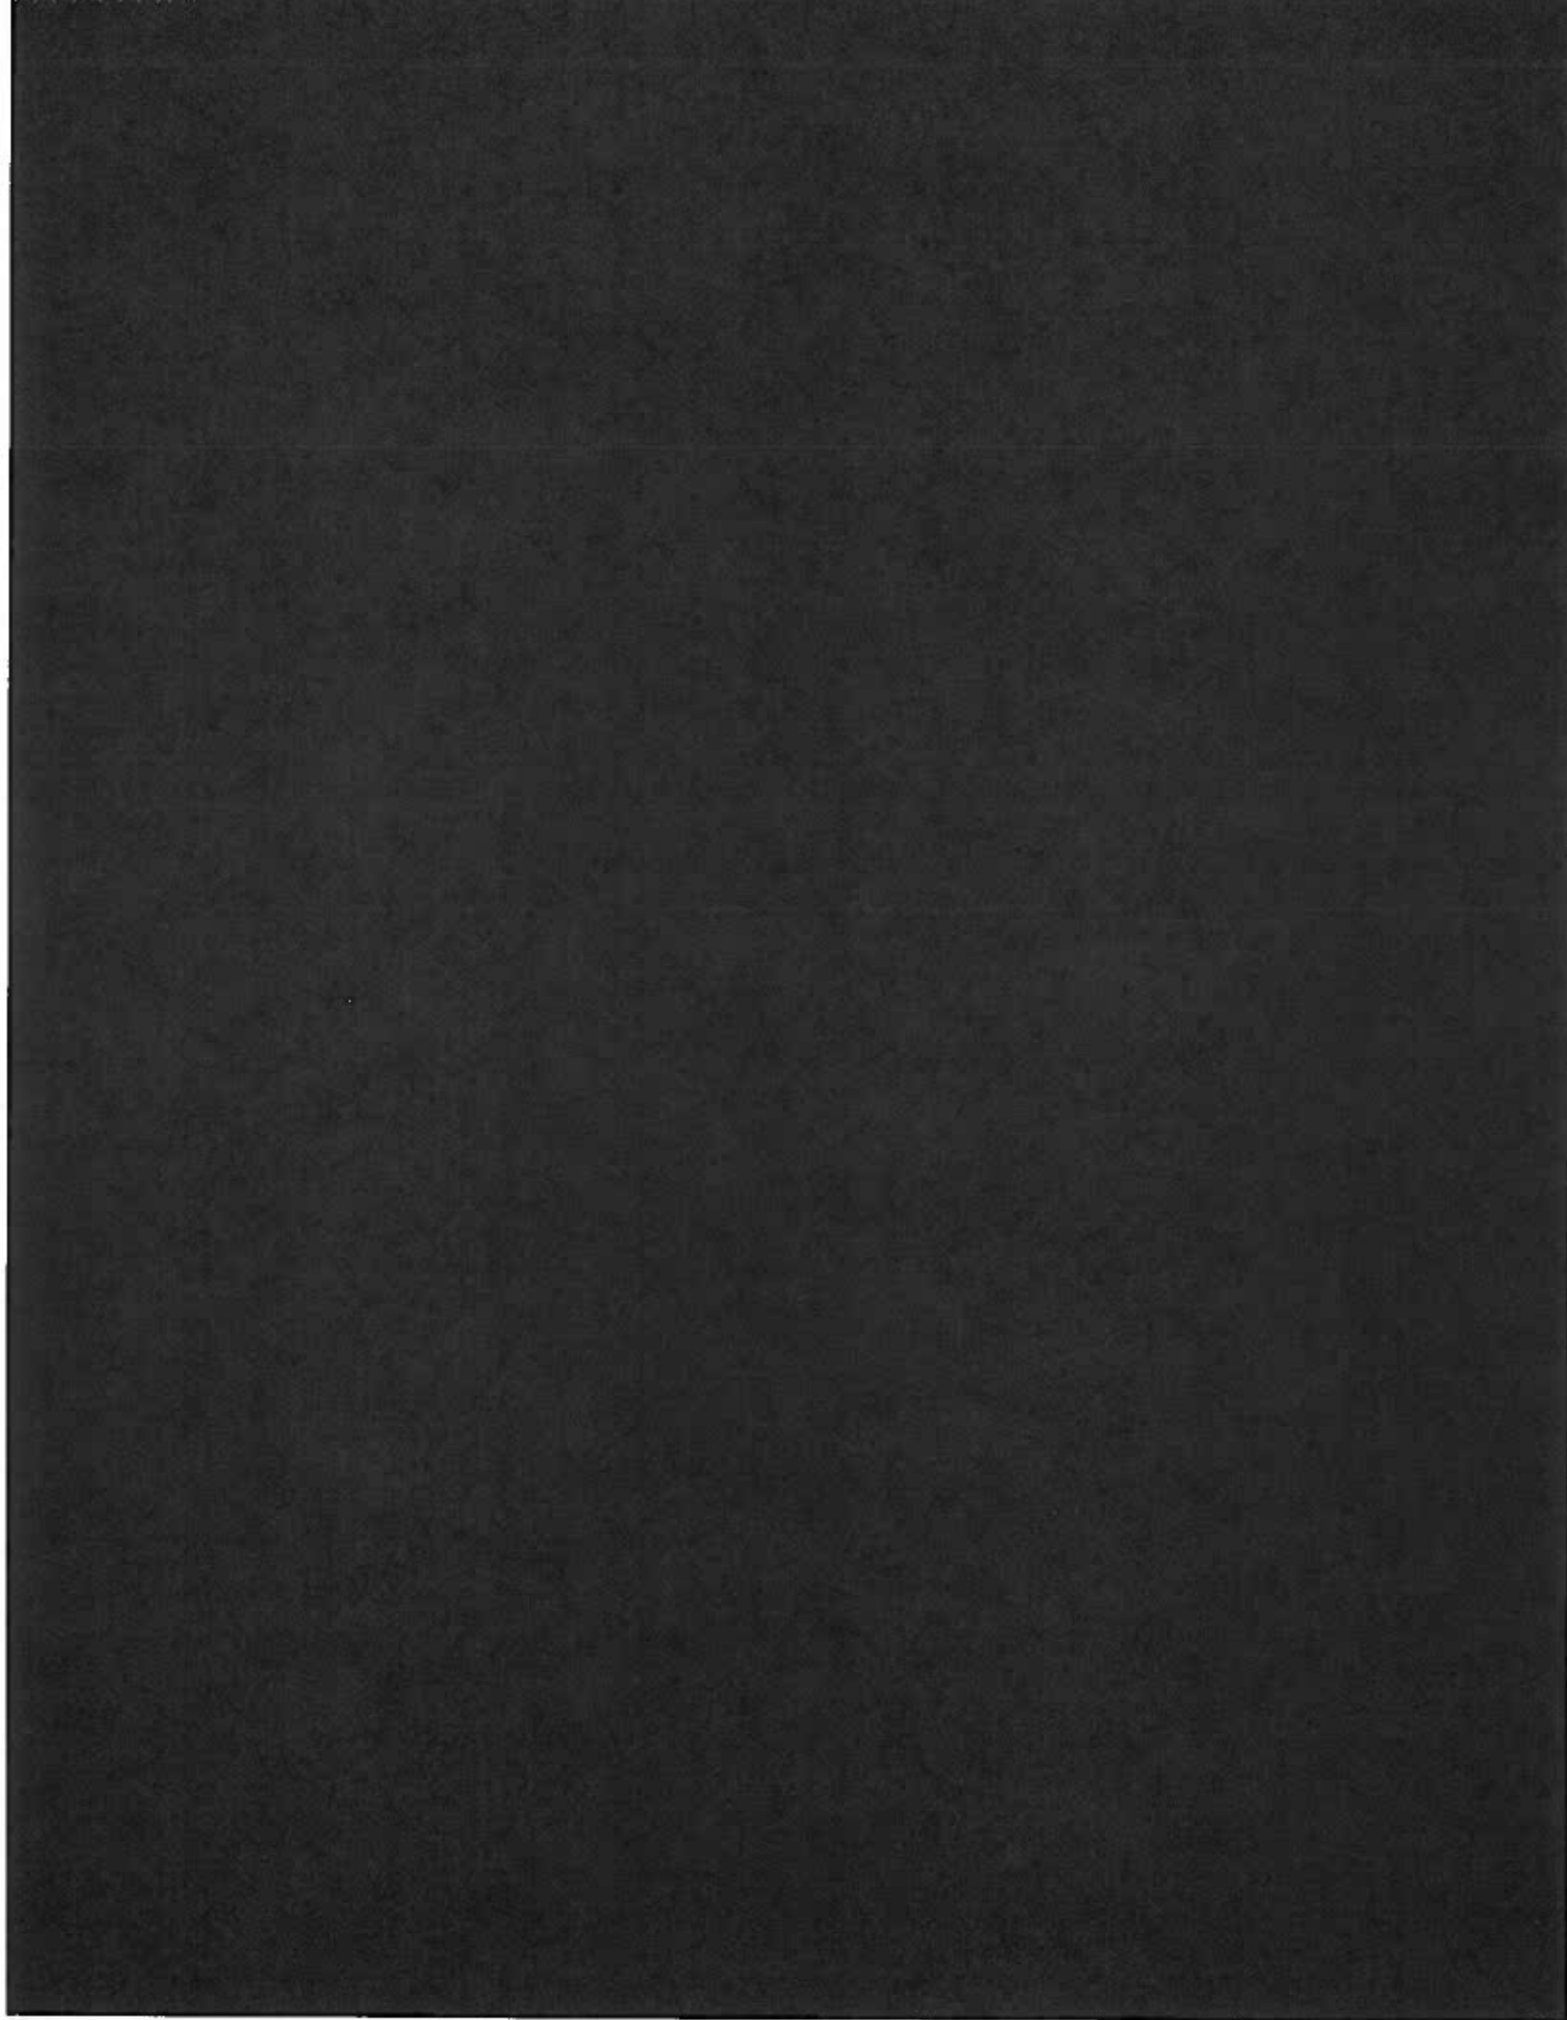

Thank you for taking the time to read and reflect. I remain humbled to serve along side with you.

Sir,

Sending it back to you. I've reflected back on the points you made quite a bit over the years and used them while talking to the Marines. Coming off a very non-kinetic deployment to Afghanistan recently, I glossed it over but dismissed the feeling I had to share it with the company. As we all PCS'd and moved in different directions, I handed off the company social media page and departed ways. I don't know where that page is now and it was more to keep the families informed while we were deployed. With the tragic incident taking place with Cpl [REDACTED] I decided to reinvent the social media connection as we did with India.

As for the most recent tragedy. Cpl [REDACTED] was an 0311 who worked in the Armory in Hqtrs Plt. Charlie Co. He deployed to [REDACTED] where