Of the four silver gray foxes brought to the farm last winter, two escaped, one of which was later killed in the wilds by a hunter.

WOMAN IN POLITICS.

A. G. Thompson delivered an address before the art and literature department of the Anchorage Women's club Thursday afternoon. He said in part:

Madam Chairman and Ladies:
Over 50 years ago a woman proposed an amendment to the constitution of the United States which was so revolutionary that it brought down upon her the contumely and ridicule of the people of the entire country. That amendment is now a part of the constitution. The woman was Susan B. Anthony and the 19th amendment which has just been adopted embodies the principle of equal suffrage for which she fought so valiantly. In terms it provides that "the right of a citizen to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any state on account of sex."

The history of the 19th amendment is an interesting one presenting the struggle of Miss Anthony, Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Dr. Howard Anna Shaw and many others of a band of noble women, against the prejudice of the times. It has been a campaign of education, won at last, as all reforms are won, by the slow enlightenment of the masses. Its winning is one of the evidences of the forward progress of our American civilization.

We will now attempt to consider the effect of the women vote in the coming election. The injection of 17 million potential voters into the political equation is a very disquieting thing to the politicians, and the political managers of both parties. They do not know what the women will do, and there is no sure rule by which the effect of the woman vote can be measured. There are however certain things by which the influence of the woman vote may be predicted—although it is said no man can tell what a woman will do.

We naturally look back to the suffrage states to give some indication as to what the women will do. It is not disputed in the suffrage states that the granting of the ballot to women has made for better government, cleaner politics, and higher ideals. Women approach the practical problems of government on a higher plane than men. They are not so much concerned with the success of the party, as they are with the election of some candidate whom they consider the best man. To them principles are more important than political expediency. By nature they are especially interested in the home, education, the protection of children, and moral questions, and they are likely to test a candidate's qualifications for office by the extent to which he measures up to their ideals on these matters. They are less partisan and more inclined to believe that Utopia is possible in politics.

Let us take a look at the probable attitude of woman on the issues in the present campaign. There are two great issues in this election—one is open and on the surface, and the other is concealed and moves as an undercurrent.

The league of nations is the open issue, and undoubtedly the greatest issue in the campaign. The proposal by a league of nations, of which the United States should be a member, to establish "peace on earth and good will toward men," is a proposition so altruistic, and based on such broad idealism that it would naturally appeal to the imaginative mind of woman. But we are beginning to see, more and more plainly, as the campaign progresses, and as we watch the working out of the league plan, that the high principles and solemn obligations of the league covenant which makes for the peace of the world, would necessarily precipitate the United States into the midst of foreign wars. Take for instance the recent sequence of events in Poland. Article X of the covenant, provides that the members of the league guarantee the political independence and territorial integrity of the signatories. If the United States were one of these and we were true to our obligations, when Poland, one of the countries which the league created out of the warring nations, was threatened recently with political and territorial extermination by her powerful neighbor, Russia, we should have been obligated to furnish every aid and support which the situation required. Lloyd George, the English premier, when questioned, frankly admitted, that the reason why the league did not go to the rescue of Poland was that its members were war-weary, and their resources and troops needed elsewhere. Due however to the military genius of the French general "Wegand," Poland has been saved and the spread of Bolshevism averted.

The great war is not over, and no man, and no woman, can say at this time, when and how it will end. I believe that the women of the United States are more concerned with the peace and prosperity of our own country than they are with the problems of the old world.

We have not yet become accustomed to think in terms of the world.

Here in America we have felt so self-sufficient, and so safe, due to our favored geographic position, that we have not bothered much, about the whirling maelstrom of Europe. We have left Europe to take care of its own troubles, and any covenant which binds the nation to send the sons of America to fight for other nations in foreign lands will, in my opinion, present no appeal to the women voters.

The other issue, the underground issue, is prohibition.

One of the prominent candidates at the democratic convention Governor Edwards, of New Jersey, was avowedly in favor of a wet or moist plank in the democratic platform, and when the convention met, it was well within the range of possibility that this should be accomplished.

Many democrats thought it was the only salvation for the party.