he returned to an unfaithful wife. Upon his return, he made some poor decisions (breaking his wife's cell phone) and placed under a lengthy investigation for domestic violence. During the work up, he was counseled by myself and my XO about his off duty activities regarding alcohol. Much like [REDACTED] he was a stellar performer at work and portrayed his alcohol consumption as just hanging with the Marines. To my knowledge, he never had an alcohol related incident before my arrival to Charlie Co and had none while I was there. We deployed to [REDACTED] with [REDACTED] and he was placed in a rifle platoon and was an outstanding performer. He returned with the XO and I on ADVON and did a phenomenal job in the armory. We had a brief discussion prior to my departure where he seemed on the up and up and getting his life together. A few months ago Cpl [REDACTED] was FAP'd over to SOI East to work as 1/2 prepared for their upcoming deployment that I don't think he had the time to make. After a short time at SOI, he committed suicide (pending details) due to it happening yesterday.

I figured I would outline the similarities in his situation with the Marines we lost and the ones that we've had successful intervention with. Going forward, I think it will be beneficial to share the details of your points with the Marines from Charlie 1/2. We've hit that time period in our redeployment where Marines are departing and are no longer surrounded by their Marine family. I feel this could become a common occurrence if we don't get ahead of it. I hope the social media connection coupled with your points has a positive impact on the boys and we are able to have success like we did with Sgt (b) (6), (b) (7)(C)

Thanks Again,

I elaborated. I spoke of the beauty and luxury of being an American...the melting pot. We have a new Chaplain.