This, together with the popular idea that the democratic party is the grateful recipient of the liquor vote in national elections, will, inevitably bring the prohibition question into the coming election, and it will influence many votes. There is no doubt where the women stand on this question.

Coming now closer home and to our own Alaska, we have a territorial ticket to elect consisting of a delegate to congress, an attorney general, four senators and 16 representatives. You know many of the candidates for these offices, and it is not my purpose, nor would it be proper for me, to discuss these candidates before this organization.

sidered the matter during his recent visit to Anchorage in July. The result of this study was to the effect that the Alaskan Engineering commission should withdraw from town management, as you have been advised.

I am glad to confirm the statement made in the Anchorage Daily Times of Wednesday, October 27, by the committee of the chamber of commerce, to the effect that certain property within the corporate limits, heretofore controlled by the Alaskan Engineering commission, would be turned over to the incorporated city. Thus you will know exactly with what public property your city will be endowed at the outset.

When the town has been incorporated, the Alaskan Engineering commission will be glad to take up at once, if requested to do so, with the city council, the matter of entering into the most practical and helpful arrangement within its power for a division of the expense of maintaining the town, including fire protection and all other necessary features, and will be entirely willing to assume its full share of these expenses, based upon its property holdings in the townsite proper, including the unsold and forfeited lots and the commission dwellings. It is the intention to dispose of the unsold and forfeited lots as fast as there is a demand for them. As to the lots which were sold in 1916, 1917, and later, the commission will also bear the share of expense relating to these lots, and assess the same against the lots, until the five year period has expired for the same, making it unnecessary for the town to carry that expense.

It has been argued that since there will be no money in the town treasury at the outset, it will not be practicable to establish a town administration at once. This is a very reasonable argument and one that should be met. In this, as in all matters affecting the welfare of the town, the commission will gladly do all in its power to help the situation.

Upon request by the town council the commission will enter into an arrangement by which it will carry the town payroll and furnish any necessary material and equipment, subject, of course, to a reasonable provision for reimbursement of such part of the expense as belongs finally to the town, from the money afterwards collected from taxes. This assistance will be continued for a reasonable time, subject to arrangement with the town council.

The people of Alaska for many years have been crying for self-government. Their representative, Mr. Charles Sulzer, early in 1917, made an extended speech on the floor of the house of representatives on the needs of Alaska, and the most forceful part of his argument showed the necessity for complete powers of self-government in the following language:

"Government at a 3,000-mile range is not effective government, and if the territory is to be permitted to develop naturally and to the full extent of its resources, congress must grant it complete powers of self-government. The leading strings and red tape by which Alaska has been so long bound should be cut away at once, and the American citizens in that great territory given the freedom and blessing of a real and adequate self-government."

This agitation for self-government was continued and, through the efforts of those Alaskans interested in self-government, a bill was introduced in both the senate and house of representatives calling for the administration of national property and other interests in the territory of Alaska, which bill is now before congress for consideration. In view of the urgent appeals for self-government which have been made to the national congress and other government officials in Washington it would appear highly inconsistent on the part of the Anchorage citizens to refuse to take advantage of the present opportunity offered them to form a corporate town, particularly in view of the advantages they will receive from work already accomplished and moneys paid out by the national government under the auspices of the railroad organization. If the citizens of Anchorage take upon themselves at this time the responsibility of voting down incorporation under the privilege granted them by the district court, they will certainly be placed in a most unenviable position. Other towns and civil communities in Alaska will be at a loss to understand their reasons for declining to assume the responsibilities of self-government and will doubtless assign the cause to one of selfishness.

It will be the opinion of all thinking people that the town of Anchorage is a community sufficiently large and important to take upon itself the duties and obligations of incorporation. With a population of 1,500 or 2,000 and with a reliable and permanent payroll from the Alaska railroad in connection with the operation of machine shops, coal mines and railroad operations, there can be no argument as to permanency.

The people of Anchorage should stop and consider the effect of a defeat of incorporation upon the federal government at Washington. The interest of the federal authorities and legislators has been worked up to a considerable degree during the last few years. There is more interest at the present time in Alaskan affairs than ever. The outside opinion regarding Alaskan people and conditions has steadily been growing more favorable and there has been an increasing disposition to extend aid in the development of the country. It has been represented to the authorities at Washington that no country would respond more readily or give greater results for federal expenditures than this country of Alaska. It certainly should not be made to appear at this time that the efforts of the government to establish communities and build up the country are not to be met by a representative effort on the part of the people; in other words, the government should not be made to understand that it must do all and that the people will not do their part when the time comes. There are many communities in Alaska which have provided all, or practically all, of their public improvements, asking but little aid from the federal government. Are we to afford the government an example of a community for which the government has done so much; a community able to start with all public improvements provided and not a dollar of debt and yet are not willing to do so, but desirous of leaving their affairs in the hands of the federal government? It is an implied condition of all government undertakings in Alaska that these undertakings are temporary in character, for the purpose of aiding a pioneer development—not with the idea that the government must continue indefinitely to support any enterprise which is started and placed on its feet by government aid. Are we to say to the United States government: "Do not start anything in Alaska unless you expect to keep it going for our benefit out of the national treasury indefinitely?"

SAN FRANCISCO.—(By mail)—Downtown street canyons of a big city recently were found by a young eagle to be different from the gorges of the birds' native mountains. The bird, apparently fresh from the hills, became lost in the maze of streets here and flew into a pool room where it perched on a table and made a vicious but futile fight against capture. The owner of the pool room threw a sack over the bird's head and said he intended to give it to the Golden Gate park zoo. The eagle weighed six pounds and was of gray and brown coloring.

TERRITORIAL TICKET.

For Delegate. Dan Sutherland, of Ruby.	For Attorney-General. John Rustgard, of Juneau.
For Representatives. ARTHUR FRAME, of Anchorage. A. E. LATHROP, of Cordova and Anchorage.	For Senator. E. E. Chamberlain, of Seward
R. E. Elsner, of Cordova. Jos. H. Murray, of McCarthy.	For Road Commissioners. ALFRED BENSON, of Anchorage. Gus Johnson, of Cordova.

SUPPORT THE TICKET.

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA, MONDAY, NOV. 1, 1920.

THEIR OPPORTUNITY.

Sober-minded, conservative business men and property owners of Anchorage will welcome the opportunity to vote for level-headed men of the Arthur Frame and A. E. Lathrop type to represent them in the Alaska legislature. Frame and Lathrop are successful in their own business and will safeguard Anchorage's interests; they stand for a constructive policy and appreciate that Alaska's welfare depends mightily upon co-operation of labor and capital. They will be faithful to their trust and will do their duty by their constituents.

THIRD DIVISION CANDIDATES.

With the change of administration, which is apparent, Alaska's next governor will necessarily be a republican. Harmony in all things is essential, especially in government affairs. This fact has been emphatically proven to the detriment of Americans during the last regime; Alaska also has suffered. To obtain the best results it follows that Alaska should send republican representatives and senators to Juneau who will co-operate with the republican governor.

In Arthur Frame, A. E. Lathrop, R. E. Elsner, Jos. H. Murray for the legislature, E. E. Chamberlain for senator, and Alfred Benson for road commissioner, the republican party of the third division has selected candidates eminently qualified, mentally and morally, to work in harmony with the territorial government to the end that the very best results will be obtained, not only for the third division, but all Alaska.

FOR THE GOOD OF ALASKA.

With the return of a republican administration the United States will again become a government of laws and not of men. The constitution will again be the supreme law of the land. Senator Harding has promised and will recognize the counsel of the American people through their chosen congressmen and senators. The development of retrogression of Alaska depends largely upon the attitude of the federal government. It is practically conceded that the American voters tomorrow will return a republican president to the White House and a decisive working majority of republicans to the house and senate. It is vitally important that Alaska send as delegate to congress a member of the dominant republican party. In Dan Sutherland the republican party offers Alaska voters a candidate who will work in absolute harmony with the administration for the development of your Alaska. Let's send Dan Sutherland to congress to work in co-operation with the administration for Alaska's welfare.

INCORPORATION:

Tomorrow the citizens of Anchorage will decide the question of incorporation by the ballot. For the past several months the citizens have known the question would come up for settlement at that time, according to ruling made by Judge Fred M. Brown. Further, property owners at the time of sale were cognizant of the fact that the town would be turned over to the people for self-government within a specified time. The time has arrived. Secretary of Interior Payne has advised that the Alaskan Engineering commission withdraw from the town management.

The case is peculiar and perhaps without parallel. Realizing the necessity of self-government and desiring the opportunity we have been negligent and dilatory. The chamber of commerce has appointed townsite committees which have met and conferred with like committees from the Alaskan Engineering commission. Still there was no definite information advanced.

The Times has always favored incorporation, provided a fair and equitable adjustment could be made relative to proportionate share of necessary administration expenses and a solution of the forfeited and unsold lot question. During the past month The Times has repeatedly asked officials of the Alaskan Engineering commission for a statement regarding the status of affairs in order to give its readers a comprehensive idea of the important question. In the news columns of today's paper appears an article dealing with the question and signed by Col. F. Mears, chairman and chief engineer for the Alaskan Engineering commission.

The question is squarely up to the people. The article is not published today with the idea of attempting to stampede the voters but is published the day received. It is the duty of every voter to read Col. Mears' article carefully and learn the position the commission guarantees to take in the matter of assisting in the maintenance of the incorporated town of Anchorage.

At the recent mass meeting a number of eligible candidates were nominated for councilmanic office. They are all good citizens, qualified to serve. Seven are to be elected.

"I thank God the time has come when I can ask the advice of American women."—Senator Harding.

PREDICTS G. O. P. LANDSLIDE IN THE NORTHWEST

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—When you strike into the northwest from Chicago you travel a long way before you reach a state that gives Cox apparently a ghost of a show of carrying it on November 2.

The fact is, you go all the way to Montana through solid republican territory, but when you reach Montana, you notice a change in the political atmosphere and before you are through you conclude that Cox has a chance in Montana though not such a gilt-edged chance at that.

The democrats have strengthened their hold on Montana in the last eight years President Wilson carrying the state in 1916 by 34,000. Lately, the nonpartisan league, however, has captured the democratic organization with the result that Montana democrats under the lead of Senator Myers intend to support the republican ticket thereby breaking the league's power. This condition, together with considerable democratic opposition to the Wilson covenant will operate to hold Cox to a narrow plurality, and anything like a Harding landslide in the west would sweep the state into the republican column.

North Dakota Republican North Dakota, which Wilson carried by 1,700 four years ago, may be set down as safely republican this time. The non-partisan league is keeping hands off the national contest, but its influence always has been antagonistic to the Wilson covenant, and among the farmers sentiment is running high against the democratic administration, which held down the price of wheat during the war and a year and a half thereafter, while permitting the south to enrich itself on cotton, unfettered by any price regulation.

Dr. E. H. Ladd, the non-partisan league candidate, who defeated Senator Gronna for the republican nomination, will be elected. The republicans are supporting him loyally with the understanding that he will vote with them on the league of nations question and senate organization matters. Gov. Frazier also will be reelected. While the selection of Ladd and Frazier to beat the republican ticket represents nonpartisan league victories, the organization is up against a stiff fight to control the state legislature, having lost a majority of the nominations of members of the lower house. The league has put up independent candidates in all districts in which it failed to nominate, but if it loses the legislature it will suffer a severe setback in its career.

Harding is assured of South Dakota, probably by a plurality considerably in excess of that of Hughes four years ago, which was 5,000. Gov. Norbeck, who has been an exceedingly able and popular state executive, also appears a likely winner of the senatorship though he will run behind Harding because of the independent candidacy of state Senator Richards, author of the state primary law who is expected to draw more votes from the republicans than from the democrats. The democratic candidate is U. S. G. Cherry.

Minnesota is scheduled to get back into its stride in delivering enormous republican pluralities. Although Hughes carried the state by only 392, the indications are that the Harding vote will be an avalanche. Republican leaders are predicting a Harding plurality of 100,000 or more. The democrats, discouraged by party disaffection on the league of nations and other issues, and embarrassed by lack of campaign funds, are not making any fight for Cox worth the name.

Minnesota and Iowa Harding's The real battle in Minnesota is over the governorship between J. A. O. Preus, the republican nominee, and Dr. Henryk Shipstead, a dentist who was nominated by the nonpartisan league, and Mayor L. C. Hodgson of St. Paul, the democratic candidate. Democratic conservatives are likely to support Preus in large numbers in an effort to defeat the non-partisan league candidate. The league is running candidates in ten of the eleven districts.

LACK OF FUEL AT PANAMA MAY

HONOLULU, T. H.—(By mail)— Shortage of coal at Panama threatens to divert vessels bound through the canal to the Orient via Honolulu to San Diego and San Francisco for fuel and supplies, according to a letter received by the Honolulu chamber of commerce from Panama.

The chamber has instructed its representatives at Washington to take up the matter with the proper authorities there to the end that ships may be fully fueled at Panama and permitted to continue on their regular route to the far east by way of Honolulu.

MOTHER WOLF TEACHES YOUNG HOW TO FORAGE

CODY, Wyo.—(By mail)—A mother wolf's duty to her offsprings is to teach them as soon as they are old enough the art of hamstringing cattle;
according to Luther Zing, a Clear-
mont rancher.

Zing recently surprised a wolf teaching eight half-grown pups how to get fresh meat for food. Zing roped two of the pups. Several heads of cattle had been bitten. The wolf's den was found, but the she wolf had removed her young to another place.

WHARFINGER AWAKENS TO FIND HOME ON THE MOVE

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—(By Mail)—When Robert Clark, wharfing-er, living in a warehouse on the municipal wharf at Benicia, near here, awoke during the night recently he found his home and the pier were slowly gliding into the water.

Clark aroused his wife and they started for the shore, arriving just as the piles gave way and their home slid into the bay.

Investigation disclosed that teredo,
worms which infect piers and ship bottoms, had slowly eaten the piles until they were too weak to hold longer.

The first blast furnace was worked by William Penn in 1688.

BUYERS PREDICT
MATERIAL DROP
IN COMMODITIES

PURCHASING AGENTS BELIEVE
SOME ARTICLES WILL BE RE-DUCED 50 PER CENT.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—There will be a falling off in prices, probably as much as 50 per cent in some instances, within the next six or seven months.

This is the consensus of opinion of members of the Purchasing Agents' association of the United States, who collectively spend about $10,000,000, 000 a year. A. H. Reinhardt, purchasing agent for Pool Bros., railroad printers, revealed the opinion of, the buyers.

"I have talked with several hundred purchasing agents," Reinhardt said,
"and I have yet to find one who is not buying from hand to mouth—that is, buying only for immediate needs and contract requirements. All seem to believe that the peak in prices has been reached and that there will be a steady decline from now on—perhaps as much as 50 per cent in some commodities."

"We do not believe there is going to be any crash or any panic. There is a natural stagnation and downward trend right now. The conservative buying of purchasing agents is helping it along. I have found no one who believed there would be a return to prewar levels—for at least a couple of years—but all appear to have faith in the tendency downward."

DEMOCRATS TRADE ELECTION VOTES

BOURBONS BUSY TRADING CAN-DIDATE COX TRYING TO SAVE SENATORS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Will H.
Hays, republican national chairman,
today stated that in many normally democratic states democrats had given up hope of electing Cox and Roosevelt and are now busy "trading candidates to try to save their senators."

Mr. Hays arrived here today from Chicago, bringing with him the prediction that every state west of the Mississippi would poll a Harding majority with the possible exception of Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Of states south of the Mason-Dixon line, Mr. Hays said in a formal statement the republican ticket would carry Maryland, Tennessee, Kentucky,
West Virginia and possibly North Carolina. The "solid south," with these exceptions, and the three Western states were all in which Mr. Hays would concede that democratic chances seemed better than republican.

He said there was no doubt of sweeping republican victories in Illinois and Indiana, declaring that his prediction was made on a conservative basis.

Mr. Hays announced he also would make public his numerical estimate of republican majorities, state by state, a few days before election. The west has been amused at the effort of the opposition to try to develop their campaign on one issue, Mr. Hays said:
"It has been amused at the democratic misconception of politics and the public mind."

"Candidate Cox went out on his own responsibility," Mr. Hays said, "with his own managers, and conducted his campaign all over the west and middle-west, entirely dropping the president. This campaign was the most dismal failure in the history of presidential candidates."

TRAIN ROBBER EXECUTES ARTISTIC EMBROIDERY

RAWLINS, Wyo.—(By mail)—Artistic embroidery work as an occupation for a train robber may sound unusual but it is bringing to William L.
Carlisle, whose exploits following his robbery of a Union Pacific train filled
the columns of newspapers for days,
an income which allows him to pursue studies in prison.

Carlisle still suffers from a wound in his chest received at the time of his capture and is unable to do heavy manual work.

After research extending over 50 years a process has been discovered for bleaching the papyrus plants of the Kongo so that their fibre will be

INDIANS' FINGER PRINTS ON CHECKS

BANKERS FIND OLD CUSTOM OF IDENTIFICATION HIGHLY SATISFACTORY.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 30.
—Indians who have accounts in the banks of the Uinta basin district of Utah, especially at Vernal and Duchesne, sign their checks with finger prints, according to reports received here. Bankers say this method is necessary, as few of the red men can read and write, while many have names so long that there is not room enough on the bottom of the checks to write them.

When an Indian, unable to write, desires to draw some of his money he has someone fill out a blank check for him and then affixes his thumb print.
The check is compared with the prints kept on file at the bank and, if found correct, is paid. A full record of thumb prints is kept at each bank and officials claim that under this system
there has never been a wrong payment.

Many of the Uinta basin Indians are wealthy and have large bank accounts.
The majority of them raise cattle and sheep.

SALMON PACKERS SUSTAIN LOSSES

ALASKA PACK FOR SEASON SAID
TO BE MILLION BELOW
NORMAL RUN.

Alaska salmon canners were hard hit by the season just ended, according to C. J. Alexander, owner of a large packing plant at Hoonah, who is in Seattle from Bellingham, having just returned from the north.
The northern pack was 2,000,000 cases below normal, according to Alexander, who estimates his personal loss for the season at over $50,000. Many of the northern plants did not operate at all this year, but veteran packers say that loss due to deterioration of canning machinery when left idle for a season is considerably more than that accruing from operating under abnormal conditions when the fish are scarce.
Quotations for the season's pack are not expected to be announced until early in 1921. After a careful survey of the market, wholesalers believe the prices will be sufficient to prevent further losses to the canners who brought light packs out of the north. The general trend in the salmon market has been upward of late, particularly since announcement that the British embargo has been lifted.
The Kelley-Clark company, of Seattle, extensive brokers in salmon, made announcement recently that very few orders had been booked for the 1920 pack. In explanation it was said that packers are buying in very small quantities, in all commodities, at this time, and the southern markets are in a demoralized condition owing to the bottom having fallen from cotton quotations.
Many of the Alaska packers attribute losses on sales made since the season closed, to the insistence of banks for liquidation of loans on the season's pack.

HELENA, Mont.—(By mail)—Bungalows built on automobiles have been crossing Montana this summer carrying tourists to the Pacific coast. One house on wheels, which recently crossed the state, carried T. E. Hurley, Chicago real estate man, and his wife and daughter. Hurley was on his way to California with a letter from the mayor of Chicago to the mayor of San Francisco.
Residents who inspected Hurley's automobile said the little house contained all the necessary furniture, including a stove, and boasted of a phonograph and electric lights. Hurley said he made good time on the roads, as his outfit was not heavy.

New repeating mechanism for phonograph records automatically sets the needle back to any desired point on a record or will continue to play it as many times as wished.

As regards the territory Mr. Fisher was not so well advised, but stated that it was freely predicted the republican candidates generally would be successful. Speaking of the affairs of the local office, under the able management of Paul Coe, Mr. Fisher stated that the Anchorage office was considered one of the most prosperous in the territory.

According to passengers arriving on the Admiral Evans one of the cabin boys was arrested, tried and fined $75 in Valdez for trafficking in liquor. When he stepped off the steamer at Valdez they nabbed him, with the above result, according to reports.
